GAYNOR PUTS OFF DEALING WITH BAKER

Promises Mitchel to Come Back in a Few Days and Handle the Situation Himself.

ACTING MAYOR EMBARRASSED

Can't Enforce the Orders He Has Sent to the Police Commissioner as to Gambling.

Mayor Gaynor will return to City Hall soon, possibly within a week, to deal personally with the situation which has arisen through the clash between Acting Mayor Mitchel and Police Commissioner Baker. This news was brought back from St. James by the Acting Mayor, who went there on Monday night to lay the whole matter before Mayor Gaynor and ask his permission summarily to dismiss the Police Commissioner for what Mr. Mitchel considers the latter's insubordination in and unfitness for the post he holds.

The Acting Mayor recommended that Commissioner Baker be dismissed. The Mayor, however, asked Mr. Mitchel to wait, while promising to return himself and deal with the matter. This Mr. Mitchel agreed to do. He did not seem pleased over the result of his visit.

Because of his promise to the Mayor, Mr. Mitchel finds himself in the position of being unable to enforce orders he has issued or may wish to issue to the Police Commissioner. The latter's letter of Sept. 16 to the Acting Mayor, which Mr. Mitchel, as he expressed it yesterday, considers "insubordinate," will remain unanswered for the present. Whether it will be made public at all depends upon circumstances, Mr. Mitchel says. He promised the Mayor not to make the letter public, but as he understands it that promise only holds good until Mayor Gaynor has time to get back to City Hall and deal himself with the Police Commissioner.

The Acting Mayor was at City Hall early yesterday, apparently quite willing to discuss his visit to Mayor Gaynor.

"I saw the Mayor at St. James last night, and placed before him the entire police situation, including Commissioner Baker's letter to me," he said. "The Mayor requested me not to make this letter public and to leave the police matter in abeyance until his return, and he promises to come back within a few days."

Wants Baker Ousted.

Later in the day, when Mr. Mitchel was questioned further concerning the Mayor's promise to return to City Hall in a few days, he said that it would doubtless be before Oct. 1.

"If he does not come back before that I will be greatly disappointed," he said. He added that the Mayor seemed interested in the situation. Mr. Mitchel was asked if he had recommended to Mayor Gaynor the removal of Commissioner Baker. His reply was an emphatic "Yes." And when his reason for doing so was sought he said:

"For many reasons, which I placed fully before the Mayor."

"Did Mayor Gaynor take the attitude that he did not support you in your views, or merely that he wished to take it up himself personally?" a reporter asked.

"That he wished to take the matter up," said Mr. Mitchel. "I think Mayor Gaynor's views and mine with respect to the fitness of the Police Commissioner are identical."

The Acting Mayor was asked if he intended presenting the evidence he had obtained against alleged gambling houses and disorderly resorts in Manhattan to the Grand Jury.

"I have it in an envelope here, and will take it to the Grand Jury in a few minutes," he replied.

Has Gaynor's Approval.

Mr. Mitchel said that Mayor Gaynor, after hearing the whole story of the break between himself and Commissioner Baker from the revelations at Coney Island down to date, said that he approved of what he (Mr. Mitchel) had done.

"I thought, as I have all along, that a matter of this moment and nature should be submitted to the real head of the City Government in order to permit him to determine what should be done," said Mr. Mitchel. "My own views as to what should be done are very plain."

"And you believe the Mayor's views are idential with your own?" was asked.

"I said as to the Commissioner's fitness," corrected the Acting Mayor.

Mr. Mitchel in response to a question denied that he was supporting Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick as a successor to Police Commissioner Baker.

He was asked if the report that one Police Captain would confess to a knowledge of the manner in which vice has been running riot in the city had come to his attention. Mr. Mitchel said that he had heard no such thing.

"I recommended putting one Police Captain on charges in the Tenderloin precinct on one case we had against him," he said.

The Acting Mayor said that, were it not for deference to Mayor Gaynor, he would be glad to go into the entire question.

"I should have been glad to act this morning, except for his request," he added.

Held Back by the Mayor.

There was a plain implication by the Acting Mayor that, had not Mayor Gaynor stayed his hand by the request to place the matter in abeyance, the office of Police Commissioner would not be held by Mr. Baker this morning. He said in his talk with reporters in the afternoon that while he considered Commissioner Baker's letter of Sept. 16 insubordinate he did not regard it as insulting.

Commissioner Baker also had something to say about the letter yesterday. After repeated efforts had been made to get a statement from him the Commissioner said:

"So much has been published in the newspapers in the last day or two regarding a letter sent by me to the Acting Mayor, and such letter not having been made public, I am impelled to state that I felt that the letter received by me from Acting Mayor Mitchel relative to the vice and police situation in New York called for a reply from me. My letter contained nothing but a straightforward statement of my attitude and of the position of the department as to conditions since the first of August last, and there was no intent whatever to criticise or impugn the actions of the Acting Mayor.

"I felt that, owing to my close association with Mayor Gaynor since the first of last January in regard to police matters, I fully understood his purposes and knew to what extent he would give me freedom of action were he in the Mayor's chair; and having had considerable experience in the Police Department, I felt that my suggestions should be accepted."

When this statement was repeated to the Acting Mayor he said he had no further comment to make.

Soon after telling of the result of his conference with the Mayor at St. James, Mr. Mitchel, with a large sheaf of documents under his arm, went to the Criminal Courts Building and for two hours was before the Grand Jury.

HEADS QUEENS GRAFT HUNT.

Hughes Names Ordway to Take Testimony Against Gresser.

Gov. Hughes decided yesterday that the charges filed before him in the Summer and last Spring against Borough President Lawrence Gresser of Queens were serious enough to warrant investigation and appointed Samuel H. Ordway a Special Commissioner to take evidence in the Gresser case.

Mr. Ordway is an Independent Democrat and has long been associated with the Civil Service Reform Association. Gov. Hughes named him two years ago to take testimony in the Wall Street investigation, and he was interested in the investigation of former Borough President Bermel of Queens.

The news that he was to investigate the Gresser case caused general rejoicing among the committee of citizens which has visited Albany to obtain an investigation.

"We couldn't have asked for a man more likely to get results," said Lawyer Charles Pope Caldwell, who went to Albany three times with charges.

It is thought that only a short time will be consumed in taking testimony by Mr. Ordway. Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, it is said, has complete data showing the graft system in Queens. Mr. Fosdick said yesterday that this testimony would be put at once before Mr. Ordway. He did not think it would be necessary to go over the ground again.

While Commissioner Ordway is collecting the evidence against President Gresser, Mr. Fosdick will be preparing fresh evidence for the consideration of the October Grand Jury, and the Queens courts will be filled with cases against ex-borough officials already under indictment, whose cases have been set for trial in October.

LANGE FAITHFUL TO PROCESS

Has Proved He Can Transmute Silver, He Says—Complains of Swindlers.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sept. 20.—Dr. F. W. Lange, who professes to be able to increase the value of silver by the application of base metals, asserts that he has been swindled out of $100,000. So far he has made no statement to indicate in what manner he has suffered such a loss. There is, however, a story circulated that a big concern interested in silver mining sent here a check for $100,000 which it agreed to turn over to Dr. Lange provided he could prove to its satisfaction that he could increase the value of silver to an extent anywhere near the proportion he claimed.

"In a nutshell the case is this," he said to-day. "I was a busy man and swindlers who, I believe, were organized into a band, found me gullible. Forged notes were piled up on me and I was caught in a net woven by clever rogues."

"Will you state positively that this game you charge has not had anything to do with your silvermaking process?" he was asked.

"The process is my own. E. D. Gleason of Philadelphia suggested that I take up the attempts to transmute silver out of base metals. The swindle bears no relation to the process."

"Have you faith in your silvermaking process yet?" he was asked.

"The utmost faith. It has proved a success. I recently sent 600 ounces to New York assayers, and they paid me a profit of 60 per cent. on it. I sent about the same amount to assayers in Philadelphia and reaped a similar profit. I have sent similar portions to other assayers throughout the country and they are writing to me almost every day asking for my prices. This proves the success of the process. I have been so overcome with troubles all coming together that I haven't had time to turn my attention to making silver. But I have already proved beyond a doubt that the process is all that I ever claimed it was, and I will soon convince skeptics of the truth of this."

Notwithstanding the charge of false pretense and forgery that Dr. Lange has preferred against him, E. D. Gleason performed an experiment in Dr. Lange's laboratory this afternoon. The experiment is supposed to deal with a transmutation process.

ZOO MONKEY IN A TREE TOP.

Simian Dinner Party Ends When Babe Makes Her Escape.

Buster, the largest of the Bronx Zoo orang outangs, which, with his sister, Babe, and Baldy, the prize chimpanzee, has been giving daily public exhibitions in civilized and near-human dining on a platform in front of the monkey house, forgot his rôle yesterday afternoon while performing in front of a large crowd.

When Keeper Riley, by way of punishment, ordered Buster to stand up and take his medicine from the end of a whip, Babe, his side-partner, grew angry, grabbed a plate from the table, and with a chatter of rage, threw it to the ground, shattering it.

As the keeper turned, Babe, twisting her face into a spiteful grimace, leaped from the platform, just over the edge of the crowd, and jumped to the lower branches of one of a circle of trees surrounding the show place. The two other monkeys were just about to follow her when Riley and an assistant grabbed them and shoved them into the monkey house.

When they returned, Babe was chattering in the top of the tree and a crowd of several hundred men, women, and children were chattering beneath it. Riley saw that there was trouble ahead, and called Director Hornaday, Curator Ditmars, and some fifteen keepers. In a few minutes half a dozen ladders had been raised to the tree and the keepers started up.

Babe chattered shrilly and jumped lightly into the adjoining tree. From tree to tree the keepers and the crowd of spectators followed her, but she eluded them easily. It was growing dusk, and the chase grew more and more serious as it darkened. In accordance with the rule of the park, the crowd was ordered out of the gates at 5 o'clock.

Seven o'clock came, and still Babe was chattering in the now dark tops of the trees. The pursuers could not keep her located more than a few minutes at a time.

Finally Mr. Hornaday ordered the electric searchlight turned on the tree where Babe was resting, and with this they picked out her dim gray bulk amid the leaves. The light dazzled and annoyed her. She crept to the very top of the tree. The light followed her. She crept down. A small bamboo tree adjoined the larger one, and into this the bewildered monkey took refuge.

Thereafter it was an easy matter for the keepers to capture her with a life net. Neither she nor Buster will take part in the public dining for the rest of the week.

ITALIANS LYNCHED IN A TAMPA STREET

Accused of Shooting Employe of Cigarmakers, They Are Taken from Officers.

TROUBLE DUE TO A STRIKE

Men Were Being Removed to a Stronger Prison When Armed Band Seized and Hanged Them.

Special to The New York Times.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 20.—Charged with the attempted assassination of J. D. Easterling, who was shot down several days ago, Angelo Albana and Castenge Ficcarotta, two Italians who had been arrested late this afternoon, were seized by a mob from the Sheriff's Deputies to-night and lynched. The Deputies were escorting the men to the County Jail from the jail in West Tampa. The mob hanged the Italians to a tree near Grand Central Avenue, just beyond the city limits.

The mob is said to have been composed of sixty or seventy men. They did their work quickly, and successfully eluded officers who began searching the neighborhood for them a scant half hour after the seizure was made.

Albano and Ficcarotta were in the custody of Deputy Sheriffs W. E. Evans and Joseph Bryant when the attack occurred. The men had been arrested late this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Keggin and Marshal A. C. Logan of West Tampa on warrants issued by Justice Boyett, charging them with the attempted assassination of Easterling, who is bookkeeper for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, cigar manufacturers, against whom a strike had been called by the tobacco working trades now on strike here. The men who had made themselves conspicuous in the strike were placed in the West Tampa jail by the arresting officers, but shortly afterward they were ordered to the county jail by Sheriff Jackson, who did not care to take any chances with them, and deputies Evans and Bryant were ordered to convey them there.

They placed their prisoners in a hack and were driving them out along Howard Avenue toward Grand Central Avenue through a sparsely settled suburb when suddenly the hack was halted by a well armed mob.

Revolvers were leveled at the officers and the driver of the conveyance. They were ordered to surrender their prisoners and with weapons at their heads they did not refuse to obey. The prisoners secured, the mob headed for a hummock a half mile away while the officers drove full speed to West Tampa and alarmed the authorities. A search was instantly instituted for the mob and the prisoners by deputies both from Tampa and West Tampa.

The mob, however, had disappeared as if by magic; not a straggler even was to be seen by the first searching party. Shortly before midnight Chief of Police Woodward of Tampa, Marshal Logan, Deputy Keggin, and other officers discovered the bodies of Albano and Ficarrotta hanging on the same limb of a tree well down in the hummock. Both were dead. Ficarrotta had the pipe in his mouth which he was smoking when seized.

The two deputy sheriffs said that they believed the lynching party was composed of Italians and Cubans and that they would be able to identify some of them if they could be brought face to face with them.

When the bodies were cut down it was found that the necessity for hanging both to the same limb arose when the mob failed in an effort to sever the chains connecting the handcuffs.

Following the discovery of the bodies wild excitement reigned here. At midnight a crowd of some 2,000 persons had gathered.

Eight months ago Ficcarrotta was tried and acquitted on a charge of murdering his uncle, G. Ficcarrotta.

The police do not believe the execution of the Italians had any bearing on the local strike situation, alleging that it is rather the result of recent feuds between certain elements of the local Italian colony. Deputy Sheriff Keggin, however, who arrested the two men earlier in the evening, stated that he was approached by a number of people who asked at what time the two men would be sent to the county jail. Not suspecting anything, he told them.

Shortly after midnight the bodies were brought to the city and a Coroner's jury was impanelled to hold an inquest.

WOMAN JUMPS BEFORE TRAIN

Had in Her Bag a Check for a Trunk from Summitville, Sullivan County.

A woman committed suicide at 4:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Seventy-sixth Street station of the Third Avenue elevated road by throwing herself under a southbound train. She jumped when the train was almost up to her and the motorman could not check the train in time.

Nothing suspicious was noticed in the woman's actions, but two passengers, Henry M. Lusick of Ellis Island and Walter Henry of 158 East Ninety-seventh Street, saw her run to the edge of the platform and, with a wild scream, throw herself off.

Policeman Bierman of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station was standing just under the station talking to Capt. Hughes of the same station. They both rushed up stairs and telephoned for an ambulance to the Presbyterian Hospital. It was necessary to jack up the car to release the body.

The woman was 5 feet 6 inches in height and about fifty years old. She had brown eyes, brown hair streaked with gray, and was very dark. She was dressed all in black, like a widow, and appeared to be in comfortable circumstances.

In the bag which she carried was a baggage check No. A46,018 of the New York, Ontario & Western Railway. The baggage master at the Grand Central Station informed the police that he had a trunk with a corresponding number, and that it had been put on the train at Summitville, Sullivan County, N. Y. It was broken open, but it contained nothing to identify the woman.

THE CHRISTYS RECONCILED?

Wife of the Artist Visits Him and Their Daughter in Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Sept. 20.—It is rumored that there has been a reconciliation between Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chandler Christy.

Mrs. Christy arrived in Zanesville this morning, and went to her husband's country home in a motor car. In the afternoon neighbors caught sight of her playing tennis with Mr. Christy and their 11-year-old daughter, Natalie. It was the first family gathering since the sensational proceedings last Winter, when Natalie was awarded to the father after the mother had attempted to prove that he was "not a fit person" to care for her.

To-night over the telephone Mr. Christy laughingly refused to comment upon the rumors of reconciliation. Friends of the family say that Mr. Christy recently made a trip to New York and that he intimated that peace might be restored for the sake of the little girl.

Since the trial Mrs. Christy has been employed on the staff of a New York newspaper, and Christy has been hard at work in his beautiful studio. Natalie has been living with him and his parents at the [illegible] homestead.

BAR INSURANCE TO AVIATION OFFICERS

Allan A. Ryan Notified That His Policies Will Be Void If He Manages the International Meet.

HE IS NOT AN AVIATOR

And Says He Does Not Contemplate Going Aloft—Policies Affected Aggregate Some $500,000.

A novel situation has developed through the progress of aviation. Insurance and casualty companies are canceling policies held by persons interested in aviation. Many companies are inserting a clause prohibiting the insured from making aerial flights, but this is being extended to include those identified with the sport.

Among those who have been notified that participation in aviation contests will result in the cancellation of their policies is Allan A. Ryan, Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements of the international aviation meet at Belmont Park Oct. 22 to 30. Mr. Ryan, who carries policies in insurance and casualty companies aggregating $500,000, has been formally notified that because of his connection with the international meet his policies in the different companies will be canceled.

Mr. Ryan does not own an aeroplane and does not contemplate the purchase of one; neither does he contemplate making a flight. His duties as Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements consist of attending to details of the meet. He is not even required to be on the field during the flights, but in spite of this he will be compelled to forfeit all his claims under the policies he holds if he continues to hold his present place.

This is the first instance where a person holding policies not actually flying has been barred from participation in aviation meets. Mr. Ryan was averse to discussing the matter last night, but admitted that he had received notices from the companies in which he is insured, but declined to comment on what action he intended to take.

BRYAN AGAINST DAHLMAN.

Says Position on Liquor Question Makes Support Impossible.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 20.—For the first time in his life W. J. Bryan is irregular. He will not support Mayor James Dahlman of Omaha, Democratic nominee for Governor. In a statement issued to-day he says:

"I am just leaving for Missouri, and shall be absent practically all of the time for about a month campaigning in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Indiana, and Illinois. After that I shall be at liberty to speak for Mr. Hitchcock, the Democratic candidates for Congress, and for the State ticket in Nebraska.

"In speaking for the State ticket, however, I shall not be able to present any arguments in favor of the election of Mr. Dahlman. His position on the liquor question makes that impossible. I regret this exceedingly, for he has been a political and personal friend for twenty years. In spite of the fact that the last Democratic State Convention voted down a declaration against county option by a vote of 638 to 202 he says that he will veto a County Option bill if passed, and in spite of the fact that the State Convention indorsed the 8 o'clock closing law by a vote of 710 to 163 he announces that he will sign a bill repealing it if such a bill is passed.

"Possibly it is just as well to have the issue clearly presented, so that it may be settled this year instead of two years hence. Troublesome as the question is now, it would be even more embarrassing if presented in 1912, when we have a Presidential election on hand. To present arguments in favor of going backward would not only contradict what I have already said on the subject, but would embarrass me in the fight that I expect to make hereafter to save our party from the odium of being representative of the liquor interests."

Mr. Dahlman, known as the cowboy Mayor of Omaha, was for years one of Mr. Bryan's most enthusiastic supporters. He headed the delegation of Nebraskans that went to New York to welcome Bryan when he returned from his trip around the world.

$600,000 TO RAISE THE MAINE

John F. O'Rourke Says It Will Cost That and Take Nearly Six Months.

Among the passengers who arrived from Havana on the Ward liner Saratoga yesterday afternoon was John F. O'Rourke, the engineer and contractor. In an interview Mr. O'Rourke said he would like to undertake the task of raising the battleship Maine, which since the Spring of 1898 has lain in the mud of Havana Harbor.

A board of United States Army engineers, at the head of which is Col. William M. Black, U. S. A., the engineer in charge of the First New York District, is now at work figuring out a plan to raise the wreck, and Col. Black, who returned from Cuba last week, in an interview with a TIMES reporter a few days ago, stated that there was no doubt but that the wreck could be raised. Mr. O'Rourke hopes to get the job.

"I spent all my time in Cuba," he said yesterday, "examining the wreck of the Maine and getting acquainted with the Cuban people. Every Cuban of influence, from President Gomez down, favors raising the battleship, and they are so appreciative of what the United States has done for them that they stand ready to render every assistance. Besides, the wreck occupies one of the best anchorages in Havana Harbor."

Just before he left Havana Mr. O'Rourke said that President Gomez said to him, "When you see President Taft convey to him our most cordial and friendly sentiments and tell him we wish he would hurry."

Mr. O'Rourke estimates that it will require from four to six months to raise the Maine. He estimated the total cost at about $600,000, which is twice the sum appropriated by Congress for the purpose.

Rear Admiral F. T. Bowles, U. S. N., retired, was also a passenger on the Saratoga.

LORIMER NOW OUT OF HAMILTON CLUB

Directors Accept the Resignation of Senator with Whom Roosevelt Refused to Dine.

PRESIDENT BATTEN UPHELD

Decision Said to Have Been Unanimous After Fire Hours' Session, with Entire Board Present.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Senator Lorimer's resignation was accepted by the Hamilton Club to-night. Every one of the fifteen Directors of the club was present at the meeting at which the matter was taken up, and every one stayed through the whole session of almost five hours.

The board also indorsed the action of President John H. Batten in withdrawing the invitation to the Senator to attend the Roosevelt banquet.

It was stated that this resolution was adopted unanimously by a rising vote, but no information whatever was obtainable from President Batten or from Secretary M. O. Slocum as to the circumstances that surrounded the acceptance of the Lorimer resignation.

"Has Mr. Lorimer communicated with the club in any way since he sent in his formal resignation?" President Batten was asked.

"Not in any way."

"How many of the Directors were present?"

"Every one of them. Not one dodged."

President Batten made public the resolutions upholding his action, which was as follows:

> Whereas, at the instance of Col. Roosevelt, the guest of honor at the banquet given by the Hamilton Club, on the 8th day of Sept., 1910, President Batten withdrew the invitation extended to Senator Lorimer, a member of this organization, Col Roosevelt having previously announced that he would not attend were Senator Lorimer present: and
>
> Whereas, It is proper that the opinion of this Board in the premises, so far as it is concerned, should be clearly understood.
>
> Be it resolved, in view of all the attendant circumstnces, any other course, would, in the judgment of this Board, have been impracticable and unwise; and be it further
> Resolved—After full consideration of the incident, that the action of President Batten be and is hereby fully approved; and be it further
> Resolved—That these resolutions be spread at length upon the records of this meeting.

No definite plan of procedure was reached to-day by the Senate Committee which is here to investigate charges touching the validity of the election of Senator Lorimer. Senator Frazier of Tennessee and Senator Bulkeley of Connecticut, members of the committee, which is a sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, were absent when the members were called together informally by the chairman, Senator J. C. Burrows of Michigan at the Congress Hotel.

It was decided not to attempt, in the absence of the two members, to lay any plans for the work of the committee. Telegrams were sent urging them to come to Chicago without delay. The conference then adjourned until to-morrow afternoon.

Neither Senator Lorimer nor his attorney, former Judge Elbridge Hanecy, who went to the hotel to learn from Senator Burrows what would be required of them in the hearing, had an opportunity to talk with him.

FLEE PRISON IN LEADEN HAIL.

Jersey Convicts Descend a Precipice Amid Guards' Bullets—One Escapes.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20.—Volley after volley of bullets did not prevent "Jack" Brenzer and Wilson Jackson, long-term convicts at the Mercer County Workhouse, from climbing down a sixty-foot precipice to-day in an endeavor to escape. Brenzer surrendered when practically on the verge of liberty, but Jackson succeeded in reaching a dense wood and it is doubted if he will be recaptured. The Mercer County authorities say that the men's attmept was the most daring on record. Both men were bloodstained when they finished the descent from the precipice.

The escape was attempted just after the noon meal at the institution. Prisoners at the workhouse are forced to work in quarries. After the convicts had finished their meal to-day twelve guards, as is the custom, marched toward the quarries and stationed themselves at their posts, aiming rifles at the prisoners, who were ordered to march in single file. Other guards with loaded rifles brought up the rear of the column.

The file of prisoners had marched only a short distance when both Brenzer and Jackson left the ranks and fled toward the precipice. The guards did not shout warnings, but fired.

The escaping prisoners reached the edge of the cliff and started their descent, paying no heed to the bullets. The guards ran after them, but at the edge of the cliff they paused, knowing well that any one who attempted to descend would risk his life.

The guards took positions along the ledge and opened fire. The two convicts continued their cautious descent over the rocks, bending downward to escape the bullets. Two hundred other prisoners, who rushed to the ledge after being left without guard, shouted encouragement to them. One prisoner went as far as to hurl two huge pieces of stone at the guards, injuring one.

That it was miraculous the escaping convicts were not killed or wounded is unquestionable. They were exposed to the incessant fire of the guards even after they had reached the level, both being cut and bruised by projecting rocks.

Brennzer reached level ground. Then a bullet took away his hat, and almost immediately afterward he stumbled over a rock. Three bullets whizzed so close past his head that he became frightened and threw up his hands.

"Beat it!" shouted the other prisoners on the ledge, but he remained with arms in the air. He had to stand in that position for almost half an hour, while the guards took a long route, to avoid climbing down the cliff.

Jackson, despite the flying bullets, made for a dense wood a quarter of a mile distant and succeeded in reaching it. He left a trail of blood behind him, but even this has not made known his whereabouts to a posse of armed men who are hunting the woods to-night. Brenzer when recaptured declared that he and Jackson had been planning to escape for some time and had come to the conclusion last night that it was either a case of liberty or death.

Brenzer said he would not have surrendered despite the bullets if a small locket containing a picture of his sweetheart had not fallen out of his pocket while he was climbing down the precipice. He said he believed this loss an omen of bad luck.

LUSITANIA RECORD BREAKING

Should Arrive Off the Lightship About 3:30 P. M. To-morrow.

The Cunarder Lusitania is apparently out after the Atlantic record, held by her sister ship, the Mauretania. The Marconi wireless reported the Lusitania 1,285 miles east of Sandy Hook at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. This indicates that the big ship has been traveling at a high rate of speed since she passed Daunt's Rock, on the Coast of Ireland, last Sunday. If this rate is as high as 26 knots an hour, and is maintained to the end of the voyage, the Lusitania should arrive at the Ambrose Channel Lightship about 3:30 P. M. to-morrow.

The present westward record, held by the Mauretania, was achieved on her last voyage, ending at the Ambrose Channel Lightship at 3:49 P. M. last Thursday. The Mauretania's time on that passage was 4 days 10 hours and 41 minutes, which was ten minutes faster than her previous best time and a new world's record for the short course of 2,780 knots.

The Lusitania's best record is 4 days 11 hours and 42 minutes, made on Sept. 3, 1909. Whether or not her arrival about 3:30 P. M. to-morrow would mean a new record depends on the time when she passed Daunt's Rock last Sunday. That record was not available last night. At any rate she is quite likely to land her passengers on Thursday evening.

RIDE WITH ROCKEFELLER.

His Auto Waits at Schoolhouse and He Takes Pupils Home.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 20.—John D. Rockefeller has established a free auto service in Chardon, a pretty little village in Geauga County, which he visits at least once a week when he is at his Summer home, Forest Hill. But his passengers are limited to children.

Several times during the Summer he has gathered the little folks in Chardon streets and taken them across the country in his big touring car. To-day the Rockefeller auto was waiting near the schoolhouse when the pupils came out, and Mr. Rockefeller stopped a bevy of girls to ask the whereabouts of some little folks he had taken home a few days ago. Unable to find those wanted, he said to his chauffeur:

"Suppose we take all of them."

In a moment the car was packed to the running guards and the order given to take the children to their various homes. For a half hour Mr. Rockefeller enjoyed himself by driving around the neighborhood delivering the youngsters to their parents.

MAY RECOUNT NEWBURG.

Durand Says New Census Will Be Made If Necessary.

WASHINTON, Sept. 20.—Director of the Census Durand promised Frederick K. Gifford of Newburg, N. Y., to-day that a re-enumeration would be made in parts of that city if found necessary. Mr. Gifford told Mr. Durand that a local census had revealed the fact that the census figures were about 2,600 below the actual count.

The Director said the Census Bureau would make a comparison of its returns with the local figures, and that if the official figures were incorrect a correct census would be taken.

BIG GROWTH FOR CANTON.

The Late President McKinley's Town Counts 50,217—Gain, 63.7 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The population of Canton, Ohio, according to the new census, is 50,217, an increase of 19,550, or 63.7 per cent., over the figures for 1900, which were 30,667.

The new count gives Little Rock, Ark., 45,941 population, an increase of 7,634, or 19.9 per cent., as compared with 38,307 in 1900.

La Crosse, Wis., has 30,417 persons, an increase of 1,522, or 5.3 per cent., as compared with 28,895 in 1900.

Cambridge, Ohio, has 11,327, as compared with 8,241 in 1900. The population of Larksville, Penn., is 9,288.

AUSTRIAN RAILWAY DISASTER.

Express Trains in Collision—Eleven Persons Killed, 29 Injured.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.—Seven persons were killed and twenty-nine injured by a collision between express trains to-day near Rottenmann, Styria.

Four of the injured died to-night.

Prince Von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfürst, Governor of Trieste, was on one of the trains, but escaped without injury.

ITALIANS HANGED AT TAMPA.

Bodies of Two Well-Known Men Found Swinging to Tree on Street.

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 20.—The bodies, still warm, of Castengo Ficaretta and Llabella, prominent Italian citizens, were found swinging to the limb of a tree on Grand Central Avenue to-night.

The discovery was made at 10:30 by Chief of Police Woodward.

MRS. MORSE VISITS HUSBAND

Finds Him in Good Health and Hopeful—At Work in Library.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 20.—Mrs. C. W. Morse was allowed to-day to see her husband, who is serving a sentence of fifteen years in the Atlanta Federal prison. Mrs. Morse reached Atlanta this morning and went at once to the prison. She was admitted to the main corridor, where visitors are required to wait until prisoners they wish to see are taken to the Warden's room.

When Morse was summoned he was at work in the library, and his walk to the Warden's room brought him through the hall where his wife was waiting. As Mrs. Morse saw her husband approach she ran to greet him. Her arms were almost around his neck when a guard ran up and dragged the prisoner back.

"That's against the rules," said the guard, "you can't speak to him out here." Mrs. Morse had to delay the greeting until Morse had passed into the Warden's office.

After the visit Mrs. Morse said her husband was in good health and hopeful. Morse is now working a typewriter, cataloguing the books in the library.

"I never knew before how little I knew, how little I could do any one thing well," he told his wife to-day.

Mrs. Morse left for New York to-night.

SHERMAN'S DISTRICT VOTES AGAINST HIM

Convention to Name State Delegates Will Be for Roosevelt, 60 to 17.

OLD GUARD HOLDS YONKERS.

Both Sides Claim Control of State Convention Through the Primaries —McCabe Wins in Albany.

A startling development in the conflict between the Old Guard and the Roosevelt forces for control of the Republican State Convention came last night, when in the up-State primary elections Vice President Sherman, whom the Republican State Committee has chosen for temporary Chairman of the convention, was overwhelmingly defeated in his own Assembly District, and even lost his own ward—the Seventh Ward of Utica.

The Sherman forces will control the other two districts in Oneida County with an aggregate of fourteen delegates to the 9 controlled by the progressives. Vice President Sherman will go to the convention at the head of the delegation from the First District.

Returns received from other up-State districts show that the Republican primaries did not affect any changes in the situation. Westchester, Albany, Onondaga, Monroe, and Schenectady Counties will send their large delegations to the convention solidly for Sherman and the Old Guard programme. Erie County will send a solid Roosevelt delegation.

On the Democratic side there were few primary fights, and in every instance over local issues. In Erie County William H. Fitzpatrick, whom former State Chairman William J. Conners placed at the head of the Democratic County organization, was the leader of a winning fight, which may have the effect of keeping Mayor Fuhrman of Buffalo off the Democratic State Committee.

In Albany Patrick E. McCabe, the veteran Democratic boss, won a notable victory over Robert E. Whalen, an insurgent Democrat.

SHERMAN LOSES HIS WARD.

Results of Other Republican Primaries and Conventions in the State.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, Sept. 20.—Vice President Sherman lost the delegates in his own ward in this city at the primaries to-day. In his own district the majority against him was 53, and in the other two districts of the ward there were 40 against him, making a total of 93. It was one of the largest primaries ever held in the city, the total Republican vote being 766.

Scores of office-holders and political friends of Mr. Sherman were active throughout the afternoon and evening, and voters were brought to the polls in carriages and automobiles, but the tide could not be stemmed. This part of the city is mainly residential, and is the home of business and professional men. They went to the polls with tickets in their pockets and they could not be argued with.

The progressives carried the Second Assembly District of the county, in which Mr. Sherman lives, almost solidly.

They will have 60 of the 77 delegates to the convention that elects delegates to the State Convention.

The first Assembly District was carried for Sherman. The Old Guard will have 30 votes in the convention to 8 for the progressives, insuring the election of anti-Roosevelt delegates to the State Convention.

The Third Assembly District was carried for Sherman by a small majority.

The delegates form Oneida County will thus stand: Sherman, 14; Roosevelt, 9. Mr. Sherman will head the delegation from the First Assembly District.

According to reports received up to midnight the result of the fight in Oneida County will give the Old Guard 23 out of 32 delegates to the State Convention from the Congressional District, including Oneida and Herkimer Counties, insuring its retention of the place on the State Committee now held by Daniel F. Strobel.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—There was no opposition to the Barnes delegates to the district conventions, which in turn will elect delegates to the Republican State Convention at the primaries in the 131 election districts of Albany County today. This insures a solid delegation of 28 for Sherman from this county.

In ten election districts there was strife over election officers, one of which, that in the First District of the Ninth Ward of Albany city, came near causing a shooting affray. William McCormick and Michael J. Sheehan were contesting for President of the district. McCormick was accused of stuffing the ballot box. This he resented. In the scuffle which followed clubs were used, including a policeman's, and McCormick drew a pistol. He withdrew the Inspectors, and Corporation Counsel Andrews, who was summoned, swore in new Inspectors, locked the boxes, and directed the Inspectors, when the polls were closed, to deliver the boxes to the County Clerk, to remain in his custody until to-morrow.

McCormick was arrested, and later admitted to bail. He is charged with assaulting an officer and carrying a concealed weapon.

Luther C. Warner, Chairman of the Republican General Committee, says fully 50 per cent. of the enrolled vote was polled to-day, showing the desire of the organization men to support Barnes in his advocacy of Sherman for Temporary Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Sept. 20.—The Greiner machine won at the Republican primaries to-day. A few unimportant contests were waged and the Old Guard claims success in one assembly district, but indications are that Postmaster Greiner will control all of the sixty-one delegates to the Saratoga Convention and will vote them for Roosevelt for temporary Chairman.

The Old Guard sent representatives to Buffalo to start an anti-Greiner contest, but they failed to accomplish results.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 20.—Primaries were held in the forty-one wards and towns in Monroe County to-day to elect delegates to the Assembly District conventions to be held to-morrow and Thursday. The Republican organization made a clean sweep, insuring a solid delegation of 38 to the State Convention, which will be instructed to vote for State Treasurer Thomas B. Dunn for the nomination for Governor.

To-day's result also insures the unanimous re-election of George W. Aldridge, the machine leader in the county, as member of the Republican State Committee. There were no contests in the towns and only two in the wards—the Eleventh and Nineteenth—where the issues were purely local. The organization won in both by large majorities.

There is no question that the delegates to the State Convention will favor Vice President James S. Sherman for temporary Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 20.—There was but one contest to-day in the Republican primaries of Rensselaer County, the home of Cornelius V. Collins, who has been selected by Col. Roosevelt as his right-hand man, and of ex-Gov. Frank S. Black. That was in Pittstown, and was within the organization. The County Convention which will select delegates to the State Convention will meet on Saturday.

There is a strong Sherman sentiment in the Second Assembly District, the home of Senator Allen and Assemblyman Lansing. There is some Sherman sentiment, too, in the First District, which includes most of the City of Troy, where Mr. Collins and Congressman Draper live.

The feeling is that the county's delegation to Saratoga will go uninstructed. If there is any attempt to instruct its members a glorious row is promised, with a deadlock, for the Second District is opposed to any instructed delegation, especially for Roosevelt.

There is some talk that ex-Gov. Black's hand is to be seen in the workings of the sentiment against Roosevelt and Collins. While this is denied, it is evident that a movement is well under way to block Mr. Collins's efforts to have Rensselaer County declare for Roosevelt.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 20.—Onondaga County's twenty-nine delegates to the Republican State Convention will vote for James S. Sherman for Temporary Chairman. Complete harmony marked the primaries held in Syracuse and in the county, no opposition developing anywhere to the organization ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, Sept. 20.—President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University heads the Tompkins County delegates to the Republican State Convention, and, although the county convention held here to-day did not specifically instruct its delegates to vote for Col. Roosevelt, the attitude of Congressman John W. Dwight in supporting the Colonel for Temporary Chairman was heartily indorsed.

The Taft, Roosevelt, Hughes, and Root form of primary reform was approved and the representatives in the Assembly and Senate were instructed to vote for it. Congressman Dwight controlled the convention absolutely, and delegates instructed for him were sent to the Congressional Convention. The delegates to the State Convention are Dr. Schurman, Congressman Dwight, Prof. Simon H. Gage, Assemblyman Fox Holden, George Livermore, and Willard M. Kent.

Deacon "Hi" Moe, of Groton, the man who said he passed the $1,000 to Senator Allds in the recent trial at Albany, was a delegate from the town of Groton, controlled by Benn Conger.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Republicans of Ulster County decided to-day to stand by the present political organization in the First Assembly District Convention by a vote of 22 to 7, and refused to adopt resolutions indorsing the administration of Gov. Hughes or to instruct delegates to the State Convention for primary reform.

Delegates to to-day's convention were elected long before the present controversy between Col. Roosevelt and the machine leaders.

Former Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck, an Odell lieutenant, heads the Ulster delegation. His most prominent associate is ex-Congressman George J. Smith, who attracted attention two years ago, while Treasurer of the Republican State Committee, by opposing the renomination of Gov. Hughes.

Ex-District Attorney Frederick Stephan of Kingston was nominated for Assemblyman in the First District. After his nomination he pledged himself to vote for primary reform. Samuel C. Waring of New Paltz was nominated in the Second District.

Special to The New York Times.

OWEGO, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Frank L. Howard of Waverly was unanimously renominated for Assemblyman at the Republican County Convention held here this afternoon. Howard was opposed to the Hughes policies last Winter, but his re-election is conceded.

Delegates to the State Convention were not instructed. It is certain, however, that they will follow the leadership of John W. Dwight in the temporary chairmanship fight. At the meeting of the State Committee Mr. Dwight was a proxy for George W. Dunn of Binghamton, and voted for Col. Roosevelt. Whether his attitude has been changed by recent developments is not known.

Special to The New York Times.

YONKERS, Sept. 20.—In the primaries here to-day the organization Republicans won in three contests from the insurgents. They were the only contests. The vote was closest in the Eighth Ward, where the anti-Roosevelt forces trained their guns on the leader of the district, Frederick Mahlmann, who the night before had denounced the Barnes-Woodruff crowd, and had been instrumental in having a resolution passed in the Eighth Ward Republican Club assailing the Republican Assemblyman of this district because the Assemblyman had voted against direct primaries. The vote stood 72 to 51.

Senator J. Mayhew Wainwright was the issue in the Third District of the First Ward. E. Verbeck and a number of others wanted the delegates instructed for Wainwright. The organization opposed this, with the result that there were two tickets in the field to-day, the regulars winning, 97 to 46.

The fight in the First District of the Tenth Ward was on the same ground, the progressives losing by 42 to 29.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 20.—The Republican Convention of the Second Assembly District of Dutchess County met here to-day. It indorsed the Administration of President Taft and "earnestly and sincerely advocated his renomination in 1912." There was no opposition to the Old Guard in selecting delegates to the State Convention. Although the delegates were not instructed, they represent the State organization. The Administration and work of Gov. Hughes were indorsed, and a resolution was adopted advocating direct primaries.

Former Assemblyman Everett H. Travis, defeated last year by Lewis S. Chanler, was again nominated.

LOWVILLE, Sept. 20.—Resolutions indorsing the Administrations of Gov. Hughes and President Taft were adopted by the Lewis County Republican Convention to-day. The delegates to the State Convention were not instructed. C. Fred Boshart was renominated for the Assembly.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Republican delegates elected to the State Convention in the Second District of Orange to-day, while they were not instructed, will probably vote as a unit for Vice President Sherman. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the administrations of Taft and Hughes.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Senator George H. Cobb was unanimously renominated for State Senator from the Thirty-fifth Senatorial District in the Republican Convention here to-day.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 20.—At the Tioga County Republican Convention today Assemblyman Frank L. Howard was renominated without opposition.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Organization delegates to the Republican State Convention were elected from Orange County in the convention held here to-day. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the Administrations of Gov. Hughes and President Taft. The delegates were not instructed.

SCHENECTADY, Sept. 20.—Following the Republican primaries to-day, W. W. Wemple announced that the eleven delegates from Schenectady County to the convention at Saratoga would go unpledged to either Roosevelt or Sherman.

BARNES CLAIMS VICTORY.

Says Primaries Have Given Sherman a Majority of Fifty-five.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—In speaking of the result of the Republican primaries to-day William Barnes, Jr., said:

"The result of to-day's primaries ends the contest over the Temporary Chairmanship of the Republican State Convention and gives Vice President Sherman a clear majority of fifty-five votes over both the Roosevelt-Griscom-Greiner faction and the doubtful delegates. Interest naturally centres in the personal element, but there are involved in this situation two principles of great importance to the Republican Party.

"The first may be called 'orderly political management.' Mr. Roosevelt was defeated in the State Committee by a vote of 20 to 15, and then Mr. Sherman was unanimously chosen as the temporary presiding officer of the State Convention. To question that determination on the floor of the convention is equivalent to bolting a nomination. This is known as 'political welching,' and had Mr. Roosevelt defeated Mr. Sherman in the State Committee that would have been the end of that controversy. Mr. Roosevelt has not acted as Mr. Sherman would have done in questioning the unanimous action of the committee. They are equal before the party. Mr. Roosevelt has no superior rights as a man to any other man.

"Secondly, the real contest at Saratoga will be in the Committee on Resolutions. There the party creed for two years will be proclaimed. There must be determined whether the party is to be turned over to 'My Policies,' borrowed from Bryan, or to remain steadfast in the faith which has given solidarity and victory in the past. I have done what I could in the public press to warn Republicans of the Roosevelt danger, and at the primaries to secure delegates who will not rush madly to the worship of false gods. We have won."

Replying to Mr. Roosevelt's denial that he had gone to New Haven to seek President Taft's help Mr. Barnes said:

"The fact that Mr. Roosevelt went to New Haven covers the situation. His speeches in the West would not indicate that he would go to President Taft for anything but help."

McCABE WINS IN ALBANY.

Fitzpatrick Aims Blow at Conners—Other Democratic Fights.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 20.—State Committeeman Patrick E. McCabe retained his place as leader of the Albany County Democrats to-day by winning a substantial majority of the delegates to the county convention. His hardest fight was in the First District, where he got thirty-five delegates to Robert E. Whalen's twenty-seven. In the Second District, which is composed of Albany City wards, the result was McCabe 65 and Whalen 12, and in the Third District, which includes Cohoes and Watervliet, the delegates will stand 60 to 9. This insures the re-election of Mr. McCabe as Committeeman.

Whalen carried five of the ten county towns and three Albany City wards.

Mr. McCabe said that Mr. Whalen had made no better showing than did Ten Eyck two years ago, notwithstanding the liberal use of money to-day in his interest.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Sept. 20.—County Chairman William H. Fitzpatrick sought to make a political coup in the primaries to-day, and the conventions to-morrow will develop whether his efforts were successful. He was allowed to name all the district delegates and the report to-night is that he will endeavor to defeat Mayor Fuhrman for re-election to the State Committee. He will try also to be elected Chairman of the Erie County State Convention delegation.

That honor was apparently conceded until a few days ago to former State Chairman Conners. Fitzpatrick was placed at the head of the county organization by Conners. Fitzpatrick, however, was not allowed to name the City Health Commissioner, and he has a grievance on that account against both the Mayor and Conners. It is understood that Mr. Conners will not be opposed for re-election to the State Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 20.—The Democratic primaries for the wards and towns of Onondaga County were held to-day and this evening. From reports available here at midnight, State Committeeman William F. Rafferty appears to be defeated in two of the three Assembly districts of the county.

Rafferty owes his defeat to the Democratic faction led by Melvin Z. Haven and Haven's triumph to-day means that a big majority of Onondaga's delegates to the Democratic State Convention will be pledged to Mayor Gaynor.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Instructions to vote for Mayor Gaynor for the Democratic nomination for Governor were given the delegates to the State Convention selected by the Second Assembly District Convention to-day.

MALONE, Sept. 20.—John Harding was nominated for Assembly by the Democrats of Franklin County to-day. Delegates to the Democratic State Convention were not instructed.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 20.—There was a warm contest over State Committeeman Arthur A. McLean at the convention of the Democrats of the Second Assembly District of Orange County this afternoon, and anti-McLean delegates to the State Convention at Rochester were selected.

For years Arthur A. McLean has been Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, but an effort is being made to oust him this year. He has secured the delegates from the First Assembly District of Orange County and lost the Second Assembly District, and it is understood that the Sullivan County delegates are against him. This means that he will probably be defeated at the State Convention and will retire from the committee.

The delegates were instructed to vote for William J. Gaynor for Governor and John C. R. Taylor was indorsed for State Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y., Sept. 20.—At the Ontario County Democratic Convention to-day the delegates to the State Convention were not instructed, but they are in favor of the nomination of Congressman James S. Havens for Governor. Sanford W. Abbey was renominated for Member of Assembly.

G. Willard Rice of Geneva is being considered as a possible candidate against Senator Frederick W. Griffith, and John Colmey of Canandaigua is talked of as a candidate for Congress to oppose Representative Sereno E. Payne.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, Sept. 20.—There were contests in only two of the towns in the Monroe County Democratic primaries over local issues. In all of the wards and towns delegates were elected who will chose delegates favorable to the nomination of Representative James S. Havens for Governor.

SCHENECTADY, Sept. 20.—A bitter fight developed in the Democratic primaries here to-day on purely local issues. The revolt was less than twenty-four hours old, when the balloting for delegates began. The organization claims a victory and the delegate to the State Convention at Rochester will go uninstructed.

WOODRUFF STILL HOPEFUL.

Says Sherman Will Win in Convention—Griscom Takes Opposite View.

Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff of the Republican State Committee received returns from the up-State primaries at the headquarters of the committee in West Thirty-ninth Street. With him was Col. Lafayette B. Gleason, Secretary of the State Committee.

The first report that came in was from Westchester County, where the pramaries in Yonkers had resulted in a complete victory for William L. Ward, insuring a solid delegation from Westchester for Vice President Sherman for Temporary Chairman and the entire Old Guard programme.

The feeling of exultation over this result soon gave way to one of gloom as news was received of the defeat of Vice President Sherman in his own district, the Second, of Oneida. The news came over the telephone from former Mayor Thomas Wheeler of Utica, chief lieutenant of Mr. Sherman.

Mr. Woodruff shortly before midnight gave out this statement:

"I have just received over the long-distance telephone returns from the Oneida-Herkimer district, ex-Mayor Thomas Wheeler reports that twenty-three of the thirty-two delegates from that Congressional district will vote with the organization in the State Convention. Both Mr. Wheeler and State Committeeman Daniel F. Strobel, with whom I have also talked over the telephone, express satisfaction with the result in view of the bitter fight which was made on Vice President Sherman in his own district.

"Mayor Wheeler told me that Vice President Sherman would head the delegation to the State Convention from the First Oneida District instead of the Second, where he lives. I have not doubt that he will be elected temporary Chairman of the State Convention by a substantial majority.

"Reports from Westchester County show that every district in Yonkers where primaries were held was carried by the organization, thus insuring a solid delegation of 33 from Westchester County for Vice President Sherman.

"John A. Merritt, the State Committeeman from Niagara County, reports that there were no contests in his district, and that the Niagara County delegation of thirteen would be with the organization. The reports from Albany, Schenectady, Monroe, and Onondaga are all satisfactory, showing complete control by the organization of the 106 delegates from these localities.

"The Second Orange District, with eight delegates; Ulster County, with twelve delegates, and Lewis County, with five delegates, will also send Sherman delegations to the convention as a result of the primaries."

President Lloyd C. Griscom of the Republican County Committee, leader of the Roosevelt forces, received the results of the contests at the Union Club. He said late at night:

"The action of the Republican voters of Mr. Sherman's own ward and Assembly District in repudiating him at the polls will have a profound effect on the party throughout the State of New York. President Taft's letter to me of Aug. 20 fully expressed the misuse of his name, and the deceit by which Mr. Sherman's election as temporary Chairman was accomplished.

"The voters of his own home district have shown their disapproval and voiced in a practical way the general sentiment of the best element in the Republican Party throughout the State. Mr. Sherman cannot now go to the State Convention as a delegate from the district in which he lives.

"I have seen a statement issued by Mr. Barnes at Albany claiming a majority of 55 votes in the convention for Mr. Sherman. This claim is absurd on the face of it. The nine delegates from Mr. Sherman's own district are a clear and unexpected gain, which will further increase the steadily growing majority in the State Convention for the election of Col. Roosevelt as temporary Chairman and in favor of a clean Republican Party management in this State."

gators from the Commissioner of Accounts' office concerning the existence of gambling and other notorious resorts in the city, which was told to Mayor Gaynor, was laid before the Grand Jury by Mr. Mitchel. He was questioned both by District Attorney Whitman and the foreman of the Grand Jury.

District Attorney Gets Evidence.

All the affidavits by Inspectors from Commissioner Fosdick's office were left in the hands of the District Attorney. These statements purported to tell of what was found in various houses in West Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets and in gambling establishments further uptown, which were visited by the Inspectors, acting under orders from Mr. Mitchel.

Mr. Mitchel admitted, after leaving the Grand Jury room, that the evidence gathered by his investigators may not be so strong as that on which indictments were obtained recently for violations of the law in Coney Island.

"It must be remembered," said Mr. Mitchel, "that the investigations by the men from the office of the Commissioner of Accounts was to show the inefficiency of the police, and that evidence which was sufficient to convict in the Coney Island cases might not be considered so strong as applying to the character of places which were entered in Manhattan.

"At Coney Island it was a case for the most part of liquor being sold in a place where a performance was going on. In the cases which are now before the Grand Jury here it was manifestly more difficult for two investigators to get into them than one. However, the matter is in the hands of the District Attorney now, and it is for him to act."

Mr. Whitman was asked if the powers of the Grand Jury were such that it could bring indictments against a police official were it shown that he had neglected his duty in allowing gambling places and other illegal resorts to operate in the city.

"If it should be shown that any official in the public service willfully neglected to perform his duty it is certainly within the power of the Grand Jury to bring an indictment under the Public Office act," he said.

Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick was also before the Grand Jury for a few minutes in connection with the vice investigation. He followed Acting Mayor Mitchel into the jury room, while Mr. Mitchel waited in the anteroom for him. They left the building together and went to the City Hall.

It was learned on good authority that Inspector McClusky will be questioned shortly by the Grand Jury as to whether Commissioner Baker followed out the Acting Mayor's orders concerning an investigation of the vice conditions in Thirty-second Street by calling the Inspector's attention to the matter. Commissioner Baker is also likely to be called before the Grand Jury.

Subpoenas were issued late in the afternoon for the examining Inspectors from Commissioner Fosdick's office whose statements were placed before the jury by Mr. Mitchel.

BENNETT FOR CONGRESS.

J. Van Vechten Olcott Withdraws His Candidacy—Parsons Renominated.

William M. Bennett, the new Republican leader of the Fifteenth Assembly District, was unanimously nominated for Congress at the Fifteenth Congressional District Convention held last night at the West Side Republican Club. The fight which the friends of Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott from that district, who wanted a renomination, prophesied would take place, did not materialize. Mr. Bennett's name was the only one before the convention, and his nomination went through with a whoop. When it appeared inevitable that Mr. Bennett would receive the nomination Mr. Olcott's friends joined in the plea for harmony made by Bennett speakers.

There was no indorsement of the Taft Administration or praise of Col. Roosevelt, but it was said that Mr. Bennett would be in favor of Col. Roosevelt for Temporary Chairman at the Saratoga Convention despite the fact that Mr. Gruber is an anti-Roosevelt man. It was the general opinion of the leaders that Mr. Gruber would get Harry W. Mack's place on the State Committee.

The majority of the other Republican Congressional Conventions in New York County were postponed. Congressman Parsons was, however, renominated in the Thirteenth, his name being presented by Otto T. Bannard. In the Eleventh District, represented by Congressman Fornes, (Dem.,) Henry H. Curran of 312 West Twentieth Street was nominated. The convention adopted a Roosevelt resolution presented by William Halpin, the leader of the Seventh Assembly District.

The convention in the Seventeenth, which is represented by William S. Bennet, a candidate for Governor, was adjourned to await the result of his candidacy. He will undoubtedly be renominated if his "boom" bursts.

In the selection of "Abe" Gruber as a member of the State Committee in place of Mr. Mack, the Old Guard exulted last night in gaining a majority of the delegates from the Fifteenth Congressional District. They claim thirteen out of twenty-three.

"We have thirteen out of the twenty-three delegates signed, sealed, and delivered," declared State Chairman Woodruff.

ROOSEVELT DIDN'T SEEK TAFT MEETING

It Was Arranged by Griscom to Silence Reports of "Break" with the President.

INTERVIEW MOST CORDIAL

President Without Solicitation Hoped Colonel Would Win at Saratoga—Who Inspired Contrary View?

Prompt denial was made yesterday, both by Col. Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, President of the Republican County Committee, of the story emanating from the train on which President Taft traveled West on Monday that the interview the President had with Col. Roosevelt on that day at New Haven had been arranged at the request of the Colonel. It was pointed out to Col. Roosevelt that the correspondents on the President's train had all made the statement that he had sought the interview for the purpose of obtaining help from the President, and that the dispatches all created the impression that he had been turned down.

"Without any suggestion from me," replied the Colonel, "Mr. Griscom asked me if I would be willing to meet the President, and I said that of course I would. He had at first mentioned New York as the place of meeting, but wired me at Syracuse that it would be New Haven, and thither I went accordingly. I sought no help from the President, and made no request of the President, and had no request to make.

"Our interview was most cordial and pleasant, and without any question or request from me the President stated to me that he hoped we would win at Saratoga, and that he had so informed Mr. Griscom, his remarks being in substance those attributed to him in the dispatches from correspondents on the Presidential train. Our meeting was enjoyable in every way, and I was glad I went."

The unqualified statement in all the dispatches from the President's train that it was Col. Roosevelt who had sought the interview was called to the attention of Mr. Griscom as soon as he could be reached yesterday morning. He at once replied that he himself had arranged the interview, and that it was at his request that Col. Roosevelt had gone to meet the President. He declared, further, that there had been no special purpose in the interview, such as that Col. Roosevelt should seek help in the New York situation or any other specific matter.

It was simply Mr. Griscom's idea that it would be a good thing for the Republican situation generally if the Colonel and the President could be brought together for a meeting.

There was so much talk about the incident that later in the day, at Republican County Headquarters, in the Metropolitan Building, Mr. Griscom dictated a formal statement. In this he said:

Mr. Griscom's Statement.

"I suggested to Mr. Roosevelt that he meet and talk with President Taft. Mr. Roosevelt said he would be delighted to do so. There was no mention made by either of us of any purpose in the meeting.

"Mr. Roosevelt asked nothing of the President. The President volunteered to me that he was glad to reiterate his views expressed in his letter to me of Aug. 20 regarding the situation of the Republican Party in New York, and stated to me substantially what has appeared in the newspapers as telegraphed from the President's train. The meeting was most cordial in every respect."

The fact is that a good many prominent and influential Republicans have been thinking for a long time that affairs would be better for their party if there could be brought about at least an outward appearance of closer co-operation between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt. Apparently without stopping to consider exactly the light in which their efforts put the President, these gentlemen have been seeking to persuade Col. Roosevelt to do and say different things calculated to have the effect of making the public believe that he was working with Mr. Taft.

That is the very thing, however, which Col. Roosevelt has deliberately avoided ever since the election of Mr. Taft, for he did not fail to see the construction that would inevitably be put upon his action if he took that course. He would have been accused of attempting to run the Taft Administration, and Mr. Taft would have been charged with submitting to "Roosevelt dictation." On the only occasion when he has been near where the President was Col. Roosevelt went at once and called on Mr. Taft. That was at Beverly immediately after the Harvard commencement. Since then there has been no other occasion for a call.

Having avoided the charge of trying to run the Administration, Col. Roosevelt has now met its seemingly unavoidable complement, that of "breaking" with President Taft. It was to counteract that assertion that Mr. Griscom was working when he set out to bring about the New Haven interview. Mr. Griscom is a progressive Republican, and as such is in hearty accord with the fight Col. Roosevelt is making to take control of the party in this State away from the reactionary Barnes-Sherman-Ward-Woodruff-Wadsworth combination.

At the same time Mr. Griscom is an admirer and strong supporter of President Taft, anxious to do all in his power to strengthen and uphold the Administration. He has not felt called upon yet to express any views on the question of the Presidential nomination in 1912, but it is known that he is in favor of renominating Mr. Taft if the President is then willing to make another campaign.

Who Misled Correspondents?

Holding these views, and being a friend of both men, Mr. Griscom has been endeavoring to bring them together for such an interview as that at New Haven, in the hope, first, that it would have a good effect upon the Republican situation generally, and second, that there would be a special effect upon the local situation. Mr. Griscom knew that a few weeks ago the President was in favor of the proposed reorganization of the Republican machine in this State. On the eve of going to the State Convention and taking an important part in the fight to bring about that reorganization Mr. Griscom naturally wanted to hear President Taft reiterate his views on the subject.

Mr. Griscom would not admit it yesterday, but it is of course apparent, that he expects to make important use of what the President said to him in his dealings with delegates to the State Convention, and there is no doubt that the President's wishes will prove a powerful factor in determining the result at Saratoga next week. Moreover, Mr. Griscom naturally desired to have Col. Roosevelt hear from the President himself what Mr. Taft thought about the fight the Colonel is leading. So he busied himself to bring about the interview and succeeded.

There was much interest here yesterday concerning the manner in which the reports of the interview emanating from the President's train had put a misleading construction upon the incident. But neither Col. Roosevelt nor Mr. Griscom would discuss the matter in any way beyond the statements here quoted.

Roosevelt Promises a Speech.

Col. Roosevelt came in from Oyster Bay yesterday morning, feeling fine, and plunged into work at his office. A good part of the day he put in in signing his name on the insert pages of the autograph edition of his African book. He saw a number of callers, among whom was John A. Stewart, President of the New York League of Republican Clubs.

The Colonel promised to deliver a speech before the meeting of the clubs on Friday afternoon, Sept. 30, immediately after the Saratoga convention, provided the convention is over in time. It will be a progressive speech, of the same character as those delivered on the recent Western tour. President Taft and Vice President Sherman are billed to speak at the dinner of the league at the Hotel Astor on the following evening.

The Colonel was making no predictions yesterday as to the outcome of the Saratoga fight. He had no comment to offer on the estimate of delegates put out on Monday evening by William Barnes, Jr. But it was evident that he is no less confident of success than he has been heretofore. He is not going up to Saratoga until Monday afternoon. A cottage has been taken there for his headquarters, but rooms have been reserved for him in the United States Hotel.

Information obtainable from all progressive sources yesterday was to the effect that it would be an entirely open convention if the progressives control it. Among all the names suggested for the Gubernatorial nomination none has yet developed such strength as to place it surely in the lead. The question of platform is also occupying the attention of the progressives, and they will be prepared to submit some definite propositions when the Committee on Resolutions gets to work.

From the President's Stopping Place.

By The Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Statements issued in New York to-day by Col. Roosevelt and Lloyd C. Griscom, it was said here to-night, called for no reply either from the President or Secretary Norton. It was also added here that the facts in the case speak for themselves.

The conference at New Haven was arranged by Col. Roosevelt's lieutenants, Messrs. Griscom and Bannard. It was arranged with the distinct understanding that the New York situation was to be the subject. The President had shown no disposition to interfere in the fight in New York State since he made his position clear in the Griscom letter. To many of his callers at Beverly the President stated that he was going to keep hands off in New York and would leave the situation in the State to be handled by the State leaders, including Mr. Roosevelt.

That remained the situation at Beverly until the New Haven conference was arranged by Messrs. Griscom and Bannard over the long distance telephone. In response to the request for a conference from Mr. Roosevelt's representatives, President Taft fixed New Haven as the place of meeting, having already made an engagement to attend the Yale corporation meeting there. In a sense this made Col. Roosevelt and those who accompanied him the President's guests.

The meeting was cordial. It appeared to onlookers that it was studied. None of the elemental points of difference between the President and Col. Roosevelt came up for discussion. They were carefully avoided. The time for the interview was limited. Everything was hurried, and even as it was, the President's train had to be held for several minutes.

One of the significant points of the New Haven meeting was that it was arranged for the day before important primaries were to be held in New York State, thus lending color to the effect that the conference was sought with a view to its scenic and moral effect.

Mr. Taft, it can be stated, still has nothing to add to his Griscom letter.

Agreeable Talk, Norton Says.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 20.—Secretary Norton told the newspaper men here after President Taft's arrival that the President had had a "very agreeable" talk with Col. Roosevelt yesterday at New Haven, and that all this talk of their haying split is "just newspaper talk, nothing more."

He would not say what they talked of nor what was the result, but he firmly denied that there had been any difference between Mr. Taft and Col. Roosevelt, because the President would take no part in the New York State contest.

The President himself declined to-day to comment in any way upon the outcome of the conference with Col. Roosevelt.

No Lack of Cordiality.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20.—Reports that there was any apparent lack of the old-time cordiality between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt during their meeting in this city yesterday afternoon, either before or after the luncheon and conference at the home of Henry C. White, on Edwards Street, were deprecated by President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale University to-day, who was present throughout the luncheon. Dr. Hadley said:

"I saw no trace of anything but friendliness in the manner of either of the gentlemen. There was nothing to suggest anything but their old-time cordiality."

ROOSEVELT HEADS DELEGATION

He Is Chosen to Lead Nassau County at the Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Sept. 20.—At the Nassau County Republican Convention held at the Mineola Hotel to-night, Col. Theodore Roosevelt was elected at the head of the delegation of eleven men to represent the county at the State Convention.

A resolution introduced by Samuel Whitehouse of Oyster Bay calling for the instruction of the delegates to vote for the Colonel for temporary Chairman nearly created a riot. Several men made long speeches to the effect that such action would be an affront to the most distinguished member of the delegation and was entirely unnecessary. Finally the resolution was withdrawn amid loud cheers for the Colonel.

Congressman Cocks, a close friend of Col. Roosevelt, will go to the convention as a delegate from North Hempstead.

CLAIMS 150 FOR HAVENS.

Delegates from a Number of Counties for Him, Chairman Says.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Chairman John F. Dailey of the Democratic County Committee said to-day:

"From reports I have received from points in Western and Southern New York the following counties will send delegates to the State Convention favoring the nomination of James S. Havens for Governor: Wayne, Ontario, Yates, Schuyler, Chemung, Steuben, Allegany, Cattaraugus, Orleans, Wyoming, Livingston, Monroe, and Niagara, a total of sixty delegates.

"These, with fifty or more that we will have from counties containing the larger up-State cities, show that Mr. Havens will go into the convention with at least 150 delegates favoring his nomination."

TAWNEY RUNS BEHIND IN MINNESOTA FIGHT

Cannon Lieutenant, Whom Taft Championed, Is Probably Beaten for Renomination.

ROOSEVELT OPPOSED HIM

He Had Defeated the Colonel in the House—Stevens Is Also in Danger in the Primaries.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 20.—Primaries for the nomination of candidates for Congress, Legislature, and county offices were held throughout Minnesota to-day. Interest centres in the First District, and scattering returns indicate the defeat of Congressman J. A. Tawney by Sydney Anderson, a young attorney of Lanesboro. It was in Tawney's behalf that President Taft made his famous Winona speech indorsing the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

This will probably be the only change in the delegation to Congress, although there is a possibility of the defeat of F. C. Stevens in the Fourth District by Hugh T. Halbert.

The fight on Tawney has been the warmest in the State. Anderson was brought out by the Progressive League and few thought he had any chance. He made a better campaign than was anticipated. Tawney's friends admit to-night that he is in great danger. The winner will be opposed by H. L. Buck of Winona, who had a clear field for the Democratic nomination.

Halbert did not get into the fight against Stevens until three weeks ago, but has made a fine campaign. The Stevens people did not see any chance of defeat until two weeks ago. Halbert has been in St. Paul politics for many years, always fighting the machine and steadily losing.

F. M. Nye of Minneapolis had a hard fight with A. H. Hall, but is renominated. Einer Hoidale, Democrat, will give him a good race. C. A. Lindbergh of the Sixth District, an insurgent, appears to be renominated over P. H. McGarry of Walker who is of standpat tendencies.

C. B. Miller of the Duluth district, also appears to be renominated over Alex McKnight. Miller was elected on an anti-Cannon platform two years ago, voted for Cannon for Speaker, but later sided with the insurgents on some questions.

Halvor Steenerson of the Ninth appears to be renominated, although H. O. Bjorge, on an insurgent platform, gave him a good run.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The news that Representative James A. Tawney had probably been defeated for renomination in the Minnesota primaries evokes mingled emotions here, where the Minnesota man has many friends as well as numerous vigorous opponents. It is attributed chiefly to the opposition of Col. Roosevelt, whose open reference to Tawney in his speech at St. Paul two weeks ago today was at once accepted there as bound to have a decided effect on the result of the primaries.

But although perhaps the chief factor in Tawney's downfall the Roosevelt opposition was by no means the only one. Trouble has been increasing for Tawney during several years—in fact, ever since Tawney gave up being an insurgent, five years ago, and took a prominent position on the regular band wagon.

From that day Tawney has been one of the stanchest Cannon men in the House. He was one of the few during the last year of trouble for "Uncle Joe" who had the courage to come straight out and declare themselves as friends of the Speaker to the last. Tawney said openly here that it would probably beat him in his district, but he would rather go down with "Uncle Joe's" colors flying than save himself by denying his friend.

Minnesota is an insurgent State. Tawney tried to go along with the progressives in certain respects, but it was no use. His antagonism to a number of things urgently advocated by President Roosevelt made his way difficult, but his action on the Tariff bill capped the climax. He tried to save himself by a strenuous fight for free lumber, but was not successful in getting it and was promptly accused of having been not at heart really for the removal of the lumber duty. Moreover, his attitude on other schedules counteracted any good effect that the fight for free lumber might have had. Then came President Taft's famous Winona speech, delivered at Tawney's home, in the hope that it would do the Congressman some good. The President went out of his way to praise Tawney and defend the tariff, and the result was apparently only to further antagonize the people of the district.

The last blow to Tawney was delivered, however, by Col. Roosevelt in his conservation speech.

JERSEY REPUBLICANS NAME VIVIAN LEWIS

Though the Regulars' Candidate for Governor, He Pledges Himself to Progressive Reforms.

PLATFORM INDORSES TAFT

With Special Reference to the High Tariff Law—Convention Ends with a Party Love Feast.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20.—Vivian M. Lewis, the present State Banking and Insurance Commissioner, was nominated unanimously late this afternoon as the standard-bearer of the Republican Party for Governor, when the vote between himself, William P. Martin of Essex County, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of Somerset, and Pierre P. Garven of Hudson showed that Lewis had 801⅝ votes. Only 487 were necessary to a selection. Hudson County threw Garven's votes to Lewis before the count was over and the convention broke up in a love feast.

The contention that if the New Idea faction was not placated the Republicans would have hard sledding in this campaign received no encouragement in the speech of Assistant Prosecutor James W. McCarty of Hudson nominating Garvan.

"This convention will name the next Governor," he said. "When we go out of this hall there will only be two parties and two men running, the Republican nominee of this convention and Wilson of Princeton, the Democrat."

The New Idea men have the greatest following in Hudson.

"Lewis has won the New Idea men," say Lewis's friends, "because of his standing with them in obtaining the indorsement of rate legislation in the Public Utility Commission plank of the platform."

The plank was in originally, but ex-Gov. Murphy cast the deciding vote against it early in the morning. Then the insurgents crowded around Lewis, and he sent for the men responsible for cutting this out and in emphatic language insisted that it must be recast in the platform. There was all sorts of pressure brought to bear on Lewis, but he said the people demanded it, and he proposed to be the Governor of the people if he was elected.

He won out in the Resolutions Committee, although it was at first dominated by United States Senator John Kean, Senator Edmund W. Wakelee, and Congressman John J. Gardner, who wrote the platform. Because of this plank there was little fighting over the platform in the convention.

The New Idea faction made a fight for three planks—extension of the direct primary law to the selection of Gubernatorial candidates and Congressmen, the blanket ballot issued to voters before election so that they might mark it intelligently in their own home, and the safeguarding of primary elections by bi-partisan boards. George L. Record offered these amendments to the platform, but the convention rejected them.

All the bitterness which the New Idea men might have felt because of the rejection of these proposals was swept away, the Lewis men say, when Lewis in making his speech of acceptance said that if the people wanted direct primaries for Governor or Congressmen he would in no wise oppose such a desire, and he pledged himself to sign such a bill should it come to his hands or other reform legislation that might be passed, and also he pledged himself to respect in the fullest sense the restrictions put on the Chief Executive by the Constitution, and in no wise seek to coerce the Legislature to his will. When he made these pledges the New Idea men went wild with enthusiasm.

Griggs Nominates Lewis.

When the call of the counties for nominations came and Atlantic gave way to the County of Passaic, John W. Griggs arose to name Lewis.

"This," said Mr. Griggs, "is a Republican convention, with emphasis on 'Republican.' For five times now we have nominated a man who has been successful at the polls. We are here now to do it for the sixth time. The candidate that you name here to-day is the only candidate that Republicans can vote for."

When Essex County was reached Chairman Dalrymple seconded the name of Lewis and Edmund Osborne, Chairman of the Essex County Republican League, took the stage to nominate William P. Martin. Some one called out from the gallery, "I'd like to know what the gentleman's policies are?" When Mr. Osborne was through, George L. Record seconded Mr. Martin's nomination. He entered a plea against the hooting of the delegates and asked for fair play.

The other complimentary nominations which included those of President of the Senate Frelinghuysen and Prosecutor Pierre P. Garvan of Hudson County being offered the vote was called for.

In his speech Mr. Lewis took the ground that the Republican Party was a party of accomplishment and progressiveness, and as such he declared that it should favor the enactment of a law giving the State Public Utilities Commission the power to regulate rates.

"I believe in taking advanced ground upon this subject," he declared, "and am in favor of intrusting to the commission already created power to supervise and pass upon rates proposed to be charged to the public by this class of corporations and empowering the commission to approve or reject them.

For Corporation Regulation.

"I believe the time has come for the State to exercise more care in permitting corporate existence, and that laws should be enacted requiring investigation by competent authority into the purposes and the plans of those who make application for permission from the State to associate themselves into corporate bodies before such license is granted. More stringent provision should be made against overcapitalization and what is commonly known as 'stock watering' and more efficacious means of enforcing present laws against such practices be furnished."

Speaking of the changing political conditions, Mr. Lewis declared: "It may be called a quickening of the public conscience, a progressive political spirit, or what not, but the fact remains that in this increased interest of the general public in political matters will be found a remedy for some of the real difficulties that confront the American people today."

And then, while protesting his loyalty at all times to the Republican Party and his belief that it was to that party that the public must look for good government and for governmental reforms, Mr. Lewis declared:

"I propose, whatever my civic station may be, to ally myself with those of my fellow-citizens, who may be honestly and intelligently endeavoring to better political conditions."

"The State, like the family, must have funds," he said, and he pledged himself to seek an honorable method of revenue, not to curtail the needs of any State institution, and in no wise stop the moneys flowing to the schools, but rather to augment them as the needs of the hour showed necessary.

He favored an early physical revaluation of railroad property and a law compelling those and all other corporations to pay their share of the public tax burden. He further pledged himself to economy of the government, to civil service, and to conserve all of the natural resources of the State.

INDORSE TAFT AND THE TARIFF

Gov. Fort Also Commended by the New Jersey Republicans' Platform.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20.—At the Republican State Convention held here today this platform was adopted:

> Hhe Republican Party heartily approves the Administration of President William H. Taft, and we affirm our loyalty to the President, who has brought to the discharge of the duties of his great office the highest ability and loftiest patriotism.
>
> We commend to the people of this State the results of the labors of the Congress just adjourned, which has passed more measures which contribute to the benefit and development of the country than any other Congress since the organization of the Republic.
>
> We especially commend the protective tariff; it has changed a deficit of $58,000,000 into a surplus of $28,000,000. We indorse the action of President Taft and a Republican Congress in providing an expert and impartial permanent Tariff Board to investigate tariff schedules.
>
> We heartily indorse the Administration of Gov. Fort and approve the wise, progressive, and successful legislation enacted by the Republican Legislature during the term of his office.
>
> True to the pledge of three years ago, the Republican Party has enacted into a law a sane and effective public utilities statute, for the proper regulation of quasi-public corporations.
>
> We favor a statute giving the Public Utility Commission the power to fix just and reasonable rates to be charged by public utilities corporations.
>
> We approve the policy of conservation announced by the President, and we believe, in so far as it is possible, the principles which govern that policy, for the administration of the Nation should apply to the State.
>
> We believe in the principle that an industry ought to bear the cost of personal injuries sustained in the business, and we pledge ourselves to the enactment of a statute in pursuance of these principles.
>
> We believe in the enactment of a civil service law that shall provide for the permanent employment of officials so long as they discharge their duties in a creditable manner.
>
> We favor such amendments in election and primary laws as will make the decision of the people at the elections and primaries easy of expression and sure of execution, and we favor the election of all delegates to conventions under the primary laws of the State.
>
> We heartily indorse the policy inaugurated by the Republican Party of using all revenue from automobile licenses for the repair and maintenance of our splendid system of improved roads, and we advocate such legislation with respect to automobiles as shall be just alike to the automobilists and to the taxpayers of this State, and, also, properly promote the reciprocal relations between this and other States with respect to the use of their respective highways by non-resident automobilists.

In conclusion the platform asserts that it was because the people of the State were "appalled by the widespread corruption under Democratic administration that the Republican Party came into power fifteen years ago, and that the results have been greatly to the advantage of the State."

TAFT IN HOME CITY.

Sees Senator Burton and Other Ohio Senators To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 20.—President Taft reached Cincinnati at 3:10 this afternoon, his Big Four train being an hour and fifteen minutes behind time. He was immediately driven to the home of his brother, Charles P. Taft, who is now in Europe, and will remain in Cincinnati until Saturday, when he departs for Washington. The President was accompanied to Cincinnati by his private secretary, Charles D. Norton; his military aid, Capt. Archibald Butt; one stenographer, and fifteen newspaper correspondents. Only a few of his friends met him at the station, as he had written ahead that he wished no demonstration. There was, however, a big cheer from the thousand or more people who saw him when he came in. In the afternoon he took a long automobile ride in the parks.

This evening the President met Senator Theodore E. Burton of Cleveland, Gov. Glasscock of West Virginia, and several men of prominence from up the State. So far as is known, Senator Dick will not come to Cincinnati, nor will any of the Cincinnati politicians see the President during his stay further than to speak to him to-morrow as he goes about the Ohio Valley Exposition.

Mr. Taft will play golf on Thursday and Friday over the local links.

UNTERMYER WOULD FIX TRUST PRICES

Home from Europe with a Plan for Curbing Corporate Greed by Commission Control.

GERMANY IS DOING IT NOW

While Europe, Mr. Untermyer Says, Looks Askance at Our "Firing in the Air" and Distrusts Our Securities.

Samuel Untermyer and his wife returned from Europe yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm, Mr. Untermyer with a plan of his own for dealing with the trust situation. He made the plan public later in a statement to the newspapers. Here it is:

"It is impossible to ignore the fact that there is a deep-seated and growing distrust of both our political and financial stability throughout Europe. This has become true for the first time in my experience, in England as well as on the Continent.

"Our manifest inability to deal promptly and effectively with corporate abuses from which we are suffering seems to have destroyed their confidence in us. As a result they are afraid of our securities as permanent investments. They are the speculative football of every Stock Exchange in Europe, due to our ignorance of the science of government as applied to the control of corporations. In England, where the most complicated cases are finally disposed of through all the courts in from six to twelve months, they cannot understand our laws' delays and the accompanying unsettling of business. Talk of disbanding or dissolving or scattering the trusts at this late day seems unworthy of consideration. Nobody seriously believes it can be done. Nobody will ever try it.

"For twenty years, under Democratic and Republican administrations alike, we have permitted them to multiply until ness through years, such as has resulted from the pending Government suits against the trusts.

"Everywhere one is asked by thoughtful men of affairs as to the probable outcome of the pending suits and as to the legal effect of decisions in favor of the Government. The idea tha some sort of financial catastrophe is hanging over us seems to have become fixed in their minds from their reading of the ill-considered expressions of our newspapers. It is in vain that one explains that there are no far-reaching results of any kind to be apprehended from these decisions, even if the Government wins; that the results will be largely academic; the property is still there; it cannot be confiscated; it still belongs to the shareholders, and it may at most take on another form.

Grand-Stand Play Leading Nowhere.

"Nothing more trifling or impotent from the standpoint of practical results was ever attempted by a great Government than this political grand-stand play which is bound to lead to nowhere. The idea millions of investors all over the world are interested in them. To select one or two or a half dozen of them as object lessons for sacrifice and leave the others unmolested would be manifestly worse as a Government measure than to leave them all alone.

"If the criminal law had been invoked in time the thing might have been stopped at the threshold. But we are past that long ago. They are with us by the hundreds—almost thousands—not only in the open form of trusts, but in the secret and far more dangerous and insidious forms of 'pools' and 'gentlemen's agreements.'

"The worst part of it is that they are now absolutely uncontrolled by either judicial or legislative authority. The present attack upon them will not and cannot solve the problem for us. They cannot be destroyed. Why not abandon this 'shooting into the air' and try to evolve a rational, businesslike solution through legislation looking to their regulation and control? Now is the time to do it, before the failure of the present campaign is demonstrated.

"Every fair-minded student of the subject must admit that there are grave economic evils in the unchecked domination of any industry by a single corporation or group of individuals. These evils are emphasized in the industries in which it is necessary for the welfare of our people to maintain our protective duties—which is shielding the industries that have built up a home monopoly against competition from abroad. On the other hand, I think we all recognize that the overproduction which comes from unchecked competition and which results in erratic price movements and great waste are evils which the trusts have done much to eradicate, and that in so far as they regulate production according to demand they are of assistance to modern commerce.

"Their greatest danger lies in their power (1) to enhance prices and thus reap abnormal profits; (2) to stifle new competition by piratical methods, and (3) to prevent the development of new inventions. I suggest the following remedy for the existing situation:

His Plan to Curb the Trusts.

"First—Enact a Federal incorporation law such as has already been discussed, under which any corporation engaged in inter-State business may incorporate.

"Second—This law to provide for a commission to fix the maximum prices at which commodities may be sold, based upon an investigation of cost of production, with powers in the commission over inter-State industrial corporations similar to those of the present Inter-State Commerce Commission over railroads.

"Third—Then, having created a refuge for these corporations which are willing to subject themselves to these restrictions, let us enforce the civil and criminal provisions of the Sherman law until every trust has been forced to subject itself to control and allow no other corporations engaged in inter-State business to operate under State charters if they come within the regulations of Congress and can be thus controlled, as most of them can be.

"Fourth—The commission should have power summarily to investigate all complaints of oppression and unfair competition and to direct criminal prosecution and suits to forfeit the charters and disband all corporations so offending.

Germany's Example.

"Germany has already 'blazed the way' for us in dealing with this vexed and complicated problem of legislative enactments which we would do well to study. In May of this year the Reichstag passed a law regulating the potash industry. Germany controls the world's output of potash. It has the only known deposits. There were fifty-four companies owning and operating these deposits. They were producing largely in excess of the demand and as a result they were depleting the deposits without profit. In order to correct this condition, and on the ground that the Government is interested in the conservation of its natural resources, this law was passed. It fixes the proportion of the demand which each corporation is permitted to produce and establishes the maximum price at which it may sell. A court is established which is to reapportion every two years the production of each company, based on the demand the preceding years. Any corporation producing in excess of its allotment must pay a prohibitive Governmental charge.

"An elaborate and most intelligent system is provided for regulating the industry and for protecting the labor employed in the business. It is evident that the Socialist or Labor Party had a most important part in the framing of the law. The permitted production is carefully apportioned between the home and foreign markets in such a way that the home market is not made to suffer.

"The law is a recognition of the evils of overproduction and ruinous competition, on the one hand, and of the necessity, on the other hand, of limiting the exactions of those who control the commodity, so as to protect the public. It is now about to be followed, I am told, by like laws regulating combinations of whisky distillers and manufacturers of electric machinery.

"There is no legal difficulty under our constitutional restrictions that cannot be overcome. It is imperative that we take some practical step without further delay. Neither political party can accomplish anything on the lines as at present drawn. The Opposition can denounce the party in power and make impossible claims and promises, but if given the power it can do no better. Suppose it succeeds in sending the heads of a few of the trusts to jail, (a violent if not impossible supposition, in the light of the experience of the past twenty years,) will that rid us of the trusts?

"It is impossible to again resolve these combinations into their original parts. The next best thing is to treat them as quasi-public corporations; get for the public what is best in them and curtail their power to oppress and levy tribute upon the people. It can be done if we will but substitute sane business reason for wild demagogic denunciation. Thus far we have been playing into the hands of these astute gentlemen. There has been great blowing of trumpets over the accomplishments of the Administration in the courts, but the trusts go merrily on; not one has really been affected or ever will be by such methods as are now being employed."

KINGS JUDGES NOMINATED.

Republicans Support Maddox, Garretson, and Putnam—Democrats Oppose.

The Republicans and Democrats of Brooklyn held their judiciary conventions last night, and the latter also elected delegates to the State Convention in all Assembly districts. The Republicans nominated Justices Maddox and Garretson of the Supreme Court, whose terms of office expire this Fall, and Justice Harrington Putnam, an Independent Democrat, who was appointed to the bench by Gov. Hughes.

The present plan of the Democrats is to nominate three Democrats for Supreme Court Justices. This, it is understood, is against Mayor Gaynor's wishes, but the organization men figure that it will be easy to elect an entire Democratic ticket this Fall.

The suffragettes turned their attention to Brooklyn last night. In the Eighteenth Assembly District six of the representative workers in the movement in Flatbush tried to invade the Republican gathering. They were courteously, but firmly, informed that the convention was a session of regularly elected delegates and they, as outsiders, could not be admitted.

They drove to the Flatbush Democratic Club, where the election of delegates to the State Convention was on. Nearly all the women were allowed to speak, but when they presented their equal suffrage resolution all the delegates would do was to decide that each one of them take a copy of the resolution to Rochester and "take such measures as he should find advisable" for its incorporation in the party platform.

A HARVEY-CASSIDY VICTORY.

Democratic Machine Gets All the Delegates in Queens.

The Harvey-Cassidy combination had no difficulty in swinging the Assembly District conventions their way last night when delegates were chosen to go to the Democratic State Convention. Cassidy headed the list in the First District, Herbert S. Harvey in the Second, and Carl Berger in the Third. Berger, the former Building Superintendent, was driven out of office during the graft investigation.

Harvey, Cassidy, and Berger take with them as associates in the list of delegates some well known politicians. They are Joseph P. Powers, Joseph Meyerose, Marion J. Verdery, Frederick Snell, Carl Voegel, Daniel Enholt, Andrew Capelis, Patrick J. Mara, and Patrick J. White.

An insurgent movement which made an unsuccessful showing at the primaries failed to get a single delegate to the convention.

WILSON UPHOLDS THE LAW.

Public Men That Flout It Defy Progress, He Declares.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the Democratic nominee for Governor of New Jersey, was the chief speaker last night at the dinner given in the Union Trust Building, Jersey City, by the Wilde Gans Club to Hugh Roberts, architect of the new Hudson County Court House, which was formally opened yesterday. Speaking on "Architecture as Typical of the Law," Dr. Wilson said:

"Only those people who are capable of law are capable of order, and only those capable of order are capable of law. When public men flout the law they defy the means of progress. Our courts may be imperfect, and some of our Judges certainly are, as are all of us, but the moment you flout the instrumentalities of the law you flout the instrumentalities of progress.

"The progress of civilization has been proportionate to the capacity of the people for law, not to their capacity for revolution. It will never do for a self-governing people to lose the feeling for a legal polity. The characteristic of all self-governing peoples has been poise, and when I think of the process of politics it seems to me the basis of all politics in almost all instances is law. What the people are now clamoring for is the correction of abuses and the enactment of laws better adapted to the circumstances of the age."

The New Novel by the Author of
"THE MASQUERADER"

MAX

By Katherine Cecil Thurston

A ROMANCE as fascinating and mysterious as The Masquerader—a love-story as unusual as it is beautiful. To give even a hint of the story would be to spoil it for you. Like The Masquerader, it is a perfectly possible story of an apparently impossible situation. In these days of many books, a love-story with an absolutely new plot is almost too much to expect, but that is what Mrs. Thurston has achieved in Max. It is romance—pure romance, yet a story of to-day laid in familiar scenes—and the mystery of it is successfully maintained to the very last page.

WANT HIGHER RATES TO PROVIDE SURPLUS

This Added to Capitalization as Dividend Basis, Illinois Central Vice President Admits.

MORE PAY; LESS EFFICIENCY

So Same Road's Chief Engineer Says at Commerce Board Hearing in Urging Need of Higher Freight Rates.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The question of manipulation of a railroad's income to cover up earnings and to compound its profits was further inquired into to-day by attorneys for the Western shippers at the hearing before Inter-State Commerce Commissioners Clements, Clark, and Lane upon the proposed increases of rates by the Western railways. As on yesterday officials of the Illinois Central were under examination.

Vice President and General Manager W. L. Park of the Illinois Central had told the commission he thought a proper rate to be charged for freight transportation was one which rendered a fair return for service to the shipper, and which, after paying a reasonable dividend on the capital stock, and paying fixed charges and operating and maintenance expenses, would give the company a yearly surplus of six or seven millions "to make the investment attractive to people with money, and to give the company a credit."

"And what would you do with this surplus, just hold it?" inquired Attorney John H. Atwood of Kansas City, Mo., representing the general shippers' committee.

Surplus Used to Raise Rates.

"No," was the reply. "I would use it for bettering the road. For instance, I would devote a part of it to new depots, &c."

"But," asked Mr. Atwood, "when that depot was built you would consider it a part of the actual property of the company, and a proper subject for additional capitalization, wouldn't you?"

"Of course," was the answer.

"Then when you had capitalized later you would say you ought to be entitled to a reasonable dividend upon that capitalization?"

"Yes, Sir."

"Then the simple fact is, you think you ought to be entitled to charge shippers enough to bring in sufficient earnings that you can devote a part to new capitalization and then get a big return on it in the shape of dividends, do you? Is that you idea of what constitutes a 'fair tariff' for the shipper?"

The witness did not answer.

Chief Engineer A. S. Baldwin, who followed Vice President Park on the stand, said that because of the so-called panic of 1907 millions of dollars worth of repairs, new buildings, and "many other expenditures it would have been wise to incur and which it was false economy not to," had been deferred and now demanded attention.

"When I call your attention to figures showing your road had $1,300,000 surplus in 1905 and $533,000 in 1906, will you say it was poor business policy?" inquired Attorney Atwood.

"I don't wish to criticise its management, not knowing all their problems," replied Engineer Baldwin.

Raising Wages Lowers Efficiency.

Commenting on the effect of wage increase on labor, Mr. Baldwin said:

"In ten years we have raised certain workmen's pay 25 cents a day, and as a result we are getting less return for our money. This is particularly true with the negro. The more money he gets, the less efficent he is from our standpoint. Then, too, the more independent a worker becomes, either through unions or otherwise, and the less dependent he feels toward his employer the less conscientious effort he gives in return. It is a safe rule to say that increased wages means less labor efficiency."

Controller M. P. Blauvelt of the Illinois Central had previously been further catechised upon the alleged manipulation of stocks and bonds of his company brought out in yesterday's hearing. The questions related to the company's statement of capitalization, dividends, and bond interest.

Mr. Lyon, attorney for the commission, questioning Mr. Blauvelt as to the correctness of certain items of cash expenditure, brought out mention of the car repair "graft," for which three former officials of the road are now on trial in the Municipal Court. The lawyer referred to a statement that during the fiscal year 1910 22,000 cars of a total of 60,000 were "repaired," and that the discovery of the swindle would take care of the normal increase in wages during the present fiscal year.

"Do you expect the cost of car repairs to be less this year?" inquired Mr. Lyon.

'We certainly do, by about $1,000,000 to $1,600,000,' said the witness. "That was about the excess we paid last year by reason of deferred maintenance and—er—er—other reasons," he added, smiling grimly.

Surplus Needed for Borrowing.

This line was dropped for the time being, and Attorney Horton sought to show by the witness that unless the railroad company is allowed to accumulate a surplus it will not be able to borrow money.

Commissioner Clements asked the witness, "Do I understand you to say that a railroad should be allowed to charge more than a reasonable rate in order to secure a surplus?"

"Oh, no; not more than a reasonable rate."

"If the Dubuque and Sioux City Road, although a subsidiary line of yours, should have a rate controversy," the Commissioner resumed, "it would claim the right to earn 7 per cent. dividends, wouldn't it?"

"Yes," admitted Mr. Blauvelt.

"And you say that the Illinois Central owns about $11,500,000 of the $12,000,000 stock of the Dubuque and Sioux City, having paid, we'll say about $8,000,00 of its own stock for it?"

"Yes."

"Then, do you maintain that the Illinois Central should earn 7 per cent. on the $8,000,000 of its stock, and also 7 per cent. on its Dubuque and Sioux City stock?"

"Not at all; there should be no duplication," replied the witness.

It was after this that Vice President Park was called to the stand. He testified first that whereas the ratio of expenses to income in 1901 was 64.73 to 100, it is now 74.21 to 100, in spite of every effort to economize.

WAR RENDS CLAN CONNERS.

The Only "Chuck's" Sister-in-Law Fined for Assaulting His Sister.

Magistrate O'Connor, in the Harlem Court, yesterday, fined Mrs. Kate Conners, the wife of Frank Conners, brother of "Chuck" Conners, $2 for felonious assault upon Mrs. Elizabeth Miller, sister of the Conners clan. The assault took place last Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Miller, 2,093 Lexington Avenue.

Mrs. Conners, it was brought out, had gone there to get possession of her stepchild, Thomas Conners, 14 years old, who had been living with his aunt since last Summer. There was a struggle between the two women, in which a pistol was discharged. Mrs. Conners asserted that Mrs. Miller had fired a shot at her, but that it went wild. Both women were arrested, and when Mrs. Miller was in the Harlem Court on Sunday Magistrate O'Connor honorably discharged her after she had shown bruises on her neck caused by Mrs. Conners's attempting, she said, to strangle her. Mrs. Conners lives at 13 Mott Street, but her husband lives with his sister Mrs. Miller has taken the civil service examination for police matron.

COULD NOT STOP CHANLER.

Consul Says It Would Have Been Impertinent to Read the Agreement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—United States Deputy Consul General H. C. Coxe somewhat resents the criticisms of American friends of Robert Winthrop Chanler in connection with the signing before him of the ante-nuptial settlement made by Chanler in favor of Mme. Cavalieri Chanler.

"It would be an unpardonable impertinence," he said to-day, "for a notarial officer to examine, unasked, the contents of confidential papers that are placed before him only for certification. I am always careful to ask persons who come before me to sign papers whether they are aware of the nature of the contents. That is as far as my duty goes. Anything more would be grossly impertinent.

"Besides on that occasion Mr. Chanler had with him as his adviser the ablest English lawyer in Paris, a man of the highest character and reputation. I did not myself know the contents of the document, though I surmised the nature of it.

"I may add that I had met Mr. Chanler before his marriage in my own house and had warned him that he should have the legal arrangements in connection with his contemplated marriage well and clearly settled beforehand. Just before he left Paris I saw Mr. Chanler again, and then understood from him that in the pre-nuptial agreement he had given the larger part of his fortune to his wife."

NAILS SUMMONS ON HIS DOOR.

Tailor Who Made Chanler's Wedding Suit Takes That Way to Serve Him.

Notice of service by substitution in the suit brought by William Barnes, a tailor of 233 Fifth Avenue, to recover $987 he says Robert Winthrop Chanler owes him for clothes, including the suit in which Chanler married Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the opera singer, was filed with the Clerk of the City Court yesterday. Barnes began his action against Chanler a week ago, obtaining leave from Justice Delehanty in the City Court to serve the defendant by substitution. The notice of the suit was mailed to the door of Chanler's apartments, 27 East Forty-fifth Street, the next day.

The filing of the notice yesterday means that Chanler will have six days in which to answer the complaint. If he fails to put in a defense then the tailor will get judgment by default. The next step will be an application for the appointment of a receiver for Chanler. It is in connection with this application that the validity of the famous Chanler-Cavalieri pre-nuptial agreement will be tested. If the court names a receiver to take charge of Chanler's possessions it will, it is said, amount practically to a decision that the singer has no legal claim on the goods and chattels her husband bestowed upon her.

The Chanler-Cavalieri ante-nuptial agreement, which was entered for record on Sept. 16, was returned yesterday to Mme. Cavalieri's attorneys, King & Osborn, at 165 Broadway. Register Grifenhagen realized the importance of the document, and it was under guard from the time it was received. A custodian was detailed to watch it by day, while it was being copied, and at night a guard watched the safe in which the document was locked.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Osborn was informed by the Register that the instrument had been completed of record and was ready for delivery to any authorized messenger he wished to send. The attorney for Mme. Cavalieri expressed surprise at the rapidity with which it had been recorded. Mr. Grifenhagen told him that there had been no "expediting," but that it had gone through in its turn under the new plan of recording put in practice several months ago.

IDEAL FOR TIMES AIR RACE.

Curtiss's Manager Hopes for Weather Like Yesterday's.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 20.—"With weather similar to that existing in Chicago to-day, the participants in THE NEW YORK TIMES-Chicago Evening Post aeroplane race could easily cover the first stage of the thousand-mile flight," said Jerome S. Fanciulli, representative of Glenn H. Curtiss, to-night in discussing the contest for which a $25,000 prize is offered.

Mr. Fanciulli was here to confer with the local authorities in regard to arrangements for the aviators to land in South Bend on the first leg of the flight. According to the Curtiss manager, an exceptionally good course exists from Hawthrone race track in Chicago to South Bend, the country being level and comparatively free from obstructions.

Four of the Curtiss aviators are entered in the race.

SUES WABASH BOARD ON STOCK TRANSFER

Pollitz Says Goulds, Gen. Hubbard, and Others Diverted $10,000,000 Worth to Themselves.

THROUGH TERMINAL COMPANY

Directors Declare Pollitz Bought Stock in Bad Faith and Is Suing for an Exorbitant Settlement.

A suit for $10,000,000 against George J. Gould, Edwin Gould, Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, John T. Terry, and other Directors, comprising the majority of the board of the Wabash Railroad Company, was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court of this county with the filing of a summons and complaint with the County Clerk.

James Pollitz, a merchant, of 41 Warren Street, brings the suit. He sets up in his complaint that he owns $100,000 worth of Wabash stock. Pollitz brought an action to set aside an issue of $200,000,000 bonds of the Wabash Company in 1908. This suit was transferred to the Federal courts. Pollitz later dropped it. The present suit is based on the transfer of $10,000,000 of Wabash Railroad stock for an equal amount of the stock of the Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal Company. Pollitz complains that the increase of the common stock of the Wabash Railroad from $28,000,000 to $58,000,000 was part of the plan of the majority Directors to injure the stockholders for their own profit.

The plan, Pollitz and his backers declare, was to get possession of and divide among themselves $10,000,000 worth of Wabash Railroad stock without cost to the majority Directors. This action, he sets up, violated the laws of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, and Illinois, under which the railroad operates. The violation of the Michigan laws, he says, constitutes a felony.

Supreme Court Justice Bijur yesterday granted a motion on behalf of Pollitz for twenty days time to answer a defense interposed by Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, which set up a general denial and in addition declared that the action of the Board of Directors in making the exchange of stock was deemed to be in the best interests of the Wabash Railroad.

The date of the $50,000,000 increase in Wabash common was March 22, 1904. The Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal Railway Company was organized on May 7 following. Pollitz acquired his stock in 1906. Late in 1903, he complains, and early in 1904, the Directors whom he names as defendants were in complete control of the Wabash Railroad, and in conjunction with James H. Hyde, Russell Sage, and others, in direct violation of law and their fiduciary obligations, they conceived and carried out a design whereby the Wabash Railroad delivered $10,000,000 of its stock to the terminal company, without consideration other than the delivery of $10,000,000 of terminal stock. The net result of the transaction according to Pollitz is that the Directors who engineered the plan, divided the stock which the Wabash turned over to the terminal company.

Pollitz charges that this exchange was made to enable the terminal company to give away the $10,000,000 of Wabash stock as the bonus for the sale of its own first and second mortgage bonds to a syndicate of which some or all the individual Directors whom Pollitz accuses of planning the transaction were members. Pollitz says the defendants well knew that when the exchange was made the Wabash stock was not to stay an asset of the terminal company, but that it was eventually and as a part of the original plan to be delivered to them as members of the syndicate.

James Hazen Hyde, Louis Fitzgerald, Myron T. Herrick, Joseph Ramsey, Jr., and George Gould, according to Pollitz, were the managers of the syndicate. He says that in contemplation of the organization of the terminal company, which was heavily advertised as designed to break the monopoly of the Pennsylvania Railroad on transcontinental traffic out of Pittsburg, it was agreed between the members of the syndicate and the majority of the Board of Directors of the Wabash Railroad that the terminal company would deliver its $13,400,000 of first mortgage bonds, and $20,000,000 of second mortgage bonds to the syndicate for $20,000,000 cash, and in addition transfer to the syndicate $10,000,000 of Wabash Railroad stock. Pollitz charges that the bonds alone were worth $22,000,000 in the open market at that time and the Wabash Railroad stock was purely a donation.

The answer of Gen. Hubbard sets up that Pollitz did not acquire his stock in good faith, and has brought this action for the purpose of harassing and annoying the defendants with the object of compelling them to purchase his stock at a figure above the market value.

URGE STRAUS TO CONTINUE.

Women Social Workers Say Pasteurization Should Be Extended.

A letter containing a copy of a set of resolutions passed at a recent meeting of social and philanthropic workers, held at the Colony Club at the call of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, deploring the decision of Nathan Straus to close the infants' milk depots, was mailed to Mr. Straus yesterday. It was resolved at the meeting that a committee should try to obtain a conference with Mr. Straus. The letter said:

"We appreciate your long and sustained efforts to bring about the pasteurization of city milk supplies and to reduce infant mortality thereby, and we recognize that the pasteurization of milk is a public health measure of great importance. We believe that your depots should be continued and their work enlarged."

The committee consists of V. Everit Macy, Abraham Jacobi, Homer Folks, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. Among the signers of the letter were Florence J. Harriman, John H. Finlay, President of City College; August Belmont, Robert W. De Forest, Theodore Dreiser, and R. Fulton Cutting.

TWO OF BOSTOCK'S SONS WED

One Ceremony at the City Hall, the Other in Jersey City.

James Gordon Frederick George Bostock, eldest son of J. W. Bostock of Brussels, the international animal showman, and Claude Bostock, the youngest son, were married in two States at the same hour yesterday.

James Bostock went to the City Hall with Miss Mathilda Wehrle, the daughter of George Wehrle, a Pittsburg hotel man, and procured a marriage license. His sister, Miss Gertrude Bostock of 610 Riverside Drive, accompanied the pair as a witness, and an Alderman married them. Mr. Bostock said he had known Miss Wehrle ever since he moved to Pittsburg with his family from London as a boy, and that they had been schoolmates together. Miss Wehrle only recently left a convent, where she had been studying.

The other brother, meanwhile, applied to a magistrate in Jersey City, with Miss Irene Dillon, an English comedienne, whom he met several years ago in London, and who is now playing at the Colonial Theatre. His mother accompanied them as a witness. After the ceremony, Mr. Bostock said, they would make their home at the Hotel Remington.

The brothers are in the motion picture and animal show business. Mr. and Mrs. James Bostock will sail on the Adriatic for Europe to-day.

Drops the Name Van Norden.

Supreme Court Justice Whitney signed an order yesterday authorizing the Van Norden Safe Deposit Company to assume the name of the Lenox Safe Deposit Company. The reason assigned was the same as in the case of the Van Norden Trust Comapny, which recently became the Lenox Trust Company, that Warner M. Van Norden, founder of the company, had retired from the management of and from the interest in the company.

Oscar Hammerstein Sails To-day.

Oscar Hammerstein will sail for London to-day on the Mauretania. He said last night that he was going to discuss the plans for his London Opera House. He will return to New York in two weeks, and goes back to London in January.

CITY BREVITIES.

The management of the Iron Steamboat Company, in recognition of faithful and capable performance of duty by its employes, has placed the steamer Grand Republic at their disposal next Sunday, and they will have an observation trip up the Hudson, probably past the North Atlantic fleet which is likely to be at anchor in the river. The steamer will continue without stop from the last embarking point and return to the city before nightfall.

The Congregation Bnei Rappaport, through the efforts of its members, inspired by their President, Morris Ravner, has succeeded in completing a new synagogue at 207 Seventh Street. Preparations are being made to open it next Saturday evening and dedicate it on the following afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Hebrew Orphan Asylum Band will play.

Augustus M. Herring, partner of Glenn H. Curtiss, the aviator, and formerly publisher of The American Aeronaut, was sued in the First District Municipal Court yesterday for $276 for the printing of the third and last issue of the revived magazine. Justice Wilson reserved decision.

The New Sheer Silks

IN THE world of style Silks have taken on a fashion importance unsurpassed by any previous season, but of course you must choose the proper weaves or you are just as far from being correct as if you should choose a piece of muslin.

The demand, among the very smartest dressers is centered in the filmy weaves—those soft, gauzy, draping Silks, that lend themselves to such artistic folds. Used over a foundation of Crepe Meteor or Satin the combination produces a richness the effect of which must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Our showing of distinct and exclusive ideas in Chiffon Voiles and Marquisettes is superb, giving one an opportunity to satisfy any want from the most delicate pastel tints to the strong solid colors. We direct special attention to our exposition of thin bordered changeable effects so delicate that we are reminded of Marco Polo's description of silk fabrics when he called them "woven wind."

Importing these Silks direct and eliminating intermediate profits we are able to put our prices down to where the saving is pronounced.

40 to 45-in. Marquisettes and Chiffon Voiles, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00.

SCHOOL INCREASE IS 18,065.

But the Number of Part-Time Children Is Only 663 More Than Last Year.

Dr. W. H. Maxwell, City Superintendent of Schools, announced last night that on Sept. 16, 698,933 pupils had registered for the new session. This is an increase of 18,065 pupils over those registered last year. The actual attendance this year shows a still greater increase. The pupils present on Sept. 16 numbered 624,688—32,839 more than a year ago.

The number of pupils on part time is somewhat smaller than was anticipated—53,816 for all schools. In elementary schools last Friday there were 53,476 children on part time—an increase of 663 over Sept. 15, 1909. In High Schools part time pupils decreased by 630. This is due to the opening of an annex to the Morris High School in the Bronx.

HARMON AND OTHER BALLOONISTS SAFE

The New York Descended, After a Stormy Trip, in Ohio on Sunday Afternoon.

THE AMERICA II. SHOT AT

Allen P. Hawley Certain That Somebody in Ohio Fired Twice—His Journey Otherwise Exciting.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—The last of the thirteen balloons which started in the American championship and free-for-all races at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Saturday afternoon has landed.

The New York, of which the pilot was Clifford B. Harmon of New York, landed near Portsmouth, Ohio, at 5 P. M. on Sunday.

The Miss Sophia, William T. Assmann of St. Louis pilot, came down at 6:10 P. M. on Sunday in the mountains of Calhoun County, West Va., miles from any railroad or telegraph office.

The Buckeye, J. S. Wade of Cleveland pilot, descended on a mountain near Showalter, Va., at 7:30 A. M. yesterday.

The three competitors who will represent America in the international meet to be held in St. Louis on Oct. 17 will not be known until the Aero Club of America passes on the reports of the pilots. It is probable, however, that the America II., the Buckeye, and Miss Sophia will be the successful balloons. Miss Sophia's distance is estimated at more than that of any other entrant in the race from Indianapolis.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—Albert Bond Lambert of St. Louis, who represented the Aero Club of America as the starter of the balloons at Indianapolis on Saturday, said to-day that distance alone is to be taken into consideration in deciding the three winners, who will participate in the internatoinal race.

"Duration and altitude will not be considered by the Aero Club of America in deciding the winners," said Mr. Lambert. "Distance is the point which will decide them."

The anxiety which was beginning to be felt in regard to the safety of Clifford B. Harmon and Capt. Thomas Baldwin of this city, who ascended in the balloon New York at Indianapolis on Saturday afternoon in the elimination race for the coming international contest, was dissipated yesterday morning, when Capt. Baldwin arrived in this city and went to the headquarters of the Aero Club, and Mrs. Harmon received a telegram from her husband.

Capt. Baldwin was surprised that the news of the safe descent of the New York near Portsmouth, Ohio, at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon had not been transmitted to New York. He said that the journey of the balloon was one of the most stormy that he had experienced in all his career as an aeronaut. Every hour of the trip was hazardous, he said. There was wind, rain, and lightning. A thunderstorm on Sunday afternoon, in the course of which the aeronauts threw out all their ballast in an effort to rise above the disturbance, was the cause of their descent, which was made without accident.

The balloon, which was hauled, with the assistance of farmers of the neighborhood, to Portsmouth, will be brought back to New York. Mr. Harmon has not yet returned home. He is staying for a few days in Dayton, Ohio, his birthplace. He will attend a celebration and deliver a lecture on aviation there to-morrow, and will give a demonstration of flying at which Gov. Harmon of Ohio will be present.

Allen P. Hawley, who piloted the balloon America II., was also back in this city yesterday. He said he had a very exciting trip. He and his companion, Augustus Post, also of New York, were shot at in the course of their voyage, were nearly in collision with a train, and only just saved themselves from descending in Chesapeake Bay. Also they were several times in peril of losing consciousness, owing to the high altitudes they reached.

Mr. Hawley could not explain why, in passing over Noble County, Ohio, at a height of 3,000 feet, two shots were fired at the balloon, but he is certain that this occurred.

$5,000 FOR ALTITUDE PRIZE.

Belmont Meet Offer to Aviator Who Reaches Height of 10,000 Feet.

Chairman J. C. McCoy of the Aviation Committee of the international meet at Belmont Park, Oct. 22 to 30, announced yesterday the offer of a $5,000 prize for any aviator who reaches an altitude of 10,000 feet or more in the international meet. This is in addition to the grand altitude prize of $3,000 offered by the Aviation Committee for the aviator who attains the highest altitude in the meet, and also the additional prize of $1,000 if such altitude constitutes a record.

The present record is 8,409 feet. Chavez, the Peruvian, attained a height of 7,546 feet on Monday in his effort to fly across the Alps. This is within 863 feet of the record, and it is believed that this record will be eclipsed during the meet at Belmont Park. Mr. McCoy in announcing the prize declined to name the donor, but said he was a patron of the science of aviation. He said he felt certain that the prize would be won.

GRAHAME-WHITE ON ENGINE.

Aviator Travels So from Boston to New London—Meets Aviation Men Here.

Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, arrived in New York yesterday and will meet the officials of the international meet to be held at Belmont Park Oct. 22 to 30, to-day for the purpose of arranging to fly in the tournament. Grahame-White is named as one of the representatives of the Royal Aero Club of Great Britain to compete for the international aviation championship on Oct. 29. The Contest Committee is desirous of obtaining his entry for the daily events which will be held during the tournament.

In the recent aviation meet at Boston Grahame-White won more than $20,000 in prize money and outclassed the American competitors in his Blériot machine. He has been engaged to fly daily during the Brockton (Mass.) Fair, the first week in October.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, Sept. 20.—Leaning out of the cab window of the big locomotive hauling the Knickerbocker express, Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, rode into this town this afternoon. The courtesy of a ride on an engine was extended by the New Haven Road to Mr. Grahame-White. While the train stopped here he chatted with the newspaper men and posed for a photographer.

"I'm just seeing the country," he said, "and it has been a delightful ride."

Mr. Grahame-White rode on the locomotive from Boston to New London. There he was met by a friend, and proceeded to New York by trolley.

ALPINE FLIGHT DELAYED.

Weymann and Chavez Are Waiting for Favorable Conditions.

BRIG, Switzerland, Sept. 20.—To-day's weather was unfavorable for flying and the cross-Alps aviation competition was again delayed. Snow fell in the mountains during the night, and this morning a strong wind was blowing through the Simplon Pass and rain fell.

The American, Weymann, and George Chavez, the Peruvian, who were forced to give up their flights yesterday, after struggles with adverse air currents, remain on the field, prepared to set out for Italy at the first favorable opportunity.

WELLMAN FEARS COAST WINDS

Thinks His Airship Will Have Easy Sailing Once He's Well at Sea.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 20.—Walter Wellman and Melvin Vaniman, who are putting the finishing touches on the big airship America, in which they will shortly make a dash across the Atlantic Ocean, news of which will be sent directly by Marconi wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The Chicago Record-Herald, and The London Daily Telegraph, said to-day they were more anxious about the coast winds than those they would strike after they were two or three days out.

They are anxious for some yacht owner to offer his services as a convoy to the big airship for the first day or two of the voyage. The trip in the airship is, of course, in the nature of an experiment, and there can be no doubt that the first day or so will cause the greatest mental and physicial strain on the aviators. The winds along the coast are always more or less fluky and far harder to combat in an airship than the straight winds which will be made far out on the sea.

Mr. Wellman said to-day that he and Mr. Vaniman had at first considered asking the Federal Government for a cruiser to act as convoy to the airship for the first leg of the journey, but when they looked into the matter and learned of the red tape which would be necessary to such a course, they abandoned the idea.

But Mr. Wellman would not be averse to accepting the tender of some fast private yacht as a convoy to the airship. He says it would prove interesting to the owner of the yacht and any guests he might select to accompany him. The airship will be equipped with a wireless system, and with the yacht being so equipped also they could be in constant communication.

The yacht, however, would have to be a fast boat if she kept in touch with the airship for more than two days. The aviators expect to develop a high rate of speed after they get away from the coast winds, and the boat that sails the ocean and keeps up with the big airship will have to be one of the swiftest in existence, says Mr. Wellman.

He said to-day that he had recently received from Prof. Willis Moore, Chief of the Government Weather Bureau, a letter, in which that official said he was preparing special bulletins, and that as soon as the aviators were ready to begin their trial trips he would telegraph daily what the weather conditions would be for a day or two in advance.

Prof. Moore, in his letter to Mr. Wellman said that the bureau had begun the compilation of the barometric radients, which indicate the wind and weather, and these he will give to Mr. Wellman whenever he was ready for them.

Mr. Vaniman's work did not progress as rapidly to-day as he had hoped. He had fully expected that by to-night he would have the car fastened to the big gas bag and that it would hang suspended instead of lying in the cradle of the floor hangar. But in this he was disappointed. He will not be able to get the car hung before sometime late to-morrow. It will, therefore, be several days before the big airship is ready for a trial trip.

A GREAT AVIATION CIRCUIT.

To be Organized Next Year in England, France, and Belgium.

BOULOGNE, Sept. 20.—The international conference of French, English, and Belgian national aerial leagues has decided to organize a grand aviation circuit in the principal cities of the three countries in August, 1911.

Prizes amounting to $60,000 or more will be awarded.

A feature of the scheme will be the holding of short meetings at various places through which those taking part in the circuit will pass.

Headquarters for Aeronautic Reserve.

It was announced last night that John Barry Ryan had offered the use of a house in New York City to the Aeronautical Reserve, which was organized last week at Boston. The house will be furnished and it is intended to make it the headquarters of the organization models. Aviation literature will be furnished for the members of the Aeronautic Reserve, and several thousand dollars will be spent on the building.

TO LET US PUNISH RULLOW.

Russia Not to Ask Extradition of Robber of Tiflis Post Office.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 20.—The Foreign Office, after a conference with the Minister of Justice to-day, decided to waive the claim of extradition in the case of Andrew Rullow, the music teacher, who was arrested in Boston on Aug. 13, charged with participation in the theft of Government notes which were being carried in a wagon from the Imperial Sub-Treasury at Tiflis to the Post Office there.

The Russian Consul at Boston has been instructed to bring a civil suit for the recovery of fourteen notes for $250 each, which are said to be in the possession of Rullow or to have been negotiated by him.

The bulk of the 200 notes, each of 500 rubles ($250,) stolen at the time of the robbery in 1907, is said to be in America. Three cases are known to the Foreign Office of Russian emigrants in America who forwarded their savings to friends in Poland, and unwittingly purchased some of the stolen paper. The recipients were not prosecuted, as they established their innocence in the matter.

The remainder of the series of notes has been destroyed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The waiving by Russia of her right to extradite Rullow appears to be based on Article V. of the treaty of extradition of 1893 between the United States and Russia. Under this article it is optional with the country holding a fugitive to surrender him if at the same time he is liable to punishment under the law of the country holding him.

There are Federal as well as State statutes making the receiving or concealing of stolen money or goods a crime, so that Rullow is as much subject to process here as he would be if turned over to Russia. At the time of Rullow's arrest 15 of the 200 notes, worth 500 rubles each, were recovered.

FLORENCE BURNS IN BOLD "BADGER" GAME

Woman Who Was Tried for Killing Walter Brooks Arrested with a Man for Blackmail.

AGED FATHER WEEPS AT NEWS

Urges the Police to Keep the Name Off the Blotter, as He Had Too Much Notoriety.

Florence Burns Wildrick, who, ten years ago, when she was Miss Florence Burns of the Bedford Avenue section of Brooklyn, was tried for the murder of Walter Brooks in the Glen Island Hotel in Cortlandt Street and freed after the jury had disagreed, was arrested yesterday on a charge of robbery and attempted blackmail. Edward H. Brooks, who says he is not related to the Brooks who was murdered, and who lives at 365 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, was arrested a short time before the Bpurns woman and was held by Magistrate Steinert in the Jefferson Market Police Court in $3,000 bail on a charge of extortion. With the Burns woman, Brooks, according to Charles W. Hurlburt of 39 Seventh Avenue, tried to blackmail him through the "badger" game in a house in West Twenty-fifth Street, and succeeded to the extent of getting all his ready cash, $57, and compelling him to sign notes for sums much in excess of this.

Brooks's arrest occurred in Twelfth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, and was occasioned by Hurlburt, who stopped Policeman Hewitt of the Mercer Street Station, and, handing him a revolver which he drew from his pocket, told the policeman that he had been carrying it as protection against Brooks, who was following him. Hewitt arrested both men, but Magistrate Steinert discharged Hurlburt on hearing his story. The Burns woman was arrested by Central Office detectives in her rooms at 224 West Twenty-fifth Street.

Hurlburt told Magistrate Steinert that on Sunday night he had received a telephone call from a woman whom he had met a few times before, and that at her request he met her and went to her rooms in Twenty-fifth Street with her. There two men, one of them Brooks, presently broke into the room, said Hurlburt, gesticulating with large bottles which they carried and threatening to kill him if he didn't give up his ready cash and sign several papers.

To save his life, Hurlburt said, he signed the papers and gave up his $57. The men kept him in the room from 9 o'clock Sunday night until 6 o'clock Monday morning, said Hurlburt, when they made him enter a taxicab, telling him that they were going to ride around at his expense until the banks opened. The ride extended as far as Yonkers, Hurlburt, according to his story, being bound and gagged all the while. Finally they stopped at Hurlburt's home, and here he managed to get out of the cab and escape into the house. He encountered Brooks, he said, while walking through Twelfth Street.

According to the police, they found several papers signed by Hurlburt in Brooks's possession, among them a note for $500 in favor of Brooks and the second man, not yet arrested.

The arraignment of Brooks was his second appearance in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning. He had been charged by a chauffeur of a taxicab with not paying his bill. Apparently the cab was the one in which Hurlburt alleges that he was forced to ride, as the chauffeur said that the trip included a ride to Yonkers and back to the Tenderloin, where his fares all skipped out without paying him. Brooks told the Magistrate that he was ready to pay his share of the bill if the two other members of the party were made to pay, too. Magistrate Steinert discharged him after issuing subpoenas for the other two men. The chauffeur caused Brooks's arrest on meeting him by chance in the street.

At the time of this arraignment of Brooks nothing was known of the other charge against him and the Burns woman, so no attempt was made to hold her when she hurried into court a moment or two after Brooks left, inquiring eagerly for him and anxious to learn the outcome of his case. She hurried away on learning that he had been discharged.

Brooks denied the charges made against him and said that he was engaged to marry the Burns woman as soon as she could get a divorce from Wildrick, her present husband. He said that he had trapped Hurlburt once before with his future wife, and that on Sunday, when he had come on the couple again, Hurlburt had signed the papers voluntarily.

The Burns woman corroborated this story to the extent of telling the police that Brooks was very much in love with her, and that if he did the things that Hurlburt charged he did them to frighten Hurlburt into staying away from her. She denied that there had been any attempt at blackmail. The police are looking for the man alleged to have attempted the extortion with Brooks, and say that they expect to arrest him before morning.

Frederick Burns, father of the Burns woman, visited the Elizabeth Street Police Station last night, and asked Lieut. Von Diezelsky to allow him to see his daughter. The Lieutenant told him it was impossible, and then the elderly man, with tears in his eyes, asked the Lieutenant to keep the name "Burns" off the police record.

"Enough notoriety has been brought to my name," he cried, "and I should like to be spared this additional humiliation."

HOWELL FOR CARNEGIE TRUST

President of Fourth National Bank of Nashville to Head Trust Company.

Announcement was made yesterday at the offices of the Carnegie Trust Company that Joseph B. Reichmann would retire as President on Oct. 15, to be succeeded by Joseph T. Howell of Nashville, Tenn.

President Reichmann said yesterday that when he took office upon the occasion of the retirement of the late C. C. Dickinson earlier in the year, it was with the understanding that he was to retain the Presidency only until a permanent successor could be found. He said that he would remain in the Directorate and would probably continue as Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Howell has been associated for thirty-one years with the Fourth National Bank of Nashville, rising from the ranks to its Presidency, which he now holds.

FOR WIDOWED MOTHERS.

15,000 Appeals for Funds Sent Out to the Jews of the City.

Fifteen thousand appeals for funds have been sent out by the Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, an organization for helping widows keep their own homes, and it is planned in the course of the next year to reach upward of 100,000 Jews in all walks of life in the city.

The campaign for new members is being aimed at principally the middle class Jews rather than the very wealthy. It is expected that the appeal will be generously answered because of the impending Jewish holidays, during which orthodox as well as reformed Jews are traditionally very liberal in their donations to charity.

The appeals point out that the association is the only organization in this country devoted exclusively to the interests of widowed Jewish mothers. Its only purpose is to keep intact the homes of widowed mothers who are efficient but poor. Each family is provided for promptly and adequatey in accordance with a standard of living that preserves the health, happiness, and self-respect of all its members. A group of members visits and keeps in touch with the families, and by helpful sympathy and intelligent direction brings hopefulness into the lives of the mother and her children.

Membership in the association is $1 a year; any larger sum makes the giver a membership donor. Contributions may be sent to Mrs. A. J. Mayer, Financial Secretary, 312 West Ninety-ninth Street.

POSTAL CLERK SURRENDERS.

Levi Goodman, Who Fled After Stamp Theft, Gives Himself Up.

Levi Goodman, wholesale stamp clerk in the Madison Avenue Branch of the Post Office, was arrested yesterday on an order made by United States Marshal Henkel on the complaint of Post Office Inspector Hugh McMillan, charging the embezzlement of $1,088 in stamps and money. The date of the embezzlement was Sept. 10. The accused man was taken before United States Commissioner Gilchrist and sent to the Tombs in default of $2,500 bail.

Goodman, who is 53 years old and had been in the postal service for twenty-four years, disappeared on Sept. 10 coincidently with the discovery of the theft of stamps and money. Yesterday he telephoned to the Post Office Inspectors that he was ready to surrender, and an hour later appeared at Marshal Henkel's office and gave himself up.

After his arrest Goodman gave no explanation of his theft, and the Inspectors are at a loss to account for a motive, for he was not a drinking man and had lived quietly with his wife and family. He handled in the neighborhood of $5,000 a day through sales of stamps.

NO PRICE-CUTTING IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Steel Corporation, Judge Gary Declares Officially, Will Not Wage War with Independents.

SAYS BUSINESS FLOURISHES

No Reason to Expect a Change in This Respect—Exports Are Large and New Orders Are Considerable.

After the close of the market yesterday Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, cleared the atmosphere of the vague apprehension of a possible renewal of aggressive price cutting in the steel industry, such as occurred early in 1909. He issued a statement, which, after denying that there was any justification for the reports which Wall Street has been fed on recently, took occasion to call the situation "on the whole, satisfactory."

The prices of the principal steel commodities have been tending downward for some months, and although the quotations are still above the level reached in the Winter of 1908-09, when undercutting by the independents induced the Steel Corporation to abandon all semblance of established prices, the fact that each day this week has brought new low levels in such staples as sheets, plates, structural shapes, and billets, had given rise to the apprehension that, as in February, 1909, the corporation would meet the undercutting of the independents by a price war, in which it would go out for business at any price.

Judge Gary's statement, which was given out at his office at 5 o'clock, was in response to a number of requests for a statement of the corporation's attitude toward the price situation. It reads:

> There is no justification for the statement purporting to originate in Pittsburg that a wide open cut in prices of steel is likely to occur before the end of the week. It is well known that the new business offered at the present time, though quite large, is less than the total producing capacity. If the railroad companies were buying as much as usual, or up to their necessities, the mills would be crowded.
>
> There has been a shading of prices of some of the commodities by a few of the smaller producers. However, the principal manufacturers are disposed to maintain fair prices and to co-operate so far as they may legally and properly do so. As usual, there has been an effort for stock jobbing or other improper purposes to greatly exaggerate, if not misrepresent, the facts.
>
> On the whole, the steel business should be considered satisfactory, and I see no reason to expect any change in this respect. Indeed, there has been a slight improvement during the last few days. Our export business is exceedingly good, being at the rate of at least 25,000 tons per month in excess of the export business of last year.

The persistence of stories of price cutting in the steel trade had an unsettling effect on the shares of the Steel Corporation yesterday. After opening at 67⅞ and rising to 68¼, the price of Steel common dropped to 66⅛. The stock was by far the most active on the list yesterday, and after transactions of 111,500 shares the closing price was 66¾.

Luxurious and Stately Furniture

THE Drawing Room, as distinguished from the "Parlour" of Ante-Bellum days, craves in its furnishing a certain degree of luxurious stateliness.

This is to be found in our Reproductions of authentic examples of the period of Louis XV.

Among them, for instance, is an entire Suite of noble proportions, whose gilded carvings enhance the faded harmonies of its Beauvais Tapestries. There, too, are marble-topped Console Tables, and Banquettes of gilded cane work; Bergères bespeaking a certainty of comfort, and Screens whose originals were carved by the celebrated Berain.

Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.

That you may better realize the extreme values of the Suits and Fall Overcoats shown by Smith Gray & Co. at $15.50 your attention is called to these facts.

Any wholesale concern making clothes even approximating the fineness of Smith Gray clothes cannot sell their very cheapest quality at a price which would permit of their being retailed at less than $20.00.

The lowest priced garments Smith Gray & Co. make could not be sold under $20.00, were it not that we are our own manufacturers, which makes possible our regular lowest price, $18.00.

That these $15.50 suits and overcoats are better than those usually found in other stores is perhaps best proven by the fact that they are better in quality of fabric, fineness of tailoring and excellence of style than is usually found under $25.00.

POLICEMAN RISKS HIS LIFE IN VAIN

Strength Deserts Him After Getting One Boy to a Pier—Forced to Abandon Another.

BOTH BATHERS ARE LOST

Rescuers Finally Haul the Policeman Out—Frantic Mothers and Children at the Scene.

Five little boys instead of going home to dinner yesterday went at noon to the foot of East Third Street, where there is an open pier alongside of Hencken & Willenbrock's coal yard. One of them, Harry Brodski of 476 East Houston Street, a six-year-old lad, could swim a little, and he promised Herman Strum of 156 Goerck Street, who was half a year younger, a ride on his back if he was not afraid to come in, too.

The pier is at least ten feet above the surface of the water. There is no possibility of making a landing except through a hole in the piles, and the water is deep. In a few minutes the two lads had stripped off their clothes, left them in charge of their comrades, and let themselves into the water.

Mrs. Mary Schreiber, wife of the Captain of a coal barge moored at Hencken & Willenbrock's wharf, saw what the boys were doing, and feared that an accident might happen. It is a favorite place for men and boys to swim, but she had never seen such small lads go in alone with no help in sight. Everybody had left the pier for the dinner hour, and Mrs. Schreiber feared that if the boys did get into trouble there would be no one to go after them. So she kept her eye on them, and saw in a few minutes that they were beginning to tire.

They made for the one place in the pier where they could climb up to the hole. They were swept back by the tide, which was now on the ebb, and their strength began to fail them.

A teamster was on the pier feeding his horses, and to him Mrs. Schreiber called. He ran along to the front of the river, and came on Patrolman Edward Conrad of the West 125th Street Station, who was on strike duty near by. He told him that two little boys were drowning, and the policeman ran to the pier. He stopped only long enough to throw off his coat, and then sprang in. He went for one of the boys, who is supposed to have been Brodski, and caught him. He turned and swam to the side of the pier, but found it impossible to climb up the piles, covered, as they were, with grease and mud.

The boy was either dead when Conrad reached him, or became unconscious from exhaustion as he hung to the piles. He slipped from the patrolman's grasp and slid back into the water. All Conrad could do was to catch him between his legs and hold him there while he used all his remaining strength to avoid being swept away by the tide.

Meanwhile one of the little boys who had not gone in ran up the street, crying for help. He was going to the home of Brodski to call his parents. Michael Haggerty of 1,012 Avenue A, a fireman on the municipal ferryboat Bronx, which was tied up close by, saw him coming and knew that something had happened. He ran down to the pier, and found that the policeman was in imminent danger of drowning. Without taking off any of his clothes he jumped in to his aid and managed to reach him before his hold on the piles relaxed.

Haggerty knew nothing of the drowning boy, and had all he could do to help the patrolman. He was himself becoming exhausted when some one threw him a life buoy and a boat put out from the J. M. Scherman Ship Yard, at the foot of East Third Street, and rescued them. Haggerty and Conrad were hauled aboard, and as the policeman was hauled in the body of the lad slipped from between his legs and sank.

No one all this time had thought of the second boy. But as soon as the policeman was saved, Mrs. Schreiber called out that there was another boy and that he must have been drowned, too. By this time a large crowd had gathered, including hundreds of school children and women. They saw that with the boys who had been watching their bathing comrades, were two suits of clothes, and one after another of the mothers, in fear and trembling, turned them over to see if they belonged to one of her own children.

At length Mrs. Strum came up looking for her boy. She had taken him to the kindergarten that morning and had been expecting him home for dinner. When he was three-quarters of an hour late she started out to find him, and recognized his clothes. As she did so and learned that he must be in the water, she had a fit of hysterics, and her cries and lamentations could be heard all around the pier.

A number of the men employed in the ship and coal yards dived repeatedly for the bodies of the boys, as long as there was any hope of resuscitating them if they could be brought up. But they were not found. The dock was dredged all the afternoon before a curious crowd of onlookers, but the tide had carried the bodies away, and the search was unavailing.

APPROVES OPIUM CONGRESS.

Britain Agrees to American Plan—Holland to Arrange Details.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Ambassador Whitelaw Reid has cabled to the State Department from London that the British Government agrees to the projected opium conference, but makes several conditions as to preliminary inquiries by the various powers. The opinion is expressed in the British answer to the American invitation that it may be impracticable to fix a date for the conference until later on.

It is understood at the State Department that the Government of China, a most important factor in the proposed conference, may not be ready to participate in it for at least a year.

Now that the United States has obtained the acceptance of the plan in principle by all the powers, the arrangement of the details will be left to the Government of the Netherlands.

Government Extends Period in Which It May Be Imported Duty Free.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—Advices were received here to-day to the effect that the Mexican Government has decided to extend indefinitely the period in which corn may be shipped into Mexico free of duty.

The duty was taken off nearly a year ago, next Sept. 30 being fixed as the date when it should again be effective. More corn is needed to relieve the shortage of grain in different parts of the country.

It is expected that the duty will be restored as soon as this season's crop of Mexican corn is harvested.

BIG FRENCH LINER LAUNCHED

The France Second in Size Only to the Giant Cunarders.

ST. NAZAIRE, Sept. 20.—The steamship France, built for the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique for its New York-Havre service, was launched here today. The France is the largest ship in the French merchant marine. She will be second only in size to the Lusitania and Mauretania.

The construction work has been done with great expedition, as the keel was laid down on April 20, 1909. The dimensions are: Length over all, 722 feet; beam, 76 feet; depth, 52½ feet; displacement, 26,000 tons. The turbine engines will develop 40,000 horse power. The vessel will have a speed of 23½ knots, and the voyage will occupy less than six days.

The France will carry 27 officers and a crew of 555 men. She will have accommodation for 530 first-class passengers, 440 second class, and 1,050 third class. She will be fitted with the latest wireless system, and her furnishings will be of the most sumptuous kind.

The France will require nearly a year to complete, and therefore will not enter the service until next Summer.

A feature of the France will be a system of wine cellars, each cooled to the exact temperature at which the famous French vintages are best kept. Another feature of the vessel will be a boulevard café, which is to extend along the uppermost deck for a distance of about 300 feet, a promenade in the middle being so arranged as to give the whole the appearance of a Parisian café of the boulevard type.

There will be two palm gardens, one for the saloon passengers and the other for the second cabin. There will also be Turkish baths, a gymnasium, and four dining rooms, two for the saloon and two for the second cabin passengers. The smoking room will be one of the finest on the Atlantic.

ALIENISTS DECLARE MRS. MARTIN INSANE

An Official Inquiry Now Asked by Lawyers for Mother Accused of Murdering Ocey Snead.

CASE GOES TO A NEW JUDGE

Gummere, Too Busy, Transfers It to Ten Eyck—Brother and Sister Also Sign the Petition.

A sensational turn was taken yesterday in the murder case of Ocey W. M. Snead, who was found dead in a bathtub in a house at East Orange, N. J., last November, when a petition declaring insane Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, mother of the victim, who is jointly charged with the murder with Mrs. Mary Snead, was filed with Chief Justice Gummere in the Essex County Court House, in Newark, N. J. The petition was signed by Mrs. Martin's brother, the Rev. Albert G. Wardlaw, and her sister, Mrs. Bessie Spindle. Attached to the petition were two separate certificates signed by Dr. Walter S. Washington of Newark and Dr. Henry A. Cotton of Trenton, N. J., who is the head of the New Jersey State Insane Asylum, declaring Mrs. Martin insane.

Chauncey H. Beasley, one of the lawyers for the defense, presented the petition, which was a complete surprise to the Chief Justice.

"This is a case of whether a woman should be confined in a jail or in an asylum," Mr. Beasley began. "Mr. Chandler W. Riker and myself have carefully considered all the details of the case, and, with the relatives of Mrs. Martin, believe that she is not now in her right mind. If it is decided that this petition cannot be granted we ask a speedy decision on it."

When the reading of the petition was finished, Justice Gummere asked if the Prosecutor's office was represented. Being informed that it was not, a hurry call was sent out for Louis Hood, a special counsel, who is in charge of the Snead murder case on account of the illness of Prosecutor Mott. Upon his arrival Mr. Hood said that if the defense wanted Mrs. Morton's insanity passed upon by the courts this would be granted immediately.

Chief Justice Gummere announced that the petition would have to be referred to Judge Jay Ten Eyck to-day for decision. He said that when the case came up for trial he would be busy in the Court of Errors and Appeals and therefore could not sit through the proceedings. An answer must be returned by Judge Ten Eyck inside of fifteen days. He can either hear testimony himself or impanel a jury of twelve men.

The sanity trial will assume all of the appearances of a regular trial, as the prosecution will have to cross-examine witnesses produced by the defense, and will likely be compelled to put witnesses, experts, and others on the stand to make their contention that Mrs. Martin is not insane stand good in the opinion of the court and jury.

Dr. Washington's certificate, which is dated Sept. 12, says:

> I, Walter S. Washington, M. D., of the City of Newark, do hereby certify that I have made a personal examination of Caroline B. Martin at the Essex County Prison; that I am of the opinion that the said Caroline B. Martin is insane and a proper person to be committed to and confined in the Essex County Hospital for the Insane or other suitable institution for the care and treatment of the insane.
>
> That I am not the Superintendent or proprietor or an officer or regular professional attendant or financially interested in said hospital, nor am I a near relative or guardian or trustee of the said Caroline B. Martin.

Dr. Cotton's certificate is similarly worded.

Following the filing of the petition Samuel Kalish, of counsel for the defense, declined to say whether a similar move would be made on behalf of Mrs. Mary Snead. He said that he would wait and see the result of the present application. No examination has yet been made as to the sanity of Mrs. Snead.

The police of East Orange were not surprised to learn of the application by counsel for Mrs. Martin for an inquiry into her mental condition. That the defense would eventually introduce the insanity plea was expected.

The attempt to prove Mrs. Martin insane is apt to be complicated with features that are unique for such a test, inasmuch as it is commonly believed that the police contemplated charging her with exercising hypnotic influence over Ocey Snead. It is also believed by the police that she strongly influenced Miss Wardlaw, her sister, in the jail, and that her suggestion induced her sister to starve herself to death.

The question therefore arises, according to Mrs. Martin's friends, how could an insane woman exert such a mental influence on another person presumed to be sane?

SHOT A MAN DEAD, THEN LIT HIS PIPE

Septuagenarian Killed a Sailor in a Quarrel Where Whisky Sells at 5 Cents.

THE "HOUSE OF FOUR SIGNS"

Prisoner Little Concerned Over the Shooting When Locked Up as a Murderer.

A few doors off the point where Broad Street ends at the water front in South Street is a saloon the principal outdoor ornaments of which are four green shield-shaped signs. The first one reads, "Whisky 5 cents," the second "Jamaica rum 5 cents," the third, "Brandy 5 cents," and the fourth "Gin 5 cents."

In this "house of four signs" there congregated yesterday afternoon the usual sordid crowd of derelicts and sailors without jobs. It was noisy as usual, and when some of the "third-rail contingent," as they are sometimes called, got a bit excited nobody took any notice, for it is a common occurrence in the saloon of five-cent signs.

Two men were just a little noisier than the rest. One of them, now dead, was Patrick Donohue, a deep-sea sailor, the other was John Johnson, who said he was nearly 70 years old. Donohue abused Johnson roundly, and finally struck him with his fist.

"And what did you do then?" a policeman asked the old man.

"I just shot him," answered the old man, as if it were of little consequence.

It was about 5 o'clock when Policeman Sager of the traffic squad, who was on duty at the ferry across the way, heard the report of a pistol. He ran across the street and into the saloon in time to see Donohue reel and fall to the floor. He was dead before he struck the floor.

The place was packed, and some of the derelicts were still clinging to the bar for support when Sager went in. Johnson was standing near his victim with four other men. These four Sager ordered into the rear of the saloon.

"I want you for witnesses," said Sager, as Lieut. Hoffman of the traffic squad and three other policemen entered the saloon.

Crowds gather quickly in South Street, and within five minutes after the shooting the street was jammed with an excited throng of men and boys. The police cleared the place of all but the four witnesses and took Johnson into a barber's shop next door to await the coming of the patrol wagon. The old man lit his corncob pipe and smoked away, showing less concern over the shooting than he would over a pinochle game in one of his South Street haunts. He was the most unconcerned man there, as he climbed into the patrol wagon and was taken to the Old Slip Station to be locked up charged with murder.

"Did the old man say why he shot the sailor?" Lieut. Hoffman was asked.

"He said something about being slapped, but that was not the reason," answered Lieut. Hoffman.

"What was it, then?"

"There it is," answered the police Lieutenant, pointing to the four signs that told about the brandy, gin, whisky, and rum that sells for 5 cents a glass.

After the murderer and witnesses had been taken to the station house the Coroner permitted the body to be removed. Then the doors of the saloon of the four signs swung wide again and traffic went on as usual.

The police said the man who owns the saloon, which is at 12 South Street, is Isadore Grabschriff.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The White Sox won their sixth straight game to-day, beating the New Yorks, and made a new season's record of consecutive victories for themselves. Furthermore, they won their third successive shut-out victory. The score was 3 to 0, and the hero in chief was Frank Lange of Columbus, Wis. There was a time when it looked as if Frank was going to tie Rube Waddell's strike-out record. He fanned thirteen, three short of Rube's mark, but he at least tied one record by retiring the side twice on strikes.

The two hits the Yanks got off Lange were clean. He gave two bases on balls, but was so effective that the tally the Sox gleaned in the first round would have been plenty if Lange hadn't decided to become a batting hero as well as a pitching one.

Lange fanned all the Yanks who would stand for it, and the only ones who wouldn't were Birdie Cree and Charley Hemphill, who came up to hit for Criger in the eighth and was passed. The hits were made by Harry Wolter and Frank Laporte, and Lange got even with both of them ere it was over. In the third inning Vaughn, Criger, and Daniels took the count on strikes, and Daniels, Wolter, and Chase were successive victims in the sixth inning.

The New York infield kept right on playing flashy ball. Knight and Austin made errors, both of them costly ones, but they also accepted difficult chances, a lot of them, and didn't loo bad even when they were slipping. The boot of Bert Daniels, in the opening inning, cost something, too, but the Sox might have scored without it. But the New York infield wasn't the whole show, nor did it play opposite Lange. The latter's leading man was the Sox inner defense, in which Kippy Zeider and Harry Lord shone dazzlingly. Kippy's stop and throw in the ninth inning was the masterpiece of the fielding. It took a hit away from Wolter, and averted the remote possibility of a rally. Wolter already had one of the two singles to his credit. Not satisfied with that, he tried for another in the ninth inning. The ball shot almost directly over second base. Kippy dashed for it, speared it with his glove, turning all the way around in the effort, and pegged to Mullen so fast that Charles just had time to throw up his hands.

Lord's and Meloan's hits in the first inning combined to count the tally that folks thought was going to be the only one. He singled to left and slipped to second while Daniels was trying to pick up the ball. Zeider's sacrifice was perfect, and so was Meloan's base knock, a line drive that violated the speed limit laws as it sailed past Knight. Lord walked home on it. Dougherty forced Molly, and was caught stealing.

Knight and Austin blew up in the eighth inning. The former booted McConnell's fast one. Mullen bunted. Laporte was slow in covering first base, and when he did get there Austin threw into the first base stand instead of to him. This sent Mac to third base and Charles to second. Payne hit to Laporte, and he took second base and Mullen third while McConnell was being run down. Then Lange lifted a little fly out of everybody's reach over second base, and Mullen and Payne brought in the last two runs of the game, after which Lord beat a grounder to Knight and Zeider hit into a double play.

Laporte's hit came with one down in the second inning, and he had to stick around first base while the next two died. The fourth inning already has been discussed. Cree walked in No. 5 round. Austin forced him, and made up for it by stealing second. Criger fanned, and Vaughn lifted to Chouinard.

No one else got on base until the eighth inning, when Hemphill, batting for Criger, drew a base on balls. One was out at the time. Vaughr fouled to Payne and Chouinard took Daniels's long fly.

SHEPPARD TO QUIT I. A. A. C.

Famous Athlete Said to be Considering Move Because of Ill-Feeling.

Amateur athletic circles were somewhat disturbed last night over a rumor that Melvin W. Sheppard, the crack middle-distance runner, would withdraw from the membership of the Irish-American Athletic Club. Those who are close to the Olympic champion stated last evening that he had withdrawn his entry to the games of the East End Democratic Club at Dexter Park on Saturday as a member of the club and would compete unattached.

There are various rumors about the reason for "Shep's" disruption with the organization whose colors he has carried to the front in so many races. It is stated that officials of the Irish-American Club have tried to place the blame on the runner for the failure of the Irish club to win the metropolitan championships at Travis Island last Saturday. It will be remembered that Sheppard arrived too late for one of the events, and in another of the events in which he faced the pistol he dropped out because one of the opposing runners beat the gun at the start.

Sheppard says that he has heard various rumors about the reasons for his failure to appear for the meet on time, and he declares that these stories are entirely erroneous. It was stated that he asked for a vindication or explanation from the Irish-American Club officials, and because it was not forthcoming he has threatened to withdraw from the club. None of those concerned in the controversy could be found to discuss the rumor last night.

Fast Sloop Altair Sold.

The fast forty-five-foot sloop Altair, owned by the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company of Bristol, R. I., has been sold, through the Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency, to Edward Monahan of Boston. The Altair, which was formerly owned by Cord Meyer of New York City, is 74 feet over all, 14 feet 3 inches beam, and 10 feet 4 inches draught. She is one of the fastest racing yachts in the country. The Altair will be sailed by Hollis Burgess next season, and will be raced along the Eastern coast and in Long Island waters.

HAL CHASE MUST GO OR STALLINGS WILL

Yankees' Manager Coming Here to Request Release of First Baseman.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Manager George Stallings of the New York Yankees will leave to-morrow morning for New York to issue an ultimatum to Frank Farrell, President of the club. Stallings will demand that Hal Chase be released from the team and will resign as manager unless this request is granted.

The Yankees' manager's decision is the result of a feud between him and the star first baseman that has been on since mid-season. It is said that Chase, acting with the idea that he would succeed Stallings next season, has been "laying down" and not giving the team his best effort. This is Stallings's idea of it. Chase denies that he knows anything about Mr. Farrell's plans, and also denies that he has not played the best ball of which he was capable.

When the Yankees were in Detroit on their second trip West Chase left them and went home, pleading illness. Some of his team mates and New York baseball writers allege that he played with Andy Coakley's semi-professional team under an assumed name. When he rejoined the club the battle between him and Stallings grew warmer. Most of the players stuck to their manager and Chase became unpopular with his team mates.

The trouble reached its climax in St. Louis when Stallings, it is said, openly accused Chase of trying to throw a game. Hal resented this, and the pair almost came to blows. Members of the New York team prevented a scrap, but some of them went after Chase when the Yankees were beaten here Monday.

Stallings will tell his story to Mr. Farrell, and unless he changes his mind will resign immediately unless Hal is disciplined. This problem may prove a hard one for Mr. Farrell to solve, as Chase is considered at least as good as any first baseman in the big leagues and is a great drawing card. Men in touch with the team say that he had been selected to manage the Yankees next season, so Stallings's visit with his boss may result in Chase's being appointed at once.

JOHNSON MEETS LANGFORD.

Champion and Sam Threaten to Fight, but Ends in Talk.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 20.—Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, and Sam Langford, his most persistent challenger, met in the ring of the Armory Athletic Association to-night, and after fifteen minutes of the fastest joint debate ever heard at the club, decided to post $20,000 each to-morrow morning to bind a match between them.

The meeting between the heavyweights was by accident. Johnson appeared during the ninth round of the Jimmy Walsh-Young Britt bout. The crowd called for a speech. Johnson climbed through the ropes and Langford was right after him. The men glared at each other and then turned their backs.

Langford said he was ready to meet Johnson "at any time, any, place, for any amount.."

Johnson retored he was ready to cover $20,000 if Langford would put it up. Johnson started the crowd by pulling a huge roll of bills from his pocket and, waving it aloft, shouted, "My money talks." The encounter was called a draw.

PHIL McGOVERN WHIPPED.

Joe Coster Outpoints Terry's Brother in All but One Round.

Phil McGovern, a brother of the one-time famous "Terrible Terry," did not show the same form last night in his bout with Joe Coster at the Fairmont Athletic Club as his brother did when he was a knight of the squared ring, and, despite his gameness, was completely outpointed by the Brooklyn bantam in all but one round, this being the second, when McGovern had a slight advantage.

Coster's ability to cover up and shift about the ring baffled McGovern and he constantly landed his clever left jab to the face that upset all the plans of his opponent. McGovern played for the body steadily throughout the contest with the hope of getting over a knockout punch, but he was always met in his attack by the clever blocking of Coster, and every attempt proved futile.

STETSON

London—Paris—New York—where you will—Old World or New—wherever good hats are sold, the Stetson is the standard hat—the acknowledged class, the quality, the style correct.

Made by the premier hat organization of the world—the Stetson plant in Philadelphia surpasses in completeness of equipment any other hat producing plant to the identical degree that its product—the Stetson hat—excels in superiority of workmanship, masterly care of detail and in general excellence any other hat made.

Other hats may give good service—but the Stetson hat will withstand more and harder usage than any other hat made.

Other hats may now and then show some unusually clever style—but always in the Stetson range will be found its equal and usually its superior.

Now and then you may find particularly good quality in another hat, but you will always find a better quality in the Stetson hat, because the Stetson is the standard of hat quality.

And these are but a few of the reasons why you will find the Stetson hat on sale in the better hat shops the world over. The quality is the same wherever you may find it—but in the Smith Gray stores the assortment is more varied, the range wider than perhaps in all New York.

JOAN'S WORLD'S RECORD.

Four-Year-Old Filly Trots Two Heats in 2:06¼ Each at Columbus.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 20.—Joan, four years old, owned by David Shaw of Cleveland and driven by M. McDevitt, to-day became a world's champion trotter for mares of her age when she defeated Dudie Archdale in a grueling race for the Hoster-Columbus Stakes, the last ten-thousand-dollar prize that the Grand Circuit has to offer this year. Both heats were done in 2:06¼, time never before made by a trotter of Joan's class. Dudie Archdale won the last heat in 2:06½.

The Geers mare was the original favorite at $100 to $75. She tried trailing Joan in the first heat, and was stalled off at the finish, the final quarter being trotted in 0:29¼. In the second heat Dudie Archdale was sent away in front and led for the greater part of the mile. Joan had speed enough in reserve to come on when necessary, and the two were not as closely lapped as in the first heat. The pace set by Dudie Archdale in the last heat was faster than in the second. It told on Joan, and she was not able to brush it out successfully. Joan won $4,167 and Dudie Archdale $3,333.

Hallworthy's breaks in the first two heats of the Columbus Stake, worth $3,000, ruined his chances of becoming a winning favorite. The race went to Startle, a Toledo horse, which Hallworthy beat in the final mile by steady trotting.

Independence Boy, winner of the 2:11 pace Monday, entered the 2:09 pace to-day as a strong favorite, and the result was never in doubt, as he did 2:06¼ three times with apparent ease.

Hoppe Accepts Daly's Challenge.

Willie Hoppe, the champion 18.1 and 18.2 balkline billiardist of the world, who is at present at Ridgefield Park, N. J., read the challenge of Maurice Daly for a match at 18.1 with Ora Morningstar, which was printed in THE TIMES on Monday morning. Hoppe's answer follows:

"I see by the morning papers that Maurice Daly, on behalf of Ora Morningstar, issues a challenge to George Slosson and myself to play a 2,400-point match at 18.1 balkline billiards, six nights, at his academy at Forty-ninth Street and Broadway, for either a $250 or $500 side bet. Of course, the last-named sum would be more suitable to me, and you can state for me that I accept this challenge, providing that satisfactory arrangements can be made, and also, that this match is to take place not later than Oct. 3. My friends can rest assured that I will be in fine stroke for both the proposed match with Mr. Morningstar and also when I defend my title on the night of Nov. 2 against Mr. Slosson for the championship of the world at 18.1 balkline billiards."

VANDERBILT RACE ENTRIES.

Four More Announced for Two Events—Drivers Out for Practice.

Two more entries for the Vanderbilt Cup race and two for the Wheatly Hills event were yesterday announced by the Motor Cups Holding Company. A third National car has been entered by the Poertner Motor Car Company, and Louis Disbrow has been engaged to drive. Disbrow will try out a new demountable rim of his own invention—the Jordan—in this race. The other car named for the big event is an Amplex, a 1911 valveless stock model, entered by S. J. Wise & Co. It will be driven by Walter Jones, a twenty-year-old boy, who has had considerable experience in hill climbs and twenty-four-hour contests. Jean Juhasz will pilot the S. P. O. Wheatly Hills entry was made by Thomas N. Cook of Greenwich, Conn. The pilot for the Correja, entered by J. Mora Boyle of New York in the same event, has not been named.

Jones in the Amplex and Leland Mitchell in the Simplex were the first and only drivers on the course yesterday morning. Jones made a lap on the 12.64 miles circuit in 11 minutes 52 seconds, from a flying start, traveling at a rate of 64 miles an hour. Mitchell made a lap from standing start in 12 minutes 18 seconds. The dirt road sections of the course have been perfectly rolled and oiled and are in fine condition—in fact better than for any previous contest held on it, while the cement portion is perfect. Twenty-five flagmen, with red and white signal flags, were on duty.

COSTS AND THE LAW.

President McKinley and Speaker Reed have high claims to be considered the original insurgents, and well it would have been with the Republican Party if it had heeded advice which would have kept it out of its present dilemma. For seven years as President Mr. Roosevelt neglected McKinley's dying words regarding the ripeness of time for reforming the excesses and abuses of protectionism in the interest of that broadening of trade which is the economic salvation of this country's industrial future. And Speaker Reed's last words are not less illuminating regarding another problem which is an even more difficult sum for the Republicans to do. Foreseeing the impassé into which his party was rushing as the century was opening, Speaker Reed directed against its trust policy all the shafts of his scorn. "It is simply ridiculous," he wrote, "for a party of men to meet in a room and attempt by passing resolutions to change the great laws which govern affairs in the business world." And as a climax of his last public writing he added: "Do you expect the public to be intrusted with the cost sheets?"

Exactly this incredible and impossible thing is the cornerstone of the Republican policy on both the tariff and the regulation of railways to-day. The worth of railway transportation to the buyer is to be decided by the cost to the seller, and is to be enacted as law. The best tariff we have ever had is to be perfected by proportioning its rates to the cost of the imported commodities, in relation to the cost of the domestic goods. The rate of customs is not to be such as to give excessive profits. Only reasonable profits are to be guaranteed by the new tariff statute. It would seem unnecessary to suggest the impropriety and impossibility of this proposal of legislation, but President Taft is now laboring with the task which President Roosevelt shirked so long, although committed to attempting it by every consideration of the popular mandate and the peculiar sacredness of his relations to his own predecessor.

The antagonism between costs and law is inherent and irremovable. Law is universal, public, and permanent. Costs vary for every producer, are never the same two years together, and are of the highest privacy. The attempt to yoke these two into an economic team is unwise, were it feasible. It is not well to make statutes of the same fluctuating character as the effects of economic laws, which are immutable in their principles, but constantly shifting in their manifestations. It would not be well if it were possible to make economic factors as permanent and universal as statutes should be. Ever since men have produced and consumed, and bought and sold, there have been alternations of demand and supply, with alternations of cheapness and dearness. And it requires no prescience to foresee that it will be so to the end. It is a maxim in the world's money market that "10 per cent. will bring gold out of the earth," and it is equally true that one per cent. will drive it back again. "Dollar wheat" is an incomparable fertilizer. We have a bumper corn crop this year because it was dear last year, not because of scarcity, for the number of bushels was large, but because of a demand which outran a large supply, and so increased this year's yield. It is equally true of every other object of human desire. The Republican objective is the fixation of railway rates and other costs of production by statute. It is equivalent to a repeal of the law of supply and demand by a gathering of a few men in a room and the passage of resolutions. If it could be done it would result in immobility of prices, which is the same as the blocking of enterprise. It is an economic impiety comparable to the building of another tower of Babel with the object of escaping from the flood of evils sure to result, and now in the process of resulting, from such folly.

Observe the futilities which have followed the attempt to execute such statutes. Railway rates steadily declined through a series of years until the beginning of the attempt to make them lower by uneconomic methods. They have since turned upward, and may be expected to go higher with each additional impediment to the increase of the supply of what is wanted. The two certainties in the situation are that the demand for transportation has not reached its maximum, and that the supply is not being increased. The country will go without new railways until the profit gained by furnishing them overcomes the legal impediments to increasing the supply. This is the interpretation of the declining prices for railway stocks and bonds.

It is the same regarding the attempt to regulate commercial profits by the tariff. The President is submerged in impossibilities the moment he attempts to wrestle with the cost question. Take the iron industry. Whose costs and profits are to be taken as standard? There are no two concerns, nor even any two places of production, whose costs and profits are the same. And how are these costs to be ascertained? As Speaker Reed asked, are the cost sheets to be ascertained by process of law, and published? Is there any merchant who will submit to this in his own case in order that it may be inflicted upon his business rival? If these are incredible suppositions in the case of domestic producers, what shall be said of the task of ascertaining them in alien and unfriendly countries? It is as preposterous as the lawful guarantee of profits. Costs and profits are interrelated economically. The attempt to fix them in legal relation is the same as putting commerce into cold storage.

THE CRUISE OF THE TARPON.

"What fearest thou, churl? Thou carriest Caesar." In such vernacular terms the Colonel might have chided and braced up the skipper of the motor boat Tarpon as she skimmed and plowed the angry seas all the way from Oyster Bay across the Sound. But, in truth, that mariner had just warrant to quake inwardly, and to let pallor temper the hue of his bronzed cheek. The Tarpon is a mere shell. She is, moreover, a motor boat, a species of craft that has a notable propensity for going to the bottom; in addition to which it is subject to breakdowns, blowups, and conflagrations. A forty-mile gale was blowing and the Sound was misbehaving itself. The situation, as it were, was fraught. Even the owner of the Tarpon asked the skipper if it was "all right." That experienced person evidently had his doubts. He first glanced at the blackening skies, and then at the churned-up waters. Only after that inspection of the weather signs did he venture to observe: "Well, we may make it."

May make it, indeed! A man of iron would have trembled in such a situation. If the skipper was scared it was not for himself but for his country. Had the adventure ended in mishap what would have become of us? Who then would have been left to stir up the sluggish moral impulses of our people? The backslide would have been sickening. We should have fallen again into the grip of the corporations, into the clutches of the interests. Rebates would have been restored. Trade would have been shamelessly restrained. Monopolistic combinations would have been formed every hour in the day. Men formerly lost in sin who have lately professed repentance would have had an awful relapse. Uplift would have been without a champion.

It is shocking to think of the resultant goings on in this and other communities. Malefactors of enormous wealth would have emerged from the guilty splendors of their palaces to dance publicly in the highways. The chief men of the "interests" would have built bonfires in Wall Street. They would have shouted in fiendish glee. But out on the plains of Kansas, all through the Mountain States, the demand for sackcloth would have stripped the market bare, and ashes would have risen to a premium. The wailing of Wyoming would have answered to the sobs and lamentations of Idaho. There would have been no comforting the people, bowed and broken by their sense of irreparable loss.

Since these things must not be, since we cannot have them so, the Colonel must be careful. To be sure, the Tarpon bore up and landed her precious passenger at Stamford, whence in safety he made his way to New Haven, a town which the archaeologists have not very successfully attempted to identify with Canossa, where the contumacious Henry got off his high horse and bent an humble knee before Gregory VII. But the voyage was venturesome. It was even perilous. The Colonel must not take such risks.

POOR MR. BALLINGER.

Just how far does Mr. Roosevelt's "new Nationalism" extend? It has leaped State boundaries—we all know that—in its assumption of power to tax the charters of all State-made corporations and to fix the rates charged by public service companies within the States. But it will be news to some folks that it has crossed county boundaries, too, and, especially, that the hardly entreated and much-belabored Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Ballinger, has acceded to this extreme of paternalism. In a bill, which he himself drew up, it is proposed "to provide for the conservation, development, use, and control of water power in the public domain." Section 8 of Senate bill No. 5,486 prescribes:

> That the proceeds derived from entry fees and leases under the provisions of this act shall be distributed as follows, to wit: One-third shall be paid to the State or Territory, to be expended under the direction of the Legislature thereof, for roads and schools in the counties where the leaseholds are situated, and the residue shall be covered into the general fund of the Treasury of the United States.

The "new Nationalism" has gone fast and far, indeed, when it undertakes to provide by Federal edict "for roads and schools in the counties" of the country. There is nothing in the Federal Constitution that sanctions such paternalistic meddling with the school and highway systems of the States.

The States are competent to organize and support these systems. The States charter the power companies. They fix the rates which the citizens of the States must pay for electric current. They are at expense in extending their police powers over the whole business of local public service. The States are entitled, not to a beggarly one-third of the tax upon the companies' earnings, this to be used in any restricted way the proponents of the "new Nationalism" prescribe, but to the whole of it, to be dedicated to such uses and spent in such ways as appeal to their sovereign pleasure and necessity.

But what of Mr. Ballinger? In what mental state could he have been when he yielded to this extreme suggestion of Pinchotism? Mr. Ballinger has been beaten and drubbed and cudgeled until, it would seem, his legal faculties have forsaken him. As the drafter of this bill his plight seems pitiable.

CALL UP MR. DRISCOLL.

When your grocer cheats you, call up the Mayor's office, 8020 Cortlandt, and ask for Mr. Driscoll. That is the advice which the Commissioner of Weights and Measures gave on Monday to the listening housewives at the Pure Food Exhibit. This done, Commissioner Driscoll will try conclusions with the defrauder.

"When you get your things home weigh them yourselves," the Commissioner said; "and if they don't come up to the standard don't go back and argue with the merchant about it. You will get only abuse. Let the Mayor's Bureau do your arguing for you."

It is sensible advice, and to the point. If a waiter is insolent, waste no words but report the fact at the desk. If the butcher, the baker, or the candlestick-maker cheats one customer, he is cheating many. There are two things which the Mayor's Bureau can do. It can send a man to compare further orders by weight and measure with the packages put up for delivery, and it can submit the dealer's weights, balances, and other instruments of measurement to careful inspection, at the same time watching his methods of manipulating them.

That is the short and quick way to stop the petty mercantile peculations which, according to Dr. Reichmann, the State Superintendent of Weights and Measures, amount to $10,000,000 yearly in this State alone.

DEVELOPING THE AEROPLANE.

To all those really interested in the development of the aeroplane for practical purposes the announcement that Mr. Glenn Curtiss intends to give up exhibiting his machine and set to work to improve it will be deeply gratifying. The aeroplane does fly, but as it is to-day it is little more than a toy demonstrating a principle, and flying the toy doesn't seem to do more than make conspicuous its good and bad points already known. If the flying machine is to be made useful—the only real excuse after all for its existence—it must be developed far beyond what it is at present.

The Wright brothers evidently felt this long ago. They have practically ceased to be exhibitors, and have hired others for that quite important and profitable part of the business while they have returned to the shop to think out and work out the aeroplane of the future. To them, to Mr. Curtiss, and others like them, who have strong faith in the future of the flying machine, must the world look for making it a real force in human affairs.

"THE SORROWS OF WERTHER."

Goethe's "Die Leiden des jungen Werther," 136 years after it was written, is still claiming its victims. Down on the east side the body of a young man has just been found, self-destroyed, with "The Sorrows of Werther" beside him. When the book was first published in Germany a wave of suicide swept over the country. Weltschmerz, the philosophy of the "world-woe," was at its height. Gloomy theology and pessimistic philosophy reigned. Many who stood on this treacherous ground were lost when the emotional storm of Goethe's great romance broke over them. Soon, however, "world-woe" became merely a fad. To be cheerful was only bad taste; to be sad was to be fashionable.

This development shows the real soundness and the natural wholesomeness of life. In the determination to enjoy, if it is demanded of us we even enjoy being sad. Any one familiar with the Werther movement in Germany may safely read about his sorrows. But his example of self-destruction should cease to claim its following. Charlotte herself had good sense:

> When she saw the form of Werther

she "went on cutting bread and butter."

THE GROWING WESTERN CITIES.

In considering its criminal statistics, we have had occasion to remark that the West is no longer "wild and woolly." Crimes of violence, and criminal records of every sort, have steadily diminished in the Western States until they bear the same ratio to the population as in the longer settled East. The census of 1910 shows a very rapid growth of Western urban population. Upon this we may base the hope, also, that the woolly politics for which the West is famous will become progressively safer.

The Grangerite agitation against the railroads of the seventies and early eighties and the Populistic greenback and free silver crazes which started like tornadoes and careered into the Eastern States were dangerous manifestations of class interest. When whole sections of the country were dominated by farmers, their special interests were consulted often at the expense of the Nation. But Kansas City has increased 52 per cent. in a decade; Colorado Springs 38 per cent., Fort Wayne and South Bend in Indiana 42 and 49 per cent. respectively; Sacramento, Cal., 52 per cent.; St. Paul, 32 per cent.; Ashland, Wis., 192 per cent.; Denver, 60 per cent.; and, so far as returns are tabulated, all the other Western cities of between 25,000 and 100,000 in population and upward show similar percentages of growth within ten years. Near-by markets are provided for the farming districts. But it means, also, a population of a composite type, and therefore of more stable interests. The politics of the West must henceforth consider not merely the demands of the farmers, but of the manufacturing interests as well, and of labor, and of the great salaried classes. The West is filling up with a conservative middle-class population that cannot longer tolerate demagogues and counsels of radicalism.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Abandoned Cats and Dogs. Innumerable well-deserved scoldings—more severe than effective, unfortunately—have been directed at the city folk who when they close up their houses and go into the country for the Summer leave their animal pets behind to shift for themselves.

Dogs are not infrequently thus abandoned to the scanty pickings and cold charity of the streets, and while their physical sufferings are sufficient to make them objects of pity, still worse is what may be called the agony of mind experienced by the masterless dog that finds himself alone and cut off from the human sympathy and association on which he depends for happiness much more than upon having good food and enough of it. Cats, however, are the most numerous victims of these brutally cruel desertions. The city streets simply swarm with them every Summer, and though the cat is a gross materialist, neither needing nor wanting anything from her overlords except enough to eat, a warm place to sleep, and protection from her enemies she is a most miserable creature when deprived of these things, and as she lacks the dog's ability to turn strangers into friends, her tortures as a waif and stray are sickening to think of.

But not only in the city, it seems, are these seasonal crimes committed. The people who abandon their dogs and cats when they go into the country, do the same thing there when they return, and with even less reason for assuming that the animals will pull through somehow. At any rate from Casco Bay comes the news that this Fall, as usual, it has been necessary for certain Portlanders with hearts to make a round of the islands, now left uninhabited till next year, and to gather up the few dogs and many cats that have been left there to half starve until snow flies and then to perish wretchedly in the Winter storms. Where the Summer folk get these animals is not stated, but presumably from the neighboring mainland, for if brought from home the chances are that they would be taken back there.

The people who commit these crimes "love pets," and want them all the year round, but they do not appreciate the moral responsibility they incur when they acquire them, and apparently their love ends the moment it involves a little trouble or expense—especially trouble. Therefore are they a bad, bad lot, and decent people should refuse to associate with them after one conviction of such heartless cruelty.

No Place for a Bernhardt. It gives one a sense of distinct and painful shock to learn that Sarah Bernhardt, for reasons not stated but easily imaginable, has "accepted an engagement" from the manager of a London music hall and appears there daily in a single act of "L'Aiglon." The accompanying statement that she gets £1,000 a week for her performances does little or nothing toward reconciling a mind at all sensitive to this as a termination, or even as an episode, in the career of a woman whose genius has been recognized the world over.

If true—and the "if" is almost as large as the sum mentioned—the statement only shows that at 66 years of age Mme. Bernhardt has been compelled to forget her glory and dignity as an artist and to become an object of curious interest in rivalry with acrobats, jugglers, and the singers of comic songs. After almost half a century of hardly questioned supremacy in both realms of histrionism her material rewards have been so small, or at least she has so little left of them, that she must do something which for her can hardly fail to be deeply humiliating. And yet perhaps she is not as much disturbed as are those who feel her latest adventure as a reflection upon their own power to appreciate genius and their own willingness adequately to recompense it.

The conventionalities of neither art nor life have seemed things of small importance to Sarah Bernhardt, and once when on tour in this country she did not deem it beneath her dignity to play in a circus tent when a theatre could not be secured. What might be called the anthropomorphizing of artists is as unsafe as the like treatment of animals. They are so different from ordinary mortals that familiar rules do not apply to them. Still, one does wish that Sarah Bernhardt had not been forced to take what is left of her golden voice to the variety stage. It is, to be sure, a stage honest enough, and even honorable, for those who care to make it so, but it is hardly the place for the woman who has given the greatest and noblest expression to both comedy and tragedy that many of us who are by no means young have been privileged to see.

Automobile Dangers and Noises. Among the rather numerous faults to be found with our new automobile law is its failure to forbid chauffeurs, amateur or professional, to let their engines run when they descend from their cars, even for a few moments. This is a dangerous practice, for by any one of a dozen little accidents enough of a shock or jar may be given to the automobile when it is thus left in uncontrolled activity to "throw in" one or another of the gears, and then, almost invariably, there is trouble ahead for somebody. Usually it is serious trouble and always it may be.

There is never any necessity for keeping an automobile's engine in motion when the automobile itself is standing still, but while the chauffeur is in his place there is often so much convenience in doing so that it is permissible and even commendable. That, therefore, should not be prohibited, except, perhaps, when the delay is so long that the accumulating vapors from the exhaust make the neighborhood of the car offensive to others than its occupants. But when the chauffeur is beyond prompt and easy reach of his levers and pedals, the moving engine constitutes a public peril and should be forbidden under penalty here, as it is in France and other parts of Europe.

So, too, should abusive use—or rather non-use—of the muffler be forbidden. There is rarely, in city streets at least, a good excuse for letting an automobile make all the noise it can or will. They make enough with their laborious breathings mitigated as much as possible, and the added power which cutting out the muffler gives is really needed much less often than it is utilized.

THE MAINE ELECTION.

Dissatisfied Republicans Willing to Take Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, "Rochester Republican," praising your editorial article on the Maine election, shows good taste. He lacks wisdom, however, when he declares Roosevelt responsible. We Maine folks faced the same conditions that Rochester fought when it defeated Aldridge last Spring.

We are dissatisfied with the tariff, but disgusted with prohibition which prohibits not. Our own forestry problems are more vital than the war between Ballinger and Pinchot. Nepotism among National and State representatives and unfair distribution of taxation funds are more important to us than the sedition in the Republican Party in New York State. We hope that the discomfort Roosevelt is causing the dishonest politicians will bring us fairer and better days, but he did not win Maine for the Democrats. We dissatisfied Republicans are willing that our deeds be upon our own heads.

A MAINE REPUBLICAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Undoubtedly Roosevelt is unpopular with the Hale machine in Maine, as he is with the "old guard" organizations everywhere, but does that prove your case? In view of the revolt all over the country against "old-guardism" it looks to an innocent bystander as though the result in Maine were a repudiation of the existing Republican organization in that State rather than a rebuke to a would-be leader who may not succeed in his effort to come back, and who took no part whatever in the Maine campaign. Not having been inoculated with the milder form known as insurgency, Maine is stricken with a genuine case of "Cannonophobia."

M. A. NUPATREE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Given the Republican platform and the Tariff bill Maine goes Democratic. This shows that there is one thing the American people won't stand, and that is bad faith.

THE CITY'S LAND.

Thinks Many Parcels Have Fallen Away Without Our Knowledge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perhaps an article entitled "People Grow Rich on Land the City Owns and Doesn't Know It" will be as interesting as your article in to-day's Times, "City Grows Rich on Land It Owns."

Some years ago the writer lived in a building once occupied by a Volunteer Fire Department hose company. Though surrounded by tenements in the most congested part of the city, this building cannot be sold, as the title, which passed to the city when the old Volunteer Fire Department went out of existence, has never been transferred. It was left in charge of a caretaker, who rented the building to tenants. Later a tax notice was sent to the caretaker, which was paid, and since then the rental has been a perquisite of the district leader, who pays the taxes. The city owns the land and building, but doesn't know it.

The writer wanted to buy a little house in Harlem just west of Third Avenue. In searching the title two flaws were found. The one was the negligible flaw occasioned by the loss of the early records. (See Toler's New Harlem.) The other flaw was the absence of record of transfer of part of the land, which once formed a strip of the Boston Post Road. With the opening of Third Avenue, in 1839, the early Post Road was discontinued as a thoroughfare. Parts of this land remained unoccupied until adjoining property owners built over it without having any title thereto. Investigation will probably reveal many parcels of land and buildings, title to which never passed from the city, which trespassers claim and collect rent for.

There has been so much complaint about the rudeness and discourtesy of the Customs officers I was prepared for trouble when I landed in New York yesterday from an ocean liner accompanied by my wife. I never met with greater courtesy and consideration anywhere than I did at the hands of the officials. Our trunks were thoroughly examined—as they should have been under the law—but the work was done carefully, almost apologetically, and not a dress ruffled or an article disarranged. We were helped to expedite matters and shown as much courtesy and kindness as if we had been "somebody" instead of two obscure individuals.

What duty we had to pay was thoroughly explained to us and all aid was given us to help us on our way, even to the extent of getting an expressman to advance funds for the duty and take our trunks to our hotel, where he was repaid, as we had only foreign gold. I think that every official on the pier did the same way, and I did not hear a single complaint from any one. Are not the discourtesy and rudeness sometimes on the other side?

Travelers' Baggage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think if Mr. Irving Putnam or any member of his family had entered this port during the past week his letter would have taken a different tone. I came with a family of three, who had each spent under $50 in gifts and souvenirs, a list of which was made and the articles put in the trays of two trunks to be examined with the least trouble. Still the member of the family who had declared the things was treated as if she were a liar and thief.

CITIZEN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to Mr. Irving Putnam's arguments in your paper of the 17th inst. that not even $100 worth free entry should be allowed to incoming travelers because it handicaps the American business man, I beg to say that the American business man or importer is far better off than the average traveler, who combines economy with pleasure while abroad.

What woman would not be glad to pay $5 for a Parisian smart hat instead of $25 for a New York one or $50 for a gown made to order instead of $150?

"Politics Not Barred."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Beverly dispatch of the 18th inst. to The Times tells us that at the Cabinet meetings which are to be held in Washington next week "politics will by no means be barred." Plans of the Congressional campaigns will probably be considered. It would be interesting to hear the views of the Secretary of the Treasury as to the best means of electing Republican candidates for Congress. He must be in hearty sympathy with the President and other Republican members of the Cabinet. As an acknowledged Democrat how could it be otherwise?

HONORS TO SULTAN OF SULU.

No Especially Formal Reception Planned for Him in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Hadji Mohammed Jumalul Kiram, Sultan of Sulu, lately described in the dispatches from abroad that he had sailed for the United States as "the American subject who is permitted a nominal authority over the Sulu archipelago," is expected to land in New York in a few days, and will, shortly after his landing, visit Washington. The War Department has cabled the Philippine authorities to find out about the plans of this potentate who cannot escape in this country the aspect of a comic opera hero, and the reply indicates that the Sultan set off on his tour of the Occident like a private citizen and without notifying the Governor General.

His reception here will not, therefore, be particularly formal. As some one jocularly expressed it to-day, he may be received "with royal but certainly not with ex-Presidential honors." The Sultan, however, knows personally a number of army officers here, including Col. Scott, lately Superintendent of the Military Academy at West Point and for a while Governor of Sulu. These officers will do the honors.

In the Philippines the position of the Sultan is rather vague. He retains a sort of hereditary authority over Sulu about analogous to that of the more important of the Indian chiefs in this country, and in addition he has an hereditary religious sway over North Borneo. On both these counts the Philippine Government under the United States has found it better to leave his authority over the natives unmolested. He receives in lieu of taxes as a "civil list" from his diminutive Sultanate a pension from the Philippine Government.

The real object of the Sultan's trip West has been said to be the sale of his pearls, which are reported to be a fine collection. The last official information the War Department had of his movements was that he had reached Singapore. London dispatches have announced that he sailed last Saturday on the St. Louis, which is due at New York next Saturday.

Theodore and William.

From The Globe.

What did Theodore say to William? No stenographer was present, and both participants in the conversation have given to the public no abstract. One man's guess is thus as good as another's.

But what Theodore must have felt a strong impulse to say may be readily imagined. We can picture the nervous rush forward, the eager grasp of the hand, and then some such words as these:

"William, I want you to know how much I appreciate and understand the character of the work you have done. I know from experience, if other men do not, the difficulties under which you have labored. I have seen with gratitude the success you have had in promoting the causes in which you and I have been interested, and beheld with amazement your patience. As the preacher of the square deal I propose to act the square deal, and as you during seven years never wearied in upholding my hand I propose to repay a little in kind. It isn't true that I have given comfort to men who have been scheming and planning to wreck the Administration. It isn't true that I have encouraged a horde of small critics to yelp against you and to magnify small mistakes of judgment into great errors. It isn't true that I am so ungenerous and selfish as to refuse to see merit in no one except myself. It isn't true that I am requiting your friendship and trust and manliness with mean silence or have endeavored to damn you with faint praise. You have earned, and richly earned, my support and sympathy. If every other person in the country should be against you I should be with you, knowing you as I do, and the recipient of countless favors at your hands. But even though I were not thus in your debt, for the sake of the practical advancement of the common principles in which we believe I should back you up and do what I can to promote the success of your Administration."

And when this testimony was over one can imagine William replying to Theodore:

"I am glad to hear you say these things. It shows that the efforts to create strife between us have failed. But why have you not felt called on to say them before the public? You tell me, and it is delightful. Why not tell others?"

Roosevelt and His Critics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why do those who keep up the search for errors committed by Roosevelt lose sight of the praiseworthy accomplishments of a man of whom none can say that he does not follow the honest and sincere convictions of his own mind? Let them remember his splendid fight against Tammany Hall corruption about thirty years ago, his spirited opposition to the crying evils that existed in the Police Department prior to his appointment as President of the Police Board, and his unprecedented action in effecting the arbitration of the anthracite coal strike in 1902. It might not be amiss for them to cease their noxious labors for a while and credit him who brought about the cessation of hostilities between the "Russian Bear" and the "Japanese Fox," and whose great influence led Congress in 1906 to pass the needed Pure Food and Drugs act. One is too apt to forget the good done by Theodore Roosevelt and to exaggerate those actions which are possibly wrong and yet only natural in view of the wonderful activity of this strenuous man.

ISIDORE A. SCHILLER.

Boston's Advantage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Chicago should let well enough alone and be content with her official ranking as second city of the United States. "Just outside" would add practically nothing to her population, save sand fleas on the east and grasshoppers on the west and north. Even a fifty-mile territory would bring in scarcely half a million more.

Boston would add 900,000 in a day's walk, and if "Fitzy's" voice, singing "Sweet Adeline," could penetrate the Republican gloom for fifty miles, over three millions would be able to hear him.

Where would Chicago stand then, and the "quiet old lady" to the south of you?

A FRIEND WENT THEN.

Hush! A friend went then;
Went with a tear of sorrow in his eye;
A friend too old to lose, too young to die;
Went at a hasty word of mine and hot;
Grieved in his inner heart and then—was not;
He lives and speaks with me, but naught beside,
My friend has died.

Hush! A friend passed on;
Passed on in silence, uncomplainingly;
Nor stopped to parry angry words with me;
Passed on, sore hurt, but keeping back his tears,
Passed on upon the stony way of years;
Well knowing me, but though he bows his head—
My friend is dead.

Hush! A friend is lost;
A sneer of mine, that cost me but a breath,
And fell my friend, sore wounded, to his death;
Nor made he any cry to tell the pain
He felt—just went and came not back again;
And though to-day again our pathways crossed,
My friend is lost.

Hush! A friend was slain;
Just then—struck down in the broad light of day;
As fell a crime, I know, as ever lay
At murder's door—it cost me but a jeer
At him who craved but sympathy—a tear
I shed and bid him come to me in vain—
My friend is slain.

WEST SIDERS TO RUN THEIR SETTLEMEN

Institution Abandoned by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Will Be Managed on Co-operative Plan.

HE IS ONLY LANDLORD NOW

Patrons of Institution Will Henceforth Pay Him Rent for Use of the Well-Equipped Building in Tenth Ave.

The West Side Settlement Building at Fiftieth Street and Tenth Avenue, built by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., at a cost of $400,000, which was closed last Winter because those who used it did not contribute sufficiently toward its support, is to be reopened in the future as a co-operative, self-supporting neighborhood institution. The undertaking is in response to the urgent appeals of the residents of that part of the west side, and the plan of organization is unique in settlement work, for it is to be entirely democratic. The residents of the neighborhood are to support their own "institute," and are in turn to direct it. There is to be no charity whatsoever in the plan.

The only connection which Mr. Rockefeller will retain with the enterprise is that of landlord. In this capacity he has leased the building to a Board of Trustees made up not of wealthy philanthropists but of representative men of the neighborhood. The lease is for a term of years, and rent will be paid to Mr. Rockefeller as owner of the property. Just what sum was stipulated the new trustees will not say except that it is a fair rental, and not a nominal charge.

"Mr. Rockefeller has leased us the building," said one of the trustees, "just as any other landlord would. There are no 'strings' of any kind to the transaction."

Settlement Well Equipped.

The plan opens a new page in the adventures of this building, which, with the possible exception of the University Settlement, in Eldridge Street, is the most complete of its kind in this city. It contains bowling alleys, a complete gymnasium, baths, schoolrooms, lecture and assembly rooms, a day nursery, playrooms, roof garden, and so on. But in spite of this the Settlement did not succeed under the original agreement. It was built and equipped by Mr. Rockefeller and managed by a committee of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, Mr. Rockefeller subscribing $25,000 yearly. In spite of this the committee found the task too great.

The Settlement was then turned over to the Charity Organization Society, Mr. Rockefeller agreeing to support the establishment till other sponsors could be found.

Before half the year was over Dr. Devine suddenly announced that the building would have to be closed for lack of funds. No sooner were the doors closed, though, than the residents of the west side near Tenth Avenue and Fiftieth Street began to realize their loss.

Probably the closing of the day nursery caused the greatest distress. Mothers who had been accustomed to leaving their young children there, so they could go out to work, had to give up their places because the babies couldn't stay all day uncared for in their homes. Families that had been self-supporting with the help of the mothers had to turn to the charities for aid. The St. Vincent de Paul Society, in particular, felt the great increase in the number of calls for aid. The boys who used to go to the Settlement clubs had no recourse but to hang around the street corners.

The neighborhood then began to plan to have the settlement again. The first idea was to have the city purchase it, and in February, 1910, The McManus and Assemblyman J. J. Boylan introduced a bill at Albany authorizing the purchase of the West Side Neighborhood House by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, to be used for playgrounds and baths. This was passed and signed by Gov. Hughes, but Mayor Gaynor refused to indorse the measure. The purchase price was $450,000, and there was no precedent in this city for such an expenditure, he said.

After the plan failed the idea of having the neighborhood support and direct the settlement came to the front. It was to be non-sectarian, non-political, and entirely democratic, to be operated by a board of representative men of the surrounding district. The plan as outlined is inclusive, providing for a reading room, billiard room, game room, a model dancing academy, concerts and entertainments, musicals, a glee club, a house orchestra, dramatics, classes for public speaking and debating, gymnasium classes, and classes in trade training, these to co-operate with the many factories in the neighborhood; typewriting, stenography, salesmanship, domestic science, a kindergarten, a day nursery, an employment bureau, a provident savings bank, and athletics.

Institution to Be Self-Supporting.

The money to support all these activities will come from those persons using them. The sum, though, for any individual in any one class will be small, for the cost will be divided among the participants. Just what fee will be charged for the different courses will depend on the number of those registering for them. The cost will be greatly lessened by the fact that Columbia University has offered to supply an unlimited number of volunteer teachers from among its many students, both young men and women. For this reason William Fellowes Morgan, one of the Trustees of Columbia University, and William C. Demorest, President of the Columbia Alumnae Association, represent Columbia on the Board of Directors of the new organization.

The sum which those of the neighborhood must guarantee is $10,000, but those in charge feel that there will be no hitches in obtaining the guarantees, and it was said the settlement activities would be under way in a very few weeks. As a matter of fact, the kindergarten has been opened already, under the direction of the Kindergarten Association.

The Board of Directors consists of Mgr. Joseph Mooney of the Church of the Sacred Heart, 451 West Fifty-first Street; Herman Beyer, an ex-Alderman and manufacturer of 505 West Fiftieth Street; the Rev. Dr. James Driscoll of the Church of St. Ambrose, 515 West Fifty-fourth Street; the Rev. Winfred V. Ackert, Vermilye Chapel, 416 West Sixty-fourth Street; Owen Bohan, an ex-Assemblyman and lawyer of 411 West Forty-ninth Street; Thomas H. Morgan, M. D., of 349 West Fifty-first Street; Edward Ewing Pratt, Aaron Bushbaum, merchant of 729 Ninth Avenue; George F. Ewald, a property owner of the neighborhood; Arthur Wessell, a piano manufacturer; Joseph Hayes, lawyer; Henry Miller, broker; Justice Peter Schmuck; Herman Obertubbesing, Secretary of the A. A. U., and Christian Tietjen, President of the West Side Bank.

ALDERMEN BACK TO BUSINESS

Their First Meeting After Vacation—Money for City Officials' Autos.

The Aldermen met yesterday for their first session since the vacation season and transacted a mass of business of minor importance.

A communication was received from the Town Clerk and Common Council of London thanking the board for its resolutions passed on the death of King Edward. An offer from Brian G. Hughes to donate land in Brooklyn for a public park was referred to the Committee on Parks.

A communication from District Attorney Whitman requesting the board to see that sign posts are erected in those parts of the city where the speed limit for automobiles is eight and fifteen miles an hour was referred to the Law Committee. To Commissioner Driscoll of the Bureau of Weights and Measures was voted $7,200 to pay the salaries of twelve additional Inspectors.

The board was unusually generous in voting automobile money, granting permission to Borough President Miller of the Bronx to purchase five and to Dock Commissioner Tomkins and Park Commissioner Stover one each.

The motormen who drive the street cars on Thirty-fourth Street had their troubles again last night. The thoroughfare was again alive with carriages and automobiles headed toward Eighth Avenue, where a large electric sign announced that the Manhattan Opera House was reopening with "Hans the Flute Player." The audience which crowded the theatre was in its content much the same as that which had greeted Oscar Hammerstein's four other opening nights at this theatre. Last night many came to see what had become of the Manhattan Opera House, now that the impresario had sold out to the enemy.

They discovered that it was much the same place as it had been. After the second act, when one of those ovations took place for which this house is noted, which culminated in a speech by Oscar Hammerstein, the appearance of Jacques Coini, the stage manager, and Josiah Zuro, the conductor of the orchestra, when the stage was literally showered with roses from both sides and from the boxes, little Miss Trentini helping to throw a few herself, everyobdy realized that he was perfectly at home, and that the Manhattan Opera House is still a great deal more than a name.

Perhaps the opera itself had something to do with this. It had been announced that "Hans" was a comic opera, and a few in the audience doubtless imagined they were going to see a Broadway revue or a Viennese operetta. "Hans" is neither of these. It belongs to the lighter sort of opera comique, with which the French stage has been so well supplied from Boildieu to Messager. In its general manner it is not at all unlike Delibes's "Jean de Nivelle." A similarity in the waltzes of the two operas would serve to emphasize this point.

Louis Ganne, the composer, is well enough known to Americans through a piece called "La Czarine." He was graduated from the Paris Conservatoire in 1881, and since then has turned out a succession of light pieces and ballets. For five years he has been director of the Concerts Ganne at Monte Carlo, and it was there that "Hans" was produced five years ago. Paris heard it for the first time last Winter at the Apollo Theatre, where Jean Perier sang the title rôle.

Ganne is a composer essentially French in manner, who turns out a succession of melodies which the ear finds grateful. To say that he has a good memory would not detract from one's enjoyment. He has borrowed liberally, but usually well. There are fragments of "Parsifal" and "Madama Butterfly" in the score. Hans's farewell to his Flute reminds one of the Berceuse from "Jocleyn." The orchestral effects, too, are sometimes recognizable. For instance the descending figurations on the clarinet which accompany the waltz at its recapitulation are very much like Tschaikowsky.

However all this carping about sources is beyond the point. As a matter of fact the music is charming and of a sort which is almost entirey new to our stage, if one excepts "Les Contes d'Hoffmann." If for nothing more than for the fact that the songs are not divided into verses and refrains the public ought to be grateful.

The work opens with a very delightful overture, in which the principal tunes of the piece are brought to the ear. A soldiers' chorus follows, which is delicious. Loris's first air, "Oh, Lovely Dolls," is a charming bit of melody, and had to be repeated last night. Hans's song, "I Come from Afar," is melodious and has an original accompaniment of bells. The waltz of "Hans" which comes at the end of the first act will soon become as well known as the waltzes of "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier."

In the second act there is a succession of pretty melodies, culminating in a stirring march, "The Song of the Flute." This is immediately followed by the most tuneful number in the opera—another march, which ends the act. There are two very pretty duets in the last act, and much of the best music of the other two is repeated.

The libretto of "Hans" is not so praiseworthy. The story concerns a town, the inhabitants of which were once famed for their artistic manufacture of dolls. This art has been replaced by a sordid commercialism. The town is in the last stages of moral decay, and overrun with rats, which are filching grain when Hans appears.

Hans is a sort of Lona Hassel; a Manson in "The Servant in the House," or the lodger in "The Third Floor Back." However, Hans has to effect a change in an entire town instead of a single family. He accomplishes everything with the aid of his magic flute. He resorts to pressure to bring the people about, and starts in by fluting into the river all the municipal cats, who kill the mice. The rain of municipal kitties comes at the end of the first act, and is a spectacle worthy of attention.

There are frequently occasions when the dialogue is dull, but, as the piece is principally music, this is not a matter of the greatest importance, especially as the music is not of the dramatic sort.

For the production the warmest words of praise are due. It is probably the first time that a work of this character has been mounted with such magnificence. The costumes are by Landolff of Paris, and he has idealized the Flemish dresses with great success.

The settings, representing a square in Milkatz and the great room in the Burgomaster's house, were very elaborate, and the stage management was very efficient. Mr. Coini, who did a similar office for "Pelléas et Melisande" when it was brought out at this theatre, naturally found "Hans" an easy matter.

Perhaps the greatest success of the evening was won by Mr. Zuro, who has been Mr. Hammerstein's chorusmaster for some time past. He conducted the score with the greatest amount of authority and spirit and grace and delicacy where they were needed. The orchestra and chorus were at all times alive to his baton.

Not since the first year of the Manhattan Opera House has Mr. Hammerstein had such a chorus. It fairly made the rafters ring in the finales of the acts, and wherever else it was needed. The men's chorus had an especial chance to shine in the soldiers' chorus, which commences the piece. The girls are comely, and there are a great many of them.

There is also a ballet which dances twice. In the second act there is a dance of fishermaids and boys, and in the last act, when the librettist drops "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" for "Coppelia," there is a delicious dance of dolls. The audience last night seemingly could not get enough of these dances.

To a newcomer, George Chadal, fell the title part. It is said that he has visited this country before with traveling opera companies, but memory does not serve to tell that he has appeared in New York before. At least he had never sung before in English. Naturally he speaks and sings with a strong French accent, and yet his diction is so good that he is almost always intelligible. He was very effective dramatically. His voice is like many another baritone who has come from Paris. A French baritone is a question of taste.

Frank Pollock has a really splendid tenor voice which the audience realized as soon as it had heard him sing his first air. He was one of the strongest features of the cast and made much of a part which needed authority to carry it. Frank Doane spoke the Prologue in a very able manner, but he was not always funny in his part.

Miss Sophie Brandt, who left America some two seasons ago, returned last night in the part of Lisbeth. Miss Brandt has a very pretty voice when she does not force it. When she commits that fault it often loses both its quality and its tone. She had a chance to sing with a flute, like Lucia. Olive Ulrich was ingratiating in the part of Ketchen, and Alice Gentle was successful in delineating a shrewish mother.

After the second act Mr. Hammerstein was called out and greeted with such a volume of applause that he must have realized that he has friends in New York. "The keen and poignant grief which I felt at having been compelled to abandon the field of grand opera is somewhat softened by this reception to-night," he said. "I am departing to-morrow for London to do work on my new London Opera House. However that will not take me away from the city which I love so much. I love to stay here and I believe I will."

The most remarkable thing about "The Deserters" at the Hudson Theatre last night was the fact that Helen Ware was able to create any interest in it at all. She did something more, indeed, for she compelled a certain degree of sympathy—in small part for Madge Sommers, Government detective on a hard and cruel case—in far greater part for Helen Ware, newly projected star, and more deserving of the distinction than most.

Out in the tall timber, where the grass grows high and they still love their rhetoric on all occasions, there may be hope for "The Deserters." But not here until the circulating libraries are closed and all the paper backs disposed of. For "The Deserters" is popular fiction set to scenery, with the actors reeling off yards of conversational description that you could skip if you were reading it. Here you've got to listen. And this, too, although most of what happens is too obvious for words.

In fact, "The Deserters," with its story of supposed army life, in which one officer commits a murder and lets suspicion rest upon his brother officer, is too absurd to be considered seriously.

In the two or three scenes that might be most effective the prolific flow of language almost brought disaster. What saved these scenes at all was the sincerity, the earnestness, the vibrantly sympathetic emotional quality of Miss Ware's voice and acting, aided on occasion by the very positive virility and directness of Mr. Orme Caldara's playing.

Mr. Caldara, being the presumable murderer-deserter from the army, Miss Ware, specially detailed, is out to get him. Their first meeting takes place in a Frisco saloon and dance hall. The detective is disguised as an habitué of the place—she sings and dances and is a good pal of all the boys. This act has some interesting theatrical color though, as elsewhere, things are too long drawn out. Incidentally Miss Ware sings and sings very sweetly. Also as the detective lady she must fall in love with the deserter and he with her. Their mutual recognition of the new-born passion brings a tense curtain. But little else is tense.

The detective lady does not know the man is suspected of murder—had she known that she wouldn't have taken the case. Her objects are largely philanthropic. She is the daughter of an army officer and loves to bring back boys who have strayed and start them on a new and useful life. But a court-martial and sentence of death awaits this one, so naturally he isn't pleased to learn, as he eventually must, that his new-found sweetheart is about to deliver him into the hands of his enemies. From this point of view it is another case of Samson and Delilah. This brings the usual emotional climax to the act.

Back at the post once again she finds a clue to the real murderer, who confesses. So all ends very happily for those who should be happy.

"The Deserters" is really a very silly play. But Miss Ware almost made it seem worth while at times. No actress, however, could fully succeed in doing that.

In the long cast it was sometimes difficult to distinguish individuals, but Frederick Truesdell played very skillfully and Howard Hall was excellent in a brief rôle. Lotta Linthecum, Eleanor Stuart, Edward Howard, and Lawrence Sheehan got the most out of the material they had to handle.

"CON & CO." A FUNNY FARCE.

Rapidly Acted Comedy at Nazimova's May Stay a Long Time.

A near relative of "Charley's Aunt" arrived at Nazimova's Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night, and gave every indication of making the visit a long one. "Con. & Co.," made into English by Oliver Herford, conquered from the beginning of the second act, and would have begun the conquest in the first had not the actors, all of them, been suffering from excessive nervousness. The relationship to the old farce first mentioned, by the way, is one of blood, but not of resemblance. The plot of "Con. & Co." suggests "Charley's Aunt" only in that it is a piece of rapid action, with a story developing from the necessity of discovering and exhibiting a person as mythical as the "aunt from Brazil where the nuts come from."

Con is full-named Cornelius, and he has $5 a week allowance from his wealthy uncle, Senator Pinkney. On this sum, with additions gained through his own efforts, the young man has a box at the opera, sends bushels of flowers to actresses, and is one of the noted spenders in Berlin. In the first act an inkling as to the source of his income is gained when he introduces three friends to the home of one, Direktor von Scheffel, to view a parade, collecting from each a sum in payment for their seats. One of the friends, the Hon. Frederick Balchester, turns out to be in love with Frau von Scheffel, an American. The husband finds a photograph, suspects the truth, and threatens death. Con comes to the rescue, and for a consideration says that the photograph is a picture of a music hall actress. He is forced to produce that person, and Frau von Scheffel is called upon to impersonate her. The complications that come after that fill up the last two acts.

Objection might be made to the obviousness of the plot and the age of the situations, but the fact remains that the audience last night interrupted the playing a great many times with laughter that was unquestionably spontaneous.

Maude Odell, the actress and not the vaudeville artist, appeared in the rôle of Frau von Scheffel and performed her part, a dual rôle, to the entire satifaction of the house. Ben Hendricks was the jealous husband, and Harry Stone was the adventurous Con. The "Co." was played by William Burress in the character of a "reformed actor" with a skill at disguising himself as various personages unlike himself.

Nelly Roland played an unsophisticated telephone operator, a member of the firm, and Susette Gordon appeared as a stupid German servant girl. Grace Franklyn as Mrs. Hopper was an indeterminate quantity in the play. There was seemingly no purpose to the part, and no particular purpose displayed in the acting. Gilbert Douglas did very well as the Hon. Frederick Balchester, and Tom H. Walsh was the chin-whiskered and romantic United States Senator. A "bit" of a German Lieutenant, with two English phrases at his command, was very will played by Gustave Hartzheim.

ROBERT LORAINE IN NEW PLAY

Actor-Aviator Makes a Striking Success in "Man from the Sea."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Robert Loraine, the actor-aviator, made a striking success in the title part of "The Man from the Sea," produced at the Queen's Theatre to-night by William L. Locke.

The play had an enthusiastic reception.

CHARLES FELTMAN DEAD.

Coney Island Pioneer Who Turned Sandy Wastes Into Pleasure Ground.

Charles Feltman, a pioneer who turned the sandy wastes of Coney Island into a pleasure ground, died yesterday morning at Cassel, Germany. He was born in Verden, Hanover, Germany, in 1841, and came to this country when he was 14 years old. He had at first to work as a laborer in a coal yard and on a farm, but in a little while obtained a job with a baker on Smith Street, South Brooklyn. It was while he was delivering bread along the ocean front that he first dreamt of the possibilities of the site.

He started in business as a baker on Classon Avenue in 1866, and built a large building at Sixth Avenue and Tenth Street before the streets were cut through. As he established himself he applied to one railroad proprietor after another to help him in his grand idea. He suggested to Martin Gunther, President of Gunther's Railroad, and to the Brooklyn & Coney Island Horse Car Road that they should make their service sufficient to enable business men to come down in Summer to the ocean to spend the evening in recreation. His ideas were laughed at, but at last A. R. Culver, who was then planning a line to Coney Island, promised to cooperate with Mr. Feltman.

Thus encouraged, Mr. Feltman erected an ocean pavilion at the cost of $20,000. He secured the Seventy-first Regiment Band, and at once began to attract crowds. The next season he added vocal music, and gradually added other attractions. He brought a merry-go-round from Germany and the first Tyrolese yodlers ever heard in this country, and reaped success.

Mrs. Sarah M. Haviland.

Mrs. Sarah M. Haviland, 84 years old, for years one of the principal members of the Society of Friends in Brooklyn, died yesterday of old age at her home, 152 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn. She leaves one grown son, Henry M. Haviland. Her husband died eight years ago. Mrs. Haviland came of an old Quaker family. Her father was Anthony P. Morris, a real estate man of Philadelphia, where she was born. He was a descendant of Robert Morris, a personal friend of President Washington. Mrs. Haviland was educated in a Quaker seminary at Newtown, Penn., and in 1852 married Henry Haviland of New York, an importer. Both he and she were Elders of the Brooklyn Society of Friends, which has a meeting house in Schermerhorn Street.

Father Ollivier.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Father Ollivier, who delivered a sensational sermon at the funeral for the victims of the Charity Bazaar fire of May, 1897, died to-day. Father Ollivier was a strong and fluent preacher of Christian Socialism. Years ago he made a tour of America and preached in New York. The investigation of the causes that led to the Charity Bazaar fire, when scores of lives were lost, developed criticism of the management of the entertainment and much bitter feeling. Father Ollivier's outspoken remarks on the subject caused his removal from the pulpit of the Cathedral of Notre Dame.

Georgia's "Cornfield Poet" Dead.

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 20.—Georgia's "Cornfield Poet," John W. Groucher of Crow Valley, is dead at the age of 77. Groucher's celebrity did not extend outside this State, but he had a claim to distinction rarely attained by modern poets. Like many Homeric bards, he never wrote his verses, but recited them instead, improving the meter as he proceeded. He could entertain a group of listeners for hours without a break or a repetition in his verses. So far as known here, not a line of his poems has been put into writing.

Prof. Matzke Dead in Mexico City.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Sept. 20.—Prof. J. E. Matzke, who held the chair of Romanic Languages at Stanford University since 1893, died Saturday at the City of Mexico, according to a telegram received here to-day from President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California. The telegram states that Prof. Matzke died after a sudden attack of cerebral hemorrhages. Prof. Matzke was representing Stanford at the opening exercises of the New National University of Mexico. He was at one time Professor of French at Boston College, and later of the Faculty of Indiana University.

Josef Kainz.

VIENNA, Sept. 20.—Josef Kainz, the German dramatic actor, died to-day. He was born in 1858 and made his first appearance on the stage when he was sixteen years of age. He had toured the larger cities of America. He was a son of a railway official and married Margarette Nansen. Since 1899 he had been a member of the Imperial Theatre in Vienna, and plays that made his name popular throughout Germany and Austria include "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet," and "The Jewess of Toledo."

MORGAN MAY ENTER INTER-MET. BOARD

Wall Street Hears a Syndicate of Bankers Is to Undertake Financing for Company.

New Issue for That Figure Expected to Enable Inter.-Met. to Retain Metropolitan Street Railway.

Although it could not be officially confirmed yesterday, Wall Street heard on what it regarded as good authority that an association of bankers combining the First National Bank, the National City Bank, and J. P. Morgan & Co. is about to undertake financing for the Interborough-Metropolitan Company to a substantial amount, and that as part of the plan representatives of each of the bankers will soon be elected to the Interborough-Metropolitan board. Nothing definite was obtainable yesterday as to the amount of the financing or the exact purpose to which it is to be put, but rumors which satisfied the Street put the total of securities to be issued at present at $20,000,000. J. P. Morgan, Jr., and H. P. Davison, representing J. P. Morgan & Co., and Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank, were named in the stories current yesterday as the new blood which is soon to be infused into the traction board.

The next Directors' meeting of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 5, and at that meeting vacancies in the board might be filled. The regular meeting of stockholders for the election of Directors does not take place until Jan. 11. President Shonts of the Interborough-Metropolitan would not discuss the report, and it was impossible to obtain a definite statement from the bankers yesterday. J. P. Morgan & Co. have been identified with Interborough-Metropolitan financing for some time, and only last July these interests purchased $4,000,000 five-year notes of the company. At the annual meeting last January President Shonts told stockholders that J. P. Morgan & Co. stood ready to advance $100,000,000 if necessary to finance extensions of the company's Subway system.

What the immediate purpose of the company might be in seeking funds Wall Street was able only to guess at yesterday. One of the suggestions put forward was that it was to put the company in a position to pay the assessment which the reorganization of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company is expected to require on its stock, and thus permit the Inter-Met. to continue in the dominant position in Metropolitan Street Railway affairs. The Interborough-Metropolitan as a holding company has no other assets than its holdings of $33,912,800 Interborough Rapid Transit Company stock, $42,740,000 of Metropolitan Street Railway Company stock, and $29,392,000 Metropolitan Securities Company stock.

J. P. Morgan, Jr., and H. P. Davison have been in conference with the Public Service Commission recently and it was said in the Street yesterday that proposed financing for the extension of the Manhattan elevated third tracks have been practically concluded. While it was pointed out that the Manhattan Railway improvements would probably be financed by obligations of that railroad which is operated under lease by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the part played by these men in the negotiations was taken as confirmation of the belief that they would be two of the new members to be elected to the Inter.-Met. Board.

MISS LEONORE COBB A BRIDE.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ives Cobb Wedded to Robert Amory, Jr.

The wedding of Robert Amory, Jr., and Miss Leonore Cobb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ives Cobb of 128 West Fifty-ninth Street, took place yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Messiah.

Both families being in deep mourning, the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Robert Collyer, assisted by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, was witnessed by the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom only, and there was no reception.

Mr. Cobb gave his daughter in marriage. The latter wore a simple gown of white satin and had no attendants.

Cleveland Cobb, a brother of the bride, was Mr. Amory's best man, and the ushers were Candler Cobb, Arthur E. Hutchinson, George Minot, George S. West, Amory Leland, Jr., and Abbot Goodhue, who took the place of Elliot Cobb, who was unable to attend. The best man and ushers are all Harvard men, as is Mr. Amory.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory will live in Boston, where Mr. and Mrs. Amory's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Amory, make their residence. The Amorys also have a country place, The Eyrie, at Bar Harbor, Me. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb have a country place, Rockdale Farm, at Brewster, N. Y., from which they returned to town a few days ago.

DIPPEL BACK FROM EUROPE.

Says Strauss's New Opera, "Der Rosencavalier," Will Be Seen Here.

Andreas Dippel, the director of the Chicago Opera Company, arrived yesterday on the Kronprinz Welhelm, this time to remain in America until the close of the opera season. Mr. Dippel has been in and out of New York several times during the Summer, but he has returned to stay now. His principal announcement was that Strauss's new opera, as yet uncompleted, to be called "Der Rosencavalier," will be given in New York before the end of the season.

"The opera is not to be produced in Germany until December, and it cannot be done here until after that," said Mr. Dippel. "The company will be playing in Philadelphia at the end of the season and Tuesday nights in New York, so that Chicago will not hear the opera this season. However, New York and Philadelphia will."

"Der Rosencavalier" differs materially from the other operas of Strauss. It is rococo in style and is said to contain a waltz after the best Viennese manner. Von Hofmannsthal, who wrote "Elektra," has furnished the libretto.

Mr. Dippel has also acquired the rights to Wolf-Ferrari's opera "Suzanna's Secret." Wolf-Ferrari is known to American concert goers chiefly through his oratorio "La Vita Nuova," which was sung several seasons ago by the Oratorio Society.

"Suzanna's Secret" is in one act, and the story concerns a young woman who smokes cigarettes without her husband's knowledge. When he smells cigarette smoke in her room naturally his jealousy is aroused, as he fancies some man must have visited her. Mr. Renaud is to sing the part of the husband in this opera, announced Mr. Dippel, and it is to be given in conjunction with "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame."

Mr. Dippel confirmed the announcement which has already been made that he would produce Saint-Saëns's "Henry VIII.," Nogué's "Quo Vadis," and Victor Herbert's "Natoma."

Mr. Dippel announced yesterday that in addition to the regular company engaged for Chicago the following members of the Metropolitan Company would sing "guest" engagements in Chicago: Miss Géraldine Farrar and Messrs. Caruso, Slezak, Jadlowker, and Scotti; from the Boston company, Lydia Lipkowska, Carmen Melis, Alice Nielsen, and Messrs. Constantino and George Baklanoff.

POSTUM.

PRESSED HARD

Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

A superintendent of public schools in a Southern state says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach.

"Some time ago, I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavour of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum. I was so pleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal: the whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely.

"I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us.

"I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but in a more marked degree in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Bill Steele, a big, husky coal miner from Pennsylvania, knew a lot more about pitching than the Giants knew about batting in the first game at the Polo Grounds yesterday. With Steele guiding the ball on its career toward McGraw's batsmen, and with St. Louis playing a gorgeous fielding game, the Cardinals had no trouble in winning 5 to 1. Mathewson came forth in the second battle, and even then the Giants had the time of their lives in finishing in front, 3 to 2. Matty was batted twice as hard as Zmich, but he got out of some pretty tight places. His whooping three-bagger in the third inning helped some. He also fanned ten batsmen.

A dramatic moment came in the sixth inning of the first game when Rube Ellis jolted the ball into the right field grand stand for a homer, sending in one runner ahead of him. That wasn't the only hard punch that Crandall received, for Evans, Huggins, and Mowrey soaked three-baggers against the fence and Hauser had a double.

In the second clash the Giants gave a most remarkable exhibition of base stealing. Bliss was the Cardinal catcher in this session, and New York stole ten bases on him. Don't imagine now that the Giants have suddenly developed into a bunch of 10-second sprinters. Nay, nay, all the thievery was made possible because Bliss's arm got glassy and his eye foggy.

New York rang up the first fare in the opening verse. Abbott got Devore's fly. Doyle went to first because Steele hit him with the ball. Snodgrass flied to Evans. Doyle went around to third base on Murray's single. The two started to steal and Doyle scored when Huggins missed Phelps's throw to second base.

The sixth inning saw the Giants' finish. Doyle hurled Abbott out to Merkle. Hauser cracked a two-bagger along the left field foul line, scoring on Steele's single. Murray got a high fly that bounded off Huggins's bat. Ellis favored soon after with a high screamer into the grand stand for the circuit, Steele traveling in ahead of him.

Another run was added in the seventh inning. Snodgrass made a fine catch of Konetchy's long drive to centre. Evans tripled to deep left field and scored when Meyers dropped Merkle's throw to the plate, after Phelps grounded. The fifth run was registered in the eighth inning. With one out Huggins drove a wicked wallop to centre field for three bases. Ellis rolled a hot grounder just out of Doyle's reach and Huggins counted. There was some smart fielding by both teams, the Cardinals having three double plays and the Giants two.

Zmich, the St. Louis flinger in the second game, started off nervously. He walked Devore, who immediately stole second and third bases. Oh, yes, Phelps threw the ball down to the bases, but not rapidly enough. Doyle flied to short left field, Snodgrass whizzed a two-bagger close to the left field foul line, and Devore scored. Murray forced Snodgrass out between second and third bases, and Abbott collared Bridwell's flier.

Mathewson opened the third inning with a terrific smash between right and centre fields, and, running easily, he got to third on scheduled time. Devore walked again and stole. Doyle smashed out a single to left field, scoring the two gentlemen mentioned above. Snodgrass flied out and Doyle tried to get to second after the catch, but he was nipped, Ellis to Huggins.

St. Louis got its first tally after a peculiar home run by Hauser, the diminutive shortstop. He smashed a warm grasser into the left field pocket. Some one had left the gate wide open. The ball drifted through the open gate, so Hauser was allowed to score, although he only got as far as third on the hit. Cinch.

The second run was scored in the sixth inning, Huggins doubled and Ellis fanned. Bridwell got Mowrey's fly and Huggins stole third. Konetchy walked, and the fourth ball that Matty threw at him was so wild that Huggins scored.

The Cardinals had no trouble in hitting Matty, but he was effective when a much-needed hit was impending.

Cubs Beat Brooklyn Twice.

At Washington Park yesterday Chicago took both games by scores of 5 to 4 and 3 to 0. Knetzer was batted freely in the first, the visitors making seven doubles, of which Schulte got three. Overall tied the season's strikeout record here in the second game, fanning thirteen, Hummel being a victim four times in a row. Bell pitched well up to the seventh, when a home run broke the string of goose eggs. Manager Dahlen was sent to the clubhouse in the second game for criticising Umpire Johnston's decisions on strikes. The scores:

MANCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 20.—Yale and Princeton will meet in the finals on the Essex Country Club links to-morrow for the intercollegiate golf team championship as a result of their victories over Harvard and Dartmouth, respectively, to-day.

Yale defeated Harvard 8 to 1, taking all but one of the singles in the morning and winning all but three foursomes in the afternoon, while Princeton, by taking all the afternoon foursomes, beat Dartmouth 6 to 3. F. W. Sargent was the only Harvard man to win during the day, defeating H. G. Legg 1 up in nineteen holes in the morning. All the scoring was rather high. Mosser and Waldo of Yale had one of the best scores of the afternoon foursomes with two 88s for a 76, while Seckel and Huston of Princeton had a 37 and 39 for a 76. Martin of Dartmouth had a very good individual score in the foursomes, but was handicapped by the work of his partner, Wells. The scores:

YALE CRUDE IN NEW FOOTBALL

First Scrimmage Under Revised Code Results in Confusion.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEVILLE, Conn., Sept. 20.—Yale football coaches to-day tried out the new rules, ordering the first scrimmages, which included line plunging. The plays which were attempted proved confusing, and it was clear that the players were unable to divest themselves of tackling and interfering ideas which they had learned under the old rules. Robinson and Capt. Daly made long runs, but were not allowed to make touchdowns.

Charley Paul, who has been laid off three days, returned to the game to-day, but was assigned to guard instead of tackle, his former place. Coaches Ted Coy, Harry Holt, and George Adee directed the eleven.

Ralph Bloomer and Burr Chamberlin, who were expected to-day, failed to arrive. In response to the call of Head Coach Coy, Ned Glass and Foster Sanford have sent word that they will be here late this week.

Young Lawson Out for Football.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 20.—The second day of football practice at Harvard saw thirty-four men at work to-day. Morning and afternoon sessions were held. The squad was augmented by the arrival of O'Flaherty and Wigglesworth, the "H" quarter backs. "Dog" Lawson, son of Thomas W. Lawson, was another newcomer. Lawson will try for an end position. To-day's practice was devoted mostly to rudimentary drill, with the exception of some forward passing.

Golf at Atlantic City's Country Club.

The Country Club of Atlantic City is preparing a varied and interesting programme for its Fall golf tournament, to take place on Oct. 20, 21, and 22. Usually these tournaments are patronized by the best metropolitan golfers, and the indications are that this year's tournament will be no exception to the rule.

MOTOR BOATS RACE TO-DAY.

Big Fleet Will Start This Morning in Hudson River Carnival.

With a record entry list, the first races of the National Motor Boat Carnival will be started this morning at 9:30 o'clock from a point in the Hudson River off 158th Street. There will be two races—one for speed boats to Poughkeepsie and return, a distance of 115 miles, and one for cruising boats to Peekskill and return, about 60 miles. The speed boats will race in one class, and all will be rated according to the American Power Boat Association rules. First and second and third prizes will be offered, providing seven boats start; first and second prizes if four start, and only first prize if less than four come to the gun. A prize for the best elapsed time will also be given.

The cruising boats will race in two classes—one for boats under forty feet and the other for larger craft. The same rating rules will apply in these classes. The prizes will be distributed to the two classes in the same manner that the speed boat prizes were arranged. On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday there will be series races over a five-mile triangular course, laid out with the northern mark on the Jersey side, opposite Fort Washington Point, and the lower mark about 129th Street. The third mark will be off the regatta boat at 158th Street, on the New York shore.

Slippers Held Not to be "Wearing Apparel," Pay Duty as "Shoes."

The Board of United States General Appraisers solved a troublesome case of tariff classification yesterday when it was formally decided that slippers composed of cotton and leather are "shoes," and not "wearing apparel," as returned for duty by Collector Loeb. The question of the classification of the slippers has proved a puzzling one at several of the chief ports of the country, and the board's decision will have the effect of making the classification uniform at all of the ports.

Collector Loeb assessed the slippers for duty as wearing apparel in chief value of cotton under Paragraph 324 of the act of 1909, while Thomas Meadows & Co., the importers, set up the contention that the articles should be allowed to enter as "shoes of leather," with a tax of 10 per cent. under Paragraph 420 of the law. General Appraiser Cooper, who writes the decision for the board, appears to reach his conclusion in favor of the importers on the ground that the leather in the slippers is more costly than the cotton material, and on this account the classification of "shoes of leather" is granted.

Domestic shoe manufacturing interests combined with the Government in the effort to convince the board that the higher duty imposed by Collector Loeb should be upheld, but without success. The undisputed testimony shows that the value of the cotton in the slippers is 3s. 11½d. per dozen pairs. Counsel for the Government contended that the cost of combining several pieces of cotton and sewing them into the form of uppers should be added to the cost of the cotton. This amount is 9d. per dozen pairs, and includes 2d. worth of cotton thread. The General Appraiser says that if this latter item is added the cotton is the more valuable component. In finding for the importers of the English slippers General Appraiser Cooper says, in part:

"The values above given include the cost of cutting the cotton and the leather into shapes ready to be sewn together, which, in our opinion, is in harmony with the Seeberger and Johnson cases. Then the various materials were 'in such condition that nothing remained to be done upon them except putting them together' to make the slippers, sewing the cotton into the uppers, and attaching the uppers to the leather sole and heel.

"It is our opinion that it would be in conflict with the decisions cited to hold that this 9d. per dozen pairs for sewing together the uppers should be added to the cost of the cotton, and the addition of the 2d. for cotton thread is not sufficient to make cotton the chief component. We find that the merchandise consists of shoes in chief value of leather of the bovine species. We hold them dutiable at the rate of 10 per cent. ad valorem. The protest is sustained and reliquidation will follow."

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JOHN CLAFFY'S SONS.—Judge Holt has appointed Walter C. Low receiver in bankruptcy for John E. Claffy, who did business as John Claffy's Sons, dealers in contractors' supplies at 48 Dey Street.

TOM KRAMER.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Tom Kramer, jobber in cotton goods and clothiers' linings, at 257 Canal Street, show liabilities of $20,475 and no assets. Among the creditors are H. Herman Sternbach & Co., $3,407; William Alsberg & Co., $2,803; Hahlo & Co., $2,590; Morse Brothers & Ehrlich, $1,812, and Brauer & Louis, $1,276.

BYRON H. HOOPER.—Byron H. Hooper, bookkeeper, of 219 West 121st Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $985 and assets of 30 cents cash in bank. He owes the Manhattan Republican Club of 201 West 139th Street $7 for dues, and among the other debts are for board and lodging, $288; loan, $265; two doctors, $50; laundry, $10, and accident policy premium, $10. He filed the petition as a poor person, unable to pay the court fees of $30.

INTERNATIONAL SKIRT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Edward Silberstein, manufacturer of skirts under the trade style of the International Skirt Company at 106 Greene Street by these creditors: Henry Fruchtenberg, $307 on an assigned claim of Klein Brothers; Benedict Masel, $150 for security left with Mr. Silberstein by Sol Replansky, a designer, and Harris Lapin, $51. It was alleged that he is insolvent and transferred $2,000 to some creditors to prefer them. The assets are estimated at $1,200.

SPENCER-BLAKE REALTY COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Spencer-Blake Realty Company of 39 East Forty-second Street, by these creditors: Schaeffler & Harrington, $7,257, for work and materials; Adam Happel, $75, and Sady Peckit, $259. It is alleged that the company is insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy by mortgaging on March 29 property at the southeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 143d Street, for $13,000, to the Corn Exchange Realty Company, which mortgage was not recorded until June 28. This mortgage is under foreclosure, and the sale was to have taken place yesterday by order of Henry P. Keith, referee, but just as Bryan L. Kennelly, the auctioneer, started to announce the terms of the sale he was served with the bankruptcy papers and the sale was adjourned until Sept. 27. The petitioning creditors assert that the purpose of the sale is to defeat their claims, as there are four mortgages on the property aggregating $30,000, and they estimate the value of the property at only $22,000. They also stated that in 1908 the premises were sold under foreclosure for $9,475. The Spencer-Blake Realty Company was incorporated on Nov. 27, 1908, with a capital stock of $5,000.

Groff Country School
Deal Beach, N. J.

An unrivalled Boarding School for Boys at "Kildysart," a magnificent estate originally owned by the late Daniel O'Day, on the New Jersey coast, entirely beyond description. Fall and winter climate delightful. Grounds far enough from ocean.

Here boys are thoroughly and quickly prepared for college entrance, through direct personal tutoring by expert teachers who use an up to date system which makes each hour count. No cramming. No superficial study. No grades or forms that a boy must fit. Limited enrolment.

Timid, nervous and backward boys are encouraged and taught how to study. Bright boys advanced as rapidly as they become proficient. The definite policy is to gain the real interest of the boys in their work, thereby making petty restrictions unnecessary. Separate department for boys 8 to 14 years.

Mr. Groff has a hundred or more letters from enthusiastic parents, which he values highly, showing the high grade of success he has had for thirteen years in following the idea that the individual, and not the class, is the unit. Here is an extract from one letter:—"My son having failed completely in his preliminary examination for college, entered your school and in one year he covered two regular school years of work as is done at most schools, and not only passed his examinations easily for college, but also with credit to himself and to his school." A thorough commercial course is provided for boys who do not intend to enter college.

You should see this superb school personally. It is easy of access from New York City. Visitors always welcome. There is adequate class room, every comfort of the modern home, with boating on Deal Lake, golf, horseback riding, baseball, football and other outdoor sports, all carefully directed. The views here shown give some idea of the magnificent building and its picturesque surroundings.

The Groff School at 228 W. 72d Street, New York City, is an ideal day school for boys, where the same high standard of personal instruction of the Groff Country School is maintained. A most modern and complete school building, on one of the best streets in the city. All preparation of lessons at the school directed by regular teachers. Free use of largest gymnasium in New York. Also swimming pool and athletic field—all conveniently near. Limited enrolment. Separate departments for boys 8 to 14 years. Fall term begins September 29th.
HARTMAN NAYLOR, Ph. D., Headmaster.

Fall term begins on September 26th. WYATT W. RANDALL, Ph. D., Headmaster.

If you wish to have your money earn the comparatively high rate of interest to which it is entitled under conditions existing in the field of conservative investment, you can do no better than to purchase high-grade corporation bonds.

The corporation bonds recommended by us are not only safe as to principal and interest, but have a good market, and should prove to be profitable investments. The properties are managed by capable and experienced men, and the earnings show a large surplus beyond interest requirements.

Improvement

The bond market shows indications of broadening, prices of investment bonds are slightly higher, and bonds are becoming scarcer. However, many safe first mortgage bonds are still obtainable to yield from 5% to 7%.

For instance, we offer a First Mortgage Steam Railroad Bond to yield 5.20%. The road is bonded at $8,000 a mile, and net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1910, were about 3 times interest charges. The country served is fertile and productive, and the road's freight revenue is largely derived from the transportation of agricultural products.

THE STEEL TRADE POSITION

Reported Concessions Form Factor in Market's Course—Foreign Exchange Weak After Prolonged Firmness.

A rather vigorous rally in prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday was checked early in the afternoon by a renewal of recent reports of drastic and general reductions in prices of steel products. These reports were put into circulation on the Stock Exchange at the moment that the Executive Committee of the Steel Corporation met for its regular Tuesday session, and from this fact and the common knowledge of the financial community that contraction in the trade has been sharp, sufficient credibility attached to them to affect the market. Under professional selling prices sold off easily, led by United States Steel common, which declined 2 points or so, but subsequent short covering reversed the current to such an extent that final quotations in a majority of instances represented small advances over Monday night's levels. It was obvious, again, that the market's movements in the main responded closely to the fancies of professional traders; their operations comprise so large a part of the small volume of business going forward on the Stock Exchange these days that the pace of the market is really set by them and the danger is that the casual observer of financial affairs may for this reason come to mistake a really superficial appraisal of current financial events for that of the financial community as a whole. Nothing could better illustrate the distance which really separates the two groups, however, than this very matter of concessions in steel products. The trader professes to see nothing but auguries of disaster in such reductions, whereas the less hasty judgment of the conservative element in the financial district is that concessions must eventually become important inducements to purchasers to enter the steel market. That this will prove to be the outcome is plainly the expectation of the Steel Corporation itself as the statement issued long after the close of business yesterday by Judge Gary proves. It is perhaps not too much to assert that this statement will come to be looked upon as the turning point for the better in the trade just as was the similar announcement in the Spring of 1909.

Indefinite and entirely unofficial reports regarding new financing by the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, and in connection therewith the entrance into the board of that corporation of high banking interests, were much discussed during the day, and while, as has been said, entirely unconfirmed officially, the rumors were nevertheless considered as quite likely to be fulfilled in the near future. Presumably the securities of the company have been reflecting some such step in its affairs, although it must be added that speculative operations such as have marked similar proceedings by the same company in the past have played a not unimportant part in the rise. Much fruitless speculation was indulged in regarding the conference between President Taft and Mr. Roosevelt, but upon the whole satisfaction was taken in the seemingly firm stand which the President has at last assumed in respect to current political agitation. Money market matters were of minor interest; time rates were a trifle harder again, while foreign exchange ruled weaker.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

The activity of the day on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was in the final two hours. Prices, which had been strong in the forenoon, gave way easily in the early afternoon under the lead of United States Steel common, which was attacked by the floor traders, who based their selling upon fresh reports of poor steel trade conditions. All the offerings, however, appeared to be absorbed at the lower levels, and the market closed with a rally in progress. Transactions totaled 70,980 shares, with forty-three different issues represented on the list.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—Until United States Steel started to fall in the last hour, prices were firm in this city. A rise of a point in Lehigh Valley was heralded with considerable excitement. The sudden jump in "Valley" came right at the opening. The execution of a buying order for about 1,000 shares lifted the price across 80, and thereafter it ruled a shade above that figure until late in the day, when the whole list eased off in sympathy with the reaction in New York.

Improving Bond Market.

Bankers are talking cheerfully of the bond market. They are not exaggerating the importance of the present revival in demand from many quarters, having vividly in mind the false starts the market has made on several occasions within a year, but they are inclined, nevertheless, to look upon the renewed activity in this department as a really hopeful sign. Big blocks of high-grade bonds have been resting in first hands for many months, and syndicate members of many underwriting groups have likewise been in possession of quotas, received in some cases more than a year ago, upon the closing up of transactions of this kind. It is with such holdings that the present movement is concerned. Smaller bond houses, whose supplies have been kept down to a minimum, in accordance with the slight demand, have had inquiries enough from customers, individual and corporate, to warrant them in increasing their lines in anticipation of a broader call. They are, therefore, taking off the hands of the larger banking houses and members of syndicates mentioned bonds which have been long deposited in strong boxes or carried with the banks. An interesting feature of the bond market situation is the pressure which some of the larger investment institutions are experiencing, owing to their accumulations of unusual supplies of cash. Executives of these concerns have been holding off in the expectation that something a little better in the way of bargains might be found in the bond market, but in some instances, at least, accumulations have become so great that quick placement in securities would follow any unmistakable evidence of a turn upward in prices.

The Cotton Bill Dispute.

Confusion still exists in the views held by banking interests of the situation which will result from a continuation of the present deadlock over cotton bills of lading, and there is also a disposition to regard the matter as one which may be finally settled without an absolute break in the relations heretofore existing between American bankers and foreign bankers in respect to financing cotton shipments. If the dispute remains unsettled by Oct. 31, the date set by the foreign bankers as that after which they will take no bills without the guarantee, the one thing certain is that a considerable strain will be imposed upon the local money markets in October and November. Cotton is late anyway, a fact which will throw the financing further on than usual. The movement, under a cash payment plan, must be delayed and somewhat broken, and in the interval cotton will have to be warehoused and carried with our own resources. Loans to Southern institutions already made, and maturing in October and November, will have to be renewed, and banks which had been counting upon the payment of such obligations to finance other projects purposely arranged for those dates will have to advise postponement.

A Dividend Investigation.

It had been expected that at yesterday's meeting of the Directors of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, some difinite word would be forthcoming from the committee appointed by the board in June last to canvass the advisability of initiating dividend payments on the common stock. All that this committee did, however, at yesterday's meeting, was to report progress, which, of course, means that the stockholders will have to wait some time for the decision. When the committee was appointed it was instructed to make a thorough investigation into the company's earnings and its financial position and prospects, to determine whether dividends on the common shares were justified. No intimation of its findings has come out up to the present, but the absence of two of its members, James M. Gifford, Second Vice President, and Robert S. Bradley, Chairman of the board, who are in Europe attending the German conference on the potash situation, presumably has delayed the investigation.

Writing Off a Surplus.

In the annual report of the Lake Superior Corporation, the new name of the old Lake Superior Consolidated Company, which had such a troubled financial career, there was found yesterday an announcement by the management that owing to losses existing in inventories of materials and in the settling of old accounts outstanding, it had been deemed wise to write off the accumulated profit and loss surplus of the corporation. This item had been carried at $547,525, and its place has been taken by the figures of the actual surplus accruing on last year's operations, this amounting to $3,368. This is a drastic step, but its frank adoption by the corporation was generally commended and will put the company in decidedly better shape for the future.

WEATHER FOR THE WEEK.

Favorable for Corn, Report Says—Not Rain Enough for Cotton.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Favorable weather for corn, plenty of sunshine, but not enough rain for cotton, too cold in Pacific Coast States for fruit, and generally not enough rain on the great plains, was the report for the week over the crop-growing area. The Weather Bureau issued to-day a summary for the week as follows:

The weather of the week as a whole was favorable over the corn-growing States, although it was somewhat too cool and cloudy during the early part of the week over the more western portions, and too cool during most of the week over the eastern districts. The general lack of rain and high percentage of sunshine were favorable to the maturing of corn, but more warm weather is still needed in portions of the Middle Mississippi Valley.

Over the cotton-growing States east of the Mississippi there was an abundance of sunshine and practically no rain occurred except locally near the coast, but it was generally too cool during most of the week over the more eastern portions. West of the Mississippi there were some heavy rains in Central Eastern, and Southern Texas, but over the remaining portions of Texas and in Louisiana, Arkansas, and Oklahoma there was a general absence of rain, and warm, sunshiny, favorable weather was the rule.

Over the Atlantic Coast districts from the Carolinas northward the week was generally clear and cool, with some heavy frosts at exposed points in the northern and mountain districts near the end of the week. But little rain occurred, and the ground is generally in need of moisture, especially in portions of Maryland and the adjoining States.

Along the northern border from the upper lakes to the Rocky Mountains, considerable cloudy weather prevailed, but generally without rain.

In the Rocky Mountain and plateau States good rains occurred in many localities, greatly relieving the protracted drought conditions that had prevailed, especially from Utah northwestward over Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington.

In Northern California the week was generally too cool, and some damage resulted to the fruit interests on account of unusually heavy rains, especially in portions of the San Joaquin Valley.

Over much the greater part of the country the precipitation for the week was very light, and large areas in the great plains, the Middle Mississippi Valley, and the northern and central portions of the Gulf States were without any rain during the week.

Precipitation was above the normal generally over the plateau and Pacific Coast States and in small areas of Texas, Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana, and locally at a few other points, but over the greater part of the region from the Rocky Mountains eastward there was nearly a total deficiency.

The rainfall for the season, March 1 to date, is still deficient over much of the country, and the water supply continues low in many sections.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Money was easily obtainable and discount rates were weak to-day.

The stock market was dull and uninteresting. A few home rails and Kaffirs hardened and consols were steady, but the other sections were easy. Rubber shares were weak on the lower prices at the crude rubber auctions.

American securities opened firm and a fraction higher. Prices advanced during the early session on fair buying, with the Pacific stocks and United States Steel the leaders. New York support further advanced values in the afternoon, and the market closed firm.

Bar silver steady, 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, ¾@1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2½@2⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills 2 13-16@2⅞ per cent.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—About all the active issues in the local market show some decline for the day. Amalgamated sold off to 62½, Lake to 32, Indiana to 13, while quite heavy selling in North Butte was noticed during the afternoon. This selling was said to have been induced by uncertainty as to the dividend which was due to be declared to-day. The general market closed steady at a slight rally from the low point of the day.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

There was a dull, firm market in wheat, with final prices at about the best of the day. The market opened up on the cables, and, notwithstanding the reports of dull cash trade and a large increase in European visible, there was very little recession, and the final prices were firm. The cables were higher, owing it was stated to decreasing offerings from Southeastern Europe and an advance in Black Sea freights, which necessitated higher asking prices.

The European visible showed an increase of only 1,600,000 bushels, compared with an increase of 12,100,000 bushels last week. Later the markets reacted somewhat on liberal Northwestern receipts and a good gain in Minneapolis stocks. In two days the Western receipts have increased 500,000 bushels. Shipments, however, have increased 800,000 bushels. The increase in the weekly visible, both in Europe and America, was 5,115,000 bushels, against an increase of 15,391,000 bushels last week and an increase of 11,115,000 bushels last year. The total American visible is 47,446,000 bushels, and world's visible 134,366,000 bushels, against 85,014,000 bushels last year. There was a little export inquiry, but export bids generally continue out of line. Sales were two loads of Manitoba wheat. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red Winter, $1.04½, elevator; No. 2 red spot, nominal, new, $1.04⅝, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.24¼; No. 2 hard Winter, new, $1.05⅝; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.09¾. Sales include 16,000 bushels Manitoba at outports.

The corn market was weak and fairly active. Prices declined rather easily, owing to the very favorable weather. The conditions have been nearly ideal for some days, and, as showing the advancement of the crop, the Iowa State report claims that 65 to 70 per cent. of the crop is safe from an ordinary frost. This is probably the condition throughout the greater portion of the important corn States of the central belt. Bradstreet's visible increased 762,000 bushels, and the total is 7,387,000 bushels. Cash corn was moderately active. Export sales of eight carloads were reported. Cash corn quoted: No. 2, 64c, nominal, elevator, to arrive. cost, insurance, and freight, domestic basis, and steamer, nominal, elevator, export basis. Sales include 24,000 bushels, to arrive, cost, insurance, and freight, free on board, and 40,000 bushels outports.

Oats were quiet and easier in sympathy with the decline in corn, and also on the big stocks. The receipts were also large. Bradstreet's visible increased 430,000 bushels, and the total is 34,104,000 bushels. The Chicago total stocks increased 225,000 bushels, with the total 14,524,000 bushels, including 6,638,000 bushels contract. Standards, 40½c; No. 2 white, 41c; No. 3 white, 39¾c; No. 4 white, 39¼c; natural white, 39@41½c; white clipped, 40@44c.

Provisions were rather quiet, but also firm. The hog movement was disappointing, and with some covering of shorts prices were advanced and the close was steady. The total hog movement continues disappointing.

COTTON.

The cotton market was quiet, but firm. The best prices of the day were made the last hour. The early market was higher on the strength of the cables, which were reported up on the strength of spot offerings from the South. From this advance there was a partial reaction due to the very favorable weather conditions throughout the South and the increasing receipts. The Galveston receipts showed a large gain over last year, and there was also a gain in the Houston receipts. On the other hand the receipts in the Southwest were less than last year. A report from the Commissioner of Agriculture of Alabama reporting boll weevil in Mobile County, and predicting that six to ten counties would be infested, and in the afternoon a report from Arkansas claiming boll weevil in the southeastern part of that State, brought considerable covering. It was also stated that the advices to the Mercantile Crop Reporting Association, while showing a slightly better promise than last month in the Carolinas and Georgia, were on the whole unfavorable. The weekly weather report was in the main of a satisfactory tenor, reflecting what was generally shown in the daily report. There were also somewhat less optimistic reports from Egypt, and a private cable was received claiming that under the most favorable circumstances the crop would not be more than 6,500,000 bales. Southern spot markets were irregular, ranging from 1-16c advance to ⅛c decline.

New York spot cotton quiet, unchanged; middling uplands, 13.75c; middling Gulf, 14c.

COFFEE.

Active demand followed a quiet opening and the market closed steady at a net advance of 10@17 points. Sales were about 65,000 bags. The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points in response to higher European cables.

One of the largest importers received a cable from its correspondents in Santos saying: "Current crop disappointing; we reduce our estimate to 8,000,000 bags maximum. Weather unfavorable for the growing crop. Expect flowering this week, but cold winds may retard still longer. Rains so far insufficient. Exchange is fluctuating; Federal Senate discussing question conversion." Havre was ¾ to 1f and Hamburg 3 to 1 pfennig higher. Rio was 150 reis lower, Santos was firm and 50 reis higher. The Exchange rate itself was 7-16d lower, at 17 9-16d. Spot coffee firm, 10⅝c for Rio No. 7.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Market Shows Signs of Renewed Activity--Mrs. Stephen H. Olin Sells 35th Street Residence—Studebakers Lease New Quarters in 52d Street—Greenwich Village Deals.

The realty market showed decided evidence of renewed activity yesterday, the transactions being of a decidedly varied character. Of particular interest, as showing a demand for private homes, was the sale by Mrs. Stephen H. Olin, sister of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and cousin of the late E. H. Harriman, of her town residence, 107 East Thirty-fifth Street, a five-story English basement dwelling on lot 18.9 by 98.9, to Charles Roberts Hopkins, a resident of Philadelphia, who will occupy it. The house was extensively altered and decorated a few years ago under the supervision of the late Stanford White. It had been held at $90,000. Bryan L. Kennelly was the broker in the sale.

The house occupies a choice situation in the exclusive Murray Hill residential section, although not being in the restricted zone, being a few feet east of Park Avenue. Its purchase for occupancy indicates that despite the business encroachments in the Thirty-fourth Street district and on Madison Avenue, a few blocks to the north, Murray Hill still retains its prestige as a favorite private house community.

Studebakers' New Home in 52d St.

The Studebaker Brothers' Company, it was announced yesterday, will not go far from Times Square for their new carriage and automobile quarters. They have leased in the Randall Building, 136 to 146 West Fifty-second Street, for a long term, through the McVickar, Gaillard Realty Company, the entire store and basement and four lofts. The building has a frontage of 150 feet and is 100 feet deep, making an aggregate of nearly 100,000 square feet taken by the Studebakers.

The present Studebaker building, occupying the entire Forty-eighth Street frontage on the north side, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, was built about eight years ago and leased for twenty-one years with renewal privileges. It has been subleased to a company which proposes to use the entire structure as a hotel Rumor has associated the Bustanoby brothers of the Café des Beau Arts as the new tenants. The Studebaker firm does not expect to move before the close of the present year.

Old Greenwich Village House Sold.

The Louis C. Tinken estate, of which G. A. Vett is the executor, has sold through Gibbons & Young 13 Charles Street, a four-story and basement dwelling on lot 22 by 95, between Waverley Place and Greenwich Avenue. The property had not changed hands in forty years. The adjoining house, 11, was sold last week by the same brokers.

A quick resale of property, also in Greenwich Village, has been made by James H. Cruikshank in the property at 767 Greenwich Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 21 by 68, adjoining the southeast corner of Bank Street, which has been disposed of to an investor. Mr. Cruikshank bought the premises two or three weeks ago from George H. Budke.

Deal for Bleecker Street Loft.

The six-story loft building at 137 Bleecker Street, on plot 25 by 100, adjoining the northeast corner of West Broadway, has been sold by the Brown Realty Company to Cora L. Penney. The Realty Company obtained the property last June from Charles A. Thompson.

East Side Realty Shows Big Increase.

Joseph Lahren and Annie E. Lahren have sold to A. Grass the four-story and basement tenement with stores, 71 Avenue A, near Fifth Street. The present sellers bought the house about thirty years ago, and bought the fee of the land in 1898 from the estate of John Jacob Astor for $18,000, showing a phenomenal increase since 1898. The property sold is about 24 by 100. L. S. Altmayer, who negotiated the deal, reports that negotiations for the resale of the property are practically completed.

J. S. Cram Sells 34th Street Building.

J. Sargeant Cram has sold to Joseph F. Burroughs 646 West Thirty-fourth Street, a three-story building, on lot 25 by 98.9, between Eleventh and Twelfth Avenues.

Capt. John Link of the Fire Department has sold the three-story brownstone dwelling 34 East 126th Street, on lot 18.6 by 100. Barnett & Co. negotiated the sale.

Resale on Upper 8th Avenue.

The six-story flat, on plot 37.6 by 100, on the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and 154th Street, recently purchased by the Brown Realty Company from Cora L. Penney, has been resold by the former to an investor.

M. J. Collins has sold for Charles G. Burman 164 Schenectady Avenue, a brownstone dwelling, to a client for occupancy.

Suburban Sales.

Charles E. Talbot, Superintendent of the City Hospital of Newark, N. J., has purchased from the Mutual Realty Corporation a plot fronting 100 feet on Riverside Drive and 200 feet on Madison Avenue at Lackawanna Park. Mr. Talbot intends to erect a suburban residence.

William H. Ives of the publishing house of D. C. Heath & Co. has purchased a new residence on Park Hill Avenue, Park Hill on the Hudson, for immediate occupancy.

The Metropole Construction Company of Newark has purchased from Frederick H. Tiplin of that city a plot of vacant land on the southerly side of the Boulevard, between Bergen and Sip Avenues. It has a frontage of 106 feet on the Boulevard and a depth of 99 feet. The property will be improved with apartment houses.

Takes Suburban Property in Trade.

In part payment for the three apartment houses at 510 to 518 West 152d Street, just sold by Michael F. Burns to A. D. Thompson, the former has taken the Overlook Park estate, about 480 lots, at Glen Cove, L. I., adjoining the estates of FitzHugh Smith, F. S. Smithers, Levi C. Wier, and A. C. Bedford, and also a tract of seventy-one lots in Oakdale Park, Plainfield, N. J., opposite the Country Club. Both of these suburban properties were taken by Mr. Burns at a valuation of $90,000, free and clear.

Recent Buyers.

Charles A. Gachot is the buyer of 252 and 254 West Twenty-eighth Street, sold last week by Charles H. Freeman through Ames & Co.

Edwin J. Talley is the buyer of 162 West Eighty-fifth Street, sold recently by Mrs. W. Virginia Hill through Slawson & Hobbs.

Plans have been filed for a six-story brick loft on the east side of Third Avenue, 25.8 feet north of Eighty-ninth Street, for B. C. Gerken, at a cost of $30,000. The building will have a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 104 feet with an extension. John C. W. Ruhl is the architect.

Receiver of Rents.

Justice Bijur of the Supreme Court has appointed Charles M. Tirrell receiver of the rents of 427 to 435 East 121st Street, two six-story tenements, pending suits brought by Emma Scheuerman and Charles D. O'Connell against Hyman Levin and others to foreclose two mortgages aggregating $5,000.

ALWYN COVRT

These apartments express every exclusive and luxurious feature of the finest private residence.

The rooms are all light—many of the suites having four exposures. In most of the suites all of the sleeping and living rooms face the street, none open on the court. The entertaining rooms, including a Living Room 19x30, Music Room 25x17, Library or Billiard Room 18x17, and Reception Room 15x21, are arranged around a uniquely constructed conservatory. Any number of large closets—one specially for millinery, etc., divided into glass-partitioned compartments—open off from the sleeping rooms.

A kitchen 13x20, probably the largest in any apartment house in New York, completely fitted out, and excellent accommodations for the servants, largely eliminate the servant troubles. Additional rooms can be rented.

RECEIVERS' SALES.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT FOR the Southern District of New York.—GEORGE P. HUDSON, Complainant, against NEW YORK & ALBANY TRANSPORTATION COMPANY, Defendant.—EMPIRE TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, Intervenor, against GEORGE P. HUDSON and others.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to an order of resale made by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the above-entitled cause on September 13th, 1910, and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court on September 16th, 1910, I, Joseph H. Choate, Junior, as Receiver of the defendant New York & Albany Transportation Company, in exercise of the powers and duties by said order conferred upon me, will on the 29th day of September, 1910, at twelve o'clock noon of that day, offer for sale by Joseph P. Day, Esq., auctioneer, by public auction to the highest bidder, the property, a brief general description of which is given below, in accordance with the terms and provisions of said order, on the steps of the north main entrance of the New York County Court House, Chambers Street, in the Borough of Manhattan in the City of New York.

The following is a brief general description of the property to be sold:

The property of the defendant, New York & Albany Transportation Company, namely, the two steamboats "Frank Jones" and "Saratoga," together with their engines and boilers, as the same shall be on the day of the sale directed in and by said order of resale, together, also, with such permanent additions or fixtures as have been made or affixed to the hulls or structures of said steamboats or either of them since July 27th, 1909; and together, also, with such tackle, apparel, and furniture as was sold with said vessels on said July 27th, 1909, and still remains on board (but without any tackle, apparel and/or furniture placed on board by the purchaser or possessor under the sale of July 27th, 1909); and all the right, title and interest of said defendant New York & Albany Transportation Company in and to said property. The said tackle, apparel and furniture to be sold, as aforesaid, will be sold without warranty or representation by or on behalf of the Receiver as to the kind, quality, quantity, value or existence thereof.

All the said property will be sold in one parcel, free and clear of all maritime, statutory or other liens of any nature, kind or description whatsoever, excepting only maritime liens and statutory liens based on credit extended to said vessels, or either of them, arising or arisen since July 27th, 1909, and excepting also like liens existing on July 27th, 1909, but not submitted to the Special Master appointed in the above entitled suit.

The said property will be sold for cash only, and the lowest bid which will be received or accepted, will be $70,000 lawful money of the United States.

The successful bidder shall forthwith pay in cash to the Receiver ten per cent. of the amount of such bid, and shall pay in cash the remaining ninety per cent. of such bid on delivery of the bill of sale and of possession of said property.

Any sale shall be subject to confirmation by the Court, and if any bid shall be accepted by the Court and the bidder thereof shall fail to comply with all the conditions of sale and the orders of the Court in respect thereof, all moneys paid or deposited on account of his bid or as part thereof shall be forfeited and applied as the Court may direct.

The "Frank Jones" may be inspected by intending bidders on the 21st, 23d, 27th, and 29th days of September, 1910, and the "Saratoga" on the 22d, 24th, 26th, and 28th days of September, 1910, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and three o'clock in the afternoon at Pier No. 39 North River, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, and the Receiver will have a representative on board at the times aforesaid to show said vessels.

For further information as to the tackle, apparel, and furniture to be sold reference is made to the inventories, schedules, and other written information in the possession of the Receiver, which may be examined during office hours at his office, No. 60 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Such inventories, schedules, or other written information shall not be nor be construed as warranties or representations by or on behalf of the Receiver, but any purchaser at said sale shall be held to rely solely upon his own knowledge of the kind, quality, quantity, value, or existence of any tackle, apparel, or furniture on, and/or appertaining to the "Frank Jones" or "Saratoga," or both or either of them.

For the particulars as to the said sale and the terms and conditions thereof, and as to the property to be sold, reference is made to said order of resale dated September 13th, 1910, and filed in said suit in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on September 16th, 1910, and to the terms of sale, copies of which may be obtained at the Receiver's said office.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE, Jr., Receiver,
60 Wall Street, New York City.

CANDIDATES SAFE FROM GRAFT INQUIRY

Legislative Committee Can't Touch Them Under the Resolution Creating It.

CITY CLUB SKEPTICAL

Members Fear Their Desire to Know About Lobbies in Albany Will Go Unsatisfied.

One of the ways in which the Albany politicians stripped the resolution creating the Legislative Graft Investigating Committee of power that could result in trouble for any aspirant for office in the election this Fall became known yesterday when several City Club members considered the advisability of preferring charges against men still in public life. They found themselves barred under this clause in the resolution outlining the committee's powers:

> No charge of official misconduct against any candidate for nomination or election on any State ticket shall be received after the 1st day of September, 1910.

The City Club members who felt that certain lines of investigation would be sure to uncover unsavory facts in the records of present aspirants or likely aspirants for office commented upon the fact, in connection with the clause in the resolution, that Assemblyman Merritt had not called the committee together until the date to file charges had been passed. There was no time in the committee's history, they argued, when it could become an instrument for eliminating from public life those already in Albany who will necessarily face re-election this Fall.

Secretary Robert S. Binkerd of the City Cub was at work yesterday compiling a list of specific bills in which he considers improper influences were at work with improper alliances in Albany to procure legislative favors.

The list of bills will be submitted to Chairman Merritt as soon as it is completed. From the tone of Mr. Merritt's letter in reply to the suggestions previously made, Mr. Binkerd is convinced that the investigating committee is anxious neither to make its work broad nor vital.

In Mr. Binkerd's list the first bill mentioned is that amending the charter so as to abolish the office of Corporation Inspector. The City Club holds that the office of Corporation Inspector is nothing more than a political sinecure. Secretary Binkerd, quoting from the records of the club, said that improper influences had been at work for years to prevent the passage of the bill to abolish the inspectorships and that these influences had always been successful. An exposure of them, showing just what they were and why they worked, he said, was a proper field for the legislative committee's activities.

The case of an anti-gambling bill handled by the last session was another legislative matter mentioned. "On the day that bill appeared," said Mr. Binkerd, "a certain ex-member of the Legislature appeared in the lobby of the Hotel Ten Eyck, and remained there until the bill finally went its way to death in committee. Now, we are not empowered to investigate. Mr. Merritt is, and yet instead of meeting our suggestion that such fields would prove fruitful of results, he asks us to submit such charges as we feel capable of backing up."

Turning to the race-track-gambling bills, Mr. Binkerd recalled the fact that former Senator Otto Foelker of Brooklyn, now a Congressman, had publicly called attention to an offer of a large sum of money if he would remain in his sickbed and not cast the deciding vote for the measure that meant death to open gambling on race tracks. He suggested that the legislative committee might find this a good field for its activities.

While the City Club has little hope that the legislative investigators will turn to these suggested matters, it will take advantage of Assemblyman Merritt's invitation to place the list on record. Secretary Binkerd hopes to have a conference with the counsel for the committee within a few days.

$40,000,000 STOCK INCREASE.

Forthcoming Action by the Oregon Short Line—U. P. Controls It.

Stockholders of the Oregon Short Line will vote at the annual meeting to be held in Salt Lake City on Oct. 12 on a proposal to increase the company's capital stock from $60,000,000 to $100,000,000. Of the $27,460,100 stock at present outstanding, all but $109,400 is held in the Union Pacific treasury, and the remainder in the treasury of the line itself. It is stated on authority that the company has no intention of issuing any of the new stock publicly. In connection with the new issue an official statement was given out which said:

> The annual meeting of the Oregon Short Line Railway Company occurs Oct. 12, and the purpose is to avail of the opportunity afforded by the annual meeting to secure an amendment of the charter to authorize an increase in the capital stock of the Oregon Short Line if such increase should at any time seem desirable. If made, it will be in connection with an adjustment of the accounts with the Union Pacific, to which the Oregon Short Line is indebted, and all of it, of course, will be taken by the Union Pacific, which, as is generally known, now owns every share of Oregon Short Line stock.

Westinghouse Report Shows Earnings of 30.16 Per Cent. Against 13.72 in 1909

The annual report of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company for the year ended July 31, issued yesterday, shows earnings of more than doube those reported in the preceeding year, and marks the most prosperous year in the company's history. The net earnings of $4,653,102 compare with the showing of $2,039,273 made in 1909.

After charging off $429,824 for depreciation, &c., there remained a surplus of $4,223,278, compared with $1,920,557 last year, representing 30.16 per cent. earned on the $14,000,000 capitalization against 13.72 per cent. in 1909. The payment of $2,749,268 in dividends, against $1,374,481 last year left a balance of $1,474,010, which brought the total surplus up to $6,931,760.

No Action on Chemical Co. Dividends.

At the Directors' meeting of the American Agricultural Chemical Company yesterday no action was taken on the question of beginning dividends on the common stock, owing to the absence in Europe of Robert S. Bradley, Chairman of the board, and James M. Gifford, Second Vice President of the company. Both men are members of the committee appointed last June to investigate the company's financial condition, and prospects for the purpose of advising the Directors whether or not common stock dividends would be justified at this time.

DENY TAKING WEIGHING GRAFT

Wardell, Drew, and Bedell Testify in Their Own Defense.

The defense moved along rapidly yesterday in the trial of Charles H. Wardell, Charles D. Drew, and George E. Bedell before Judge Martin, in the United States Circuit Court. The three men are charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States by means of a system of false weighing in connection with the importation of sugar, cheese, fruits, and other products. Bedell was formerly Chief Clerk under Deputy Surveyor Vail of the Weighing Division of the Custom House, and the other men were Assistant United States Weighers.

Most of the time yesterday was divided between the testimony of character witnesses for the defense, and the general denials by the three defendants themselves.

AGAINST ARBITRATION BOARD.

Gompers Is One of the Few Labor Men to Oppose It.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the Sub-Committee on Immigration of the Congestion of Population Commission yesterday afternoon and caused some surprise by opposing the plan for the establishment of a local arbitration board for labor disputes, which has already been approved by a large part of the labor organizations of the city. Mr. Gompers failed to give specific objections to the scheme, confining himself principally to a tirade against compulsory arbitration, which is not meditated in any way in the commission's plan.

Chairman Lynch of the Sub-Committee of the Commission on Labor and Wages, who devised the plan for the Arbitration Board, and Secretary Marsh of the commission, immediately came to the defense of the scheme, and pressed Mr. Gompers with questions. He evaded direct answers, but continued:

"The name of the board implies at once industrial strife. The men do not usually complain openly before they strike. No committee from the cloak workers waited upon the Mayor to complain of their troubles before the strike was declared. The men suffer until the matter becomes a festering sore, and the public is surprised when it learns about it. Rather have a Committee of Investigation or Publicity or almost any other name than the one you have chosen."

Same National Park Bank Dividend.

The National Park Bank declared yesterday the first dividend since the increase of its capital from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000, at the same rate which had previously been paid on the old capitalization. The 4 per cent. quarterly dividend declared yesterday is payable Oct. 1 to stockholders of record Sept. 20.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS.—

THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE; GEORGE J. GOULD, ET ALS., COMPLAINANTS, VERSUS INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANT.

Consolidated Cause, No. 2,501.

THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY, TRUSTEE, COMPLAINANT, VERSUS INTERNATIONAL & GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, THE MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY, AND THOMAS J. FREEMAN, AS RECEIVER OF THE INTERNATIONAL AND GREAT NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY, DEFENDANTS.

Equity Cause No. 2,514.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that in pursuance of a decree in these causes made and entered on or about the tenth day of May, 1910, foreclosing the mortgage made by the International & Great Northern Railroad Company to The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Trustee, dated June 15th, 1881; and of decrees of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Texas, entered on or about the 25th day of June, 1910; the Eastern District of Texas, entered on or about the 27th day of June, 1910; and the Western District of Texas, entered on or about the 29th day of June, 1910; in the suits in equity in each of said last mentioned Districts pending, wherein The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, Trustee, is complainant, and the International & Great Northern Railroad Company, The Mercantile Trust Company and Thomas J. Freeman, as Receiver of The International & Great Northern Railroad Company, are defendants; I, WILLIAM H. FLIPPEN, the Master Commissioner in and by said decrees appointed for the purpose, will, on Thursday, the fifteenth day of September, 1910, at twelve o'clock noon, at the passenger depot of the International & Great Northern Railroad Company in the City of Palestine, in the County of Anderson, in the State of Texas, sell, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor, and as an entirety, and without valuation, appraisement, redemption or extension, and with all muniments of title thereto and evidences of ownership thereof, the following property, premises and franchises described in the said decrees, as follows:

"ALL and singular the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the defendant International and Great Northern Railroad Company, whether owned at the date of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on the 15th day of June, 1881, or thereafter acquired by it, including its lines of railroad in the State of Texas, extending from the town of Longview, in the County of Gregg, in said State, through said County, and through the Counties of Rusk, Smith, Cherokee, Anderson, Leon, Robertson, Milam, Williamson, Travis, Hays, Comal, Bexar, Medina, Frio, La Salle, Encinal, and Webb, to Laredo in said last-mentioned County; and from the town of Mineola in Wood County to Troupe in Smith County; and from the City of Palestine in Anderson County, through the Counties of Houston, Trinity, Walker, and Montgomery, to Houston in Harris County; and from the town of Spring in Harris County, through the Counties of Montgomery, Waller, Grimes, Brazos, Robertson, Falls, McLennan, Limestone, Hill, Navarro, Ellis, and Johnson, to the City of Fort Worth, Tarrant County; with branches and branch lines from the town of Overton to the town of Henderson, in Rusk County, from the town of Round Rock to Georgetown in Williamson County, from the town of Phelps to the town of Huntsville in Walker County, from the City of Houston in Harris County to the town of Colombia in Brazoria County, from Navasota in Grimes County to Madisonville in Madison County, from Calvert Junction to Calvert, and from Waco Junction to East Waco; also the railway and railway tracks and property appurtenant thereto, and certain tracts of land in and adjacent to the City of Houston in Harris County, State of Texas, known as the Houston Belt Terminals; a total distance of about eleven hundred and six miles of completed railroad, all in the State of Texas; also the trackage rights of the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company from Houston in Harris County to Galveston in Galveston County, in said State of Texas, over the railroad of the Galveston, Houston & Henderson Railroad Company, of 1882, accorded to it by an agreement between said last-named railroad company and said International and Great Northern Railroad Company, dated November 19th, 1895; also all and singular the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company's railroads, tracks, rights of way, main lines, branch lines, superstructures, depots, depot-grounds, station houses, engine houses, car houses, freight houses, wood houses, sheds, watering places, workshops, machine shops, bridges, viaducts, culverts, fences, and fixtures, together with all its leases, leasehold-interests, leased or hired lands, leased or hired railroads, and all its locomotives, tenders, cars, carriages, coaches, trucks, and other rolling stock; its machinery, tools, weighing scales, turn tables, rails, wood, coal, oil, fuel, equipment, furniture, and material of every name, nature, and description, together with all its corporate rights, privileges, immunities, and franchises, whether held at the time of the execution of the said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or thereafter acquired (including the franchise to be a corporation), and all the tolls, fares, freights, rents, income, issues, and profits thereof, and all the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders thereof, as well as all property purchased or held by the Receiver herein, including any balance of cash, credits, and income, which may remain in his hands after application thereof, as herein provided or as has been or may hereafter be directed by the Court herein, to the payment of receivership obligations and charges and to the payment of claims which may be allowed by the Court herein against the same with priority over said Second Mortgage dated June 15th, 1881; excepting, however, all land grants, lands, land certificates, town lots, and town sites, owned or controlled by the said International and Great Northern Railroad Company at the date of the execution of said Second Mortgage, namely, on June 15th, 1881, or at any time prior to said date, which were not, on the first day of November, 1879, or thereafter up to the said 15th day of June, 1881, actually occupied and in use by the said Railroad Company and necessary to the occupation and maintenance of its lines of railroad; and excepting further any portions of said premises and property which may have been released from the lien and operation of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, and the releases for which have been duly filed for record in the proper county."

The said premises and property will be sold subject to the mortgage dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International & Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as Trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage, and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International & Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court has, since the entry of said decree herein, ordered or decreed, or which it may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the Receiver herein under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein; and subject also to such debts, claims, liens and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein; or out of the proceeds of the said sale as in said decree directed; and certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely: The San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, will be sold respectively subject to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens, specifically and respectively affecting the same.

The Master Commissioner will receive no bid from any person until such person shall have deposited with him the sum of $100,000. Such deposit will be returned in case the depositor's bid be not accepted; but if his bid be accepted, then such deposit will be held by the Master Commissioner on account of the purchase price.

The purchaser, when the property is struck down to him, shall at once pay the Master Commissioner on account of his purchase a sufficient sum to make up with his deposit ten per centum of his accepted bid. The deposit required before bidding shall be paid in United States currency or in such certified draft, certificate or cheque as may be satisfactory to the Master Commissioner, or in a certificate of The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company duly made payable to the order of said Master Commissioner. Said further payment shall be made either as aforesaid, or in the bonds and coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, taken at a valuation equal to the amount said bonds and coupons would be entitled to receive in cash out of the amount bid for the said property. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, such certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons. Should such further payment not be made, the property will be forthwith resold, without further advertisement, the Court reserving the right to consider such resale made on account of said successful bidder or as an original sale; and in case of such resale, the deposit received from the said successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. Such further portions of the purchase price shall be paid in money as the Court may from time to time direct, the Court reserving the right to resell the premises and property herein directed to be sold upon the failure of the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors or assigns, to comply with any order of the Court in that regard, and in case of any such resale or the failure of the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their assigns, to comply with the terms of the bid or the orders of the Court relative to such additional payments, the said money, bonds and coupons so paid in as aforesaid shall be forfeited as liquidated damages and shall be applied toward the expenses of any resale ordered, or toward making good any deficiency or loss in case the property at such resale shall bring less than at the prior sale. The balance of the purchase price may be paid either in money or in bonds or overdue coupons secured by the said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, each said bond and coupon being received for such sum as the holder thereof would be entitled to receive under the distribution herein ordered and according to the priority herein adjudged. The certificate of the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company that it holds bonds and coupons as therein described subject to the order of the party named therein, said certificate being by him transferred to the order of said Master Commissioner, will be accepted in lieu of such bonds and coupons.

Within thirty days from the confirmation of said sale or such further time as the Court may allow on application of the purchaser for good cause shown, the purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, shall complete payment of the entire amount bid to the Master Commissioner; and on such payment the said purchaser or purchasers, his, its or their successors and assigns, will be entitled to receive a deed of conveyance and bill of sale of the property purchased from the Master Commissioner and from the other parties to this cause as in said decree herein provided, and to receive possession of the property so purchased from the parties holding possession of the same, subject, however, to the said mortgage, dated November 1st, 1879, made by said International & Great Northern Railroad Company to John S. Kennedy and Samuel Sloan, as Trustees, and known as said Railroad Company's First Mortgage; and subject also to any unpaid indebtedness or liability contracted or incurred by said International & Great Northern Railroad Company in the operation of its Railroad, which the Court, since the entry of the said decree herein has ordered or decreed, or may hereafter order or decree herein, to be prior or superior to the lien of said mortgage dated June 15th, 1881, except such as shall be paid or satisfied out of the income of the property in the hands of the Receiver herein, under orders of the Court entered or to be entered herein, and subject also to such debts, claims, liens and demands of whatsoever nature heretofore incurred or created, or which may hereafter be incurred or created by the Receiver herein under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, and which have not been or shall not hereafter be paid by said Receiver under orders of the Court heretofore or hereafter entered herein, or other parties in interest herein, or out of the proceeds of said sale, as in said decree directed, and subject also, as to certain specific portions of said property and premises, namely, the San Antonio Passenger Station, the Colorado Bridge and certain equipment, to the existing recorded mechanic's lien, the First Mortgage Colorado Bridge Bonds and the unsatisfied recorded equipment liens specifically and respectively affecting the same. And the Court reserves jurisdiction over said property, notwithstanding such deed or deeds or delivery of possession, for the purpose of enforcing such payment.

For a more detailed statement of the terms and conditions under which said sale will be made, reference is hereby made to the said decrees and each and every one of them on file with the Clerks of the several Courts hereinbefore mentioned.
